Still a Queer World.
Needy, But Not Romantic.
Some Science.
A Home Made Niagara.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YOU ARE LIVING in a world still primitive. Brazil reorganizes itself by violence, just as this country did 154 years ago, and the Brazilian mob in Sao Paulo tears down its Cambuzy prison, as the mob of the French revolution tore down the Bastile.

IN THE ARCTIC, German scientists, traveling peacefully on their dogsleds, were suddenly abandoned by their Greenlander guides, who informed the Germans that there were demons on the ice. They know it by the sudden change in the weather. The Germans tried to persuade the Greenlanders that demons live in a hot country and couldn't stand the ice, but the Greenlanders know better. Their hell is frozen, not hot.

MR. WILLIAM FOY observes, with mild surprise, the difference between these times of home distress and a certain period in the great war. "Do you remember," says he, "what we did for the Belgians and the warring factions?"

There is quite a difference. Then the Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army were raising scores of millions for Europe. And our national government practically bulldozed the people into buying ten thousand millions worth of bonds, the proceeds sent to Europe.

HOWEVER, little Belgians, cunning Armenians, Turks, Chinese, Russians and such, combined with war, are romantic, where there is nothing particularly romantic about an ordinary American out of work and worrying about his family. In fact, you are told that the government itself cannot do anything about the present distress. Public generosity must do everything. It probably won't do much. And the government may change its mind if the winter turns out to be as is anticipated.

The British dole may be a "confession of failure" and all that. But worse things are conceivable.

THERE WAS a time in Queen Elizabeth's day when you had to change your ideas of the world's geography. Often new lands were discovered from week to week.

Now, with geography well known, men transfer their interest to the interior of the atom, where change and overwhelming new theories appear almost every month.

Dr. Dirac, a young physicist of Cambridge, makes even Sir Oliver Lodge dizzy with his announcement that the proton around which the electrons revolve "may be nothing but a hole."

With the theory that space is everything and matter doesn't count, Einstein has made us familiar. The theory that "a perfect vacuum combines all the states of negative energy" is too much for the average mortal.

Consider Mount Wilson's description of a group of spiral nebulae receding from the earth at a speed of 7,200 miles a second, a new speed record, even in astronomy.

And these objects, moving so fast that they could go around the world in three and one-half seconds, are not small speeding bullets. Each nebula is a giant cluster of stars as big probably as the Milky Way, in which our sun, with all its planets, is only a grain of dust. Nature does wonderful things, but in proportion to his size, man also does well.

Within a period of three years, the New York Edison plant has added to its equipment an amount of power equal to the total power development of Niagara.

AN ENCOURAGING word on business improvement comes from Mr. Farrell, president of the big steel company. He is a conservative man, and his advice against reckless price-cutting is constructive and necessary. If businessmen cut each other's throats, practically eliminating profits in the big lines of business, they will all fall in the ditch together.

PRESIDENT HOOVER, Secretary Mellon, and the financial "best minds" that know something about finance might consider seriously the possibility of doing something for silver.

Howard E. Perry, an experienced mining man, says:

"If a merchant in the Orient wants to buy goods in New York or London he must cash in fifty ounces of silver for one ounce of gold, to finance his purchase."

These figures will amuse some Americans, whose dull minds refuse to understand the necessity of letting Europe and Asia run the United States Navy.

IN OBEDIENCE to the London treaty, our Navy is about to junk three battleships of the dreadnaught type, costing at least $50,000,000 each, two armored cruisers, about 140,000 tons of destroyers, and more than 30,000 tons of submarines. And, if war broke out, we should instantly begin rebuilding the submarines at highest possible prices.

CITY, COUNTY GIVE RELIEF TO NEEDY

Food, Fuel Made Available, With Jobs for Applicants; $2,500,000 Bids Opened

Relief for unemployment, and the want occasioned thereby, was assured today when Pittsburgh and Allegheny county agencies opened a concerted movement to give immediate aid in the matter of food, fuel and raiment, and for the employment of the idle, whereby they may earn support for themselves and their families.

The city Welfare Department, collaborating with other bodies, began its mission of succor, made possible by the $100,000 fund recently approved by City Council and Mayor Charles H. Kline.

JOBS FOR THOUSANDS

Employment of thousands of workers was seen today as bids for $2,500,000 worth of county projects were opened by the County Commissioners. The work includes bridges, roads and park improvements.

Shortly after the City Department of Welfare offices opened this morning more than 300 persons applied for aid. Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director, said most of them asked for jobs.

Mayor Kline gave out the first relief card this morning. The Mayor said:

"No one in Pittsburgh needs to go hungry. The city has plenty of money for relief and will find more if necessary."

Shannon Ill, Candidate Of G.O.P.

COLUMBIA, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Gen. E. C. Shannon, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, is seriously ill at his home here, suffering from an infection on his right hand, it was learned today. The infection is believed to have set in yesterday and at noon today he had a very high temperature.

It was said at the Shannon home, that the next few hours would determine the extent of the illness and that he is "seriously ill."

Dr. Francis, Lancaster osteopathic physician, said today that he did not know how the infection had started.

Attorney General says Kelley oil charges, like a Florida bungalow, are without foundation.

Our feathers are now the purest white. Even though they are held in place by a coat of hot pitch.

The government still owns the oil lands. We don't know what's under that land.

Well, well, it's a small world after all, as the two worms said when they met in the rotten apple.

Keep our scandals clean. Don't allow them to develop into investigations.

This legal vaccination gives the Department of the Interior a clean bill of health. And we have no reason for insomnia except that we cannot sleep.

We concede that all Kelley had was a fullgrown set of suspicions.

If there isn't anything wrong with that land why ain't there a miniature golf course on it?

PINCHOT MAN SUCCEEDS WOODS

Schnader Named Attorney General as Greensburg Man Quits Public Life

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 28.—Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods, of Greensburg, today tendered his resignation, effective Saturday, to Gov. John S. Fisher. The governor at once named Special Deputy Attorney General William A. Schnader, prominent follower of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, as Attorney General Woods said he was resigning for purely "personal reasons" and not because of any political considerations. The resignation ends, for the present at least, a long period of public service, both for the state and nation.

Woods' first public service was as a member of the state Senate from 1900 to 1903. In 1912 he was appointed as minister to Portgual, holding that post until 1915. As secretary of the commonwealth, he served from 1915 until June, 1921, when he was named as ambassador to Spain. He was promoted to the ambassador's post in Japan in March, 1923, and served until July, 1924. During the earthquake in Japan in September, 1923, he had charge of the American Red Cross activities.

His apopintment as attorney general of Pennsylvania was made by Gov. Fisher in January, 1929. Woods succeeded Attorney General Thomas J. Baldridge who had been named to the Superior Court.

Schnader, the new attorney general, is only 44 and for the past eight years has borne the brunt of all the important litigations in which the commonwealth has been engaged. He first came to state service early in the Pinchot administration and drafted the majority of the legal documents which put into effect the marked changes in state government which the then governor inaugurated. Included in that work was the drafting of the administrative code which revolutionized the working of all branches of the state government.

PINCHOT FLAYS 'GANG' DEBT

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, speaking at a Montgomery County rally here today, said that a vote for John M. Hemphill, the Democratic-Liberal party candidate for governor, "is a vote to put the state government into the control of the corrupt Philadelphia gang which has made the Philadelphia debt the heaviest per capita debt of all cities in America."

The meeting here was arranged by Charles Johnson, county leader and state secretary of revenue. Pinchot said:

"The corruption of the Philadelphia gang has given the State of Pennsylvania a reputation which it does not deserve, and there is nothing more important to the good name of the state than to clean up election conditions in Philadelphia. Proof that the Philadelphia gang cheats at elections has been sup-

HEMPHILL HERE FOR RALLY

John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal nominee for governor, and other nominees on the Democratic ticket will address a meeting tonight in North Side Carnegie Music Hall that is expected to attract delegations from all western counties. Hemphill will broadcast over WCAE at 7:15 p. m.

County Chairman David L. Lawrence has provided for an overflow audience by placing amplifiers to carry the speeches to sidewalk audiences. The nominees are due from Altoona in the early evening, and will be escorted to the meeting hall by Democrats who will form a parade to the North Side.

WOMEN TO BE HOSTS

Nominees expected include Sedgwick Kistler, for United States senator; Guy D. Bard, for lieutenant governor; Lucy D. Winston, for secretary of internal affairs, and former Judge A. E. Reiber and George F. Douglas, for judges of Superior Court. Attorney

Midnight Ban on Cabarets Beaten in Ross Township

In a meeting marked by heated arguments, the Ross Township Board of Commissioners last night defeated an ordinance to compel all roadhouses, hotels and barbecue stands to close at midnight.

The measure was aimed at Eddie Klein's Villa and several night life clubs along the Babcock boulevard. It had been passed on first and second readings at the September meeting. Last night's roll call showed five against and three favoring the ordinance.

Residents near roadhouses and barbecue stands contended that patrons, intoxicated, used their lawns to park their automobiles in the early morning, disturbing the peace and quiet of the countryside.

Harry Dipple, roadhouse proprietor and president of the Business Men's Association, and former Assistant District Attorney A. M. Oliver opposed the ordinance. They held that roadhouse owners and others had $1,000,000 invested and that their business would be virtually destroyed if not permitted to keep open late enough to entertain after-theater parties.

Eddie Klein was among the spectators who attended the meeting in the auditorium of the Samuel Hamilton school. He did not speak.

Shaw Backs Mussolini's Treaty Revision Plea as Only Hope for Peace

By KINGSBURY SMITH.

International News Service.

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The statement of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy that revision of the Treaty of Versailles constitutes Europe's only possible path to peace meets with the complete agreement of George Bernard Shaw, the famous author and playwright.

In an exclusive interview, the British sage and controversialist launched a vehement attack upon the peace treaty, and leveled bitter charges of hypocrisy against the post-war statesmen of Europe.

Shaw declared:

"I have read the report of Mussolini's speech, and I agree with every word of it. No honest statesman could say anything else."

HUMOR ABSENT

For once, Shaw left his omnipresent humor and biting sarcasm out of his statements, and revealed himself as a staunch and serious advocate of complete and speedy revision of the treaty. He said:

"It is idle to prate of peace whilst those infamous treaties of

HOPE GIVEN UP FOR 29 MINERS

M'ALESTER, Okla., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Hope for the rescue of 29 miners entombed by an explosion in the lower levels of the Wheatley No. 4 coal mine of the Samples Coal Company was virtually abandoned today when the rescuers encountered black damp at the fifteenth level of the mine.

The men are entombed in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth levels, 3,600 feet from the mouth of the mine.

Debris piled about the entrance to the mine delayed the rescuers for more than four hours. They entered the mine early today and working frantically had penetrated to within a few hundred feet of the entombed men when they encountered black damp.

Crowds of curious and relatives of the trapped miners surged about the mouth of the mine adding difficulty to efforts to maintain order. The body of William Donley, a miner, was found a short distance inside the mine. He was killed by the force of the explosion.

LANG ON STAND FOR HARTLEP

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang and James Moore, superintendent of parks, were the first witnesses called this afternoon as the defense opened in the trial of William Hartlep, supervisor of North Side parks, charged with killing Joseph Nieberding, 16, of 616 Sherman avenue, with a baseball bat.

Lang testified Hartlep had the reputation of being a "kindly and law-abiding man."

Moore said Hartlep had been supervisor of North Side parks for five years, having previously been a florist in Phipps Conservatory. He testified he had instructed Hartlep to permit no ball-playing in West Park, because of numerous complaints.

The state closed shortly after the noon recess, after Paul Gallagher, 18, of 310 West Park way, the last of numerous eye-wit-

Braddock Merchant Slain By 2 Gunmen as Child Looks On; Suspects Taken

While his terrified school teacher-fiancee looked on, Clifford Arcker, 24, of New Kensington, shot twice, exchanged shot for shot early this morning with two alleged bandits, wounding one during an attempted holdup on the highway near Harmar Township.

Acker's fusillade resulted in the capture of the bandit suspects climaxing a series of holdups in the Pittsburgh district last night during which one man was killed.

Acker's companion was Mrs. Elizabeth Ramaley, a Blaw Knox school teacher. The young woman is recovering in her home today from shock.

The dead man was George Miller, 37, slain by two Negro bandits who held up his grocery store at 118 Eighth street, Braddock, while a girl customer looked on.

WATCH SAVES LIFE

J. C. Akers, of New Kensington, is in Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, with a bullet wound in his breast as a result of the gun battle. The bullet struck a watch he was carrying in his vest pocket, which saved his life, physicians at the hospital said.

George Hilberry, 33, of the Russelton road, Superior, one of the alleged bandits, was shot in the abdomen. At Allegheny Valley Hospital, in Tarentum, it was said his condition was serious.

Leg irons were placed on Hilberry today to foil any attempt at escape.

GIRL SEES SHOOTING

The descriptions of the bandits who killed Miller were furnished police by Ethel May Banks, 14, of 222 Eighth street, who was in the store at the time. Miller was operating an adding machine on a counter when the thugs entered

TUCKER TAKES MARCUS' PLACE

Walter E. Tucker, Negro, has been chosen by the Republican County Committee as Republican nominee for state represetnative of the First Legislative District to succeed Assemblyman Joseph Marcus, who was buried yesterday.

The selection was made last night for the committee by County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the county committee; Mrs. Laura Hinnau, vice chairman, and William Ziefel, secretary, after a conference with Mayor Charles H. Kline.

A plan was being considered today to reprint the ballots of the First District before the general election next Tuesday, substituting the name of Tucker for Marcus. If the ballots cannot be reprinted stickers will be used.

That plan, political observers point out, would give those aspirants not selected by the county committee, who must resort to stickers, a better opportunity of election. The independent aspirants include Theron B. Hamilton and Charles Solomon.

Jewel Ens Signs Contract To Pilot Pirates in 1931

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Jewel W. Ens, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates since August, 1929, today signed a contract to pilot the 1931 club.

The indefinite aspect of the team's leadership in the next campaign thus was formally removed when the former coach and player affixed his signature to the document.

At the close of his somewhat unfortunate campaign of this year, there was much doubt as to whether Ens would succeed himself.

Owner Barney Dreyfuss would not make any definite declaration on the matter at the time, but in the past 10 days the inference was strong that Jewel would be retained.

Joe McCarthy's name crept into the situation in the days of uncertainty regarding Ens. It was reported that the local owners would do business with McCarthy, but The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph learned from reliable au-

WOMEN URGED TO HELP SOLVE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEMS

AID HOOVER, COL. WOOD URGES

Chairman of Committee For Relief Speaks to Clubwomen of 6 States

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's emergency committee on employment, today called on the women of America to get behind the President's plan to relieve the unemployment situation in the same manner as they had done during the World War when they put over the Hoover food conservation plan.

Col. Woods, addressing a gathering of 1,000 women representing women's clubs in six states, said:

"It was wartime then, and it is wartime now. The only difference is that now the enemy is human suffering.

"The enemy is attacking our own people. The women of America should do all they can to contribute to the quickening of the industrial pulse so that normal conditions can be restored in the country."

Col. Woods and other speakers, including Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, member of the President's emergency committee, stressed the fact that there was nothing to fear and that the unemployment problem could be solved if handled properly.

Col. Woods, who was in New York for a brief stay, is greatly encouraged, he said, by the fact that 15 large cities in the United States already have under way projects that will relieve human suffering and create work for the army of jobless, which he estimated to number approximately 3,500,000.

PITTSBURGH NAMED

The cities leading the procession are:

Hartford, Conn.; Chicago, Boston, Detroit, Flint, Mich.; St. Paul, New York, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Salt Lake City, Seattle and Milwaukee.

The colonel, a tall, slim man, with iron-gray hair and horn-rimmed glasses, has had several informal conferences with industrial leaders here.

Asked just how serious he figured the unemployment problem of the country to be, Col. Woods replied:

"I cannot answer that definitely, but I will say this: While America's unemployment problem is serious enough to be regarded as an emergency, it is not as acute as it was in the winter of 1921 when more men were out of work. What makes the situation so bad now is that we are approaching a second winter of slackened business."

nesses, testified Nieberding had taken one bat from Hartlep and was trying to get others when the latter struck him on the head. Nieberding died the following day, June 28, in Presbyterian Hospital of a skull fracture.

Seated side by side in the courtroom were the lad's father and mother, J. C. Nieberding, with whom he lived, and his divorced wife, Mrs. A. Linsmaier, of Alliance, O.

The mother wept at intervals as the story of the fatal blow suffered by her son was retold. In another part of the courtroom sat Mrs. Hartlep, wife of the defendant, and her four children.

TELL OF TERRIFIC BLOW

Mrs. Mary Seitzer, of 700 West North avenue, on her way home through the park at the time of the tragedy, said the blow struck by Hartlep could "be heard for two blocks."

The boys in the crowd had been laughing, she said. When Nieberding slipped up behind Hartlep and tried to jerk a bat out of his hands, Hartlep partly turned and struck him, according to testimony of Fred Krome, 35, of 1943 Perrysville avenue.

J. T. Jennings, 65, of 530 Chestnut street, who described himself as "slightly deaf," testified he heard the blow as Hartlep swung as if in play.

Miss Della McFarland, of 112 West Stockton avenue, employed in Presbyterian Hospital, testified the blow struck was a hard one.

When the trial opened yesterday Assistant District Attorney E. T. Adair asked for a first degree verdict without capital punishment.

of any co-operating agency to which they wished to apply.

CHARITIES CO-OPERATE

Collaborating with the city were Pittsburgh Chapter, American Red Cross, Salvation Army, Family Welfare Association, Jewish Welfare Association, Lutheran Inner Mission, Pittsburgh Association for Improvement of the Poor and Conference of Catholic Charities.

Job-seekers were taken immediately to the Civil Service Commission. Those asking food, fuel and medical assistance were assigned to representatives of the welfare agencies. Investigations of the needy cases were made by field representatives in the home districts of the applicants, and, if found worthy, immediate help was given.

Aid was extended to only residents of the city.

Starting today 120 laborers were put to work on four sewer projects. This is the first group of a total of 700 to be given jobs in the city's effort to relieve unemployment here.

APPROVE POOL COSTS

The others will be assigned to work as soon as the city forces are able to outline the projects. Yesterday Council approved the expenditure of $90,000 for a swimming pool at Lake Carnegie, Highland Park. This amount will be expended for emergency laborers, an additional 60,000 being held for necessary contract work on the project.

Food was to be the first thing provided for those who apply for relief, according to Miss Isabel B. Darragh of the Welfare Department. Shoes, she said, will come second.

Director of Supplies B. L. Succop plans to advertise for bids for the supplies today, the items and quality being based in general upon the disaster relief specifications of the American Red Cross. The law will require a five day interval before the bids are opened and the awards made.

Meanwhile arrangements have been made to purchase the necessary food supplies from a string of chain stores here. Arrangements also have been made for the purchase of shoes. Those given shoes will go to the stores to be fitted. These arrangements are temporary, to be in effect only until the bids are opened.

Lipton to Try For Cup in 2 Years

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Sir Thomas Lipton, entraining today for Southampton to take the Leviathan for America, said he had determined to have another Shamrock yacht ready in two years to race for the America's Cup.

It will be one, he said, that "will make the Americans sit up."

"Am I going to contest for the America's Cup next year?" Sir Thomas repeated a question, then answered: "I don't think so, unless I have a boat like the Americans have, but by the following year I'll have a Shamrock ready that will make the Americans sit up."

Pay Day in Chicago As Bonds Prove Good

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Chicago's vast army of policemen, firemen and other city employes were happy today. It was payday for them.

Their pay had been held up for some time while city officials awaited a decision by the Supreme Court on a $12,000,000 bond issue. The court's decision that the issue is valid made possible the good news of today.

BANDITS KIDNAP PULLMAN AGENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Two holdup men forced an assistant cashier for the Pullman Company to leave his cage in the Pennsylvania Railroad Terminal yesterday and transport a bag containing $1,087 through the terminal lobby to the street.

Francis Tobin, 33, the victim, was forced into a taxicab at the point of a gun and driven to Flushing, where he was dumped out.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A man without a mask walked into the Bank of South Knoxville yesterday, forced George Cross, cashier, into a small closet along with two women clerks, Miss Grace Hurst and Mrs. C. A. Johnson, and escaped with from $6,000 to $8,000 in cash.

RASKOB URGES 5-DAY WEEK, DRY POLL

Democratic Chairman, in Radio Address, Outlines Objectives for Party

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Just a week before election, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee last night suggested a national referendum on prohibition be made one of his party's objectives if it obtains power.

John J. Raskob advanced the proposal as one of six points in the course of a campaign address carried by radio all over the country.

FIVE-DAY WEEK

Taking first place in his program was the five-day week for workingmen. His other suggestions included determination by the Federal Trade Commission of the legality of proposed business combinations in advance of their formation; abolition of the capital gains and loss tax; appointment of Tariff Commission members for life to take tariff-making out of politics, and employment of caution by Congress to have all its legislation "square with good economics." He asked:

"Is there any dry so stubborn that he would insist on the country being dry if the people by referendum abolished the Eighteenth Amendment? Or is there any wet so bigoted that he would refuse to abide by the decision if a referendum showed the country to be dry?"

AIDING BOOTLEGGERS

The Democratic chairman, who also is a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said it was a "sorry plight indeed" to see ministers and other good citizens "unconsciously working hand in hand with bootleggers and racketeers in an effort to deny the people of the United States an opportunity to vote on this great social experiment after a 10-year trial."

Raskob took occasion also to deny a Republican charge that he had maintained a Democratic publicity bureau in Washington to "smear Hoover." He termed the accusation "childish."

In concluding the address Raskob asserted no country in the world was ever in as splendid position to go forward to a period of prosperity as the United States today.

Smith Promises Shorter Work Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—A shorter work week and "real government economy" were promised America by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, providing electors "vote the Democratic ticket."

Speaking here last night, Smith attacked President Hoover's policies and said the Republicans had promised prosperity when they knew they "could not deliver."

"When there are hard times in the Republican party they are usually referred to as a 'business depression,' but in a Democratic administration they are called panics," Smith said.

Arrest of Non-Stop Drivers Advocated

Additional traffic patrolmen, to guard 105 through traffic stop signs and arrest each driver who fails to stop, have been asked by the Pittsburgh Motor Club, in letters addressed to City Council and Safety Director James M. Clark.

The traffic count taken last summer by Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre shows that from 50 to 80 per cent of the drivers fail to stop at the designated places.

and ordered the storekeeper to throw up his hands. Miller, and the girl who was sitting near the front door, threw up their hands. One of the thugs went behind the register and emptied it of some change, the bills having been taken out by Miller shortly before.

As the robber walked back to his armed accomplice, Miller was ordered to put his hands down on the counter. The victim had scarcely complied with the robber's request when he was shot twice in the abdomen.

The Banks girl ran to the Braddock Pharmacy across the street and summoned aid. Miller was taken to the Braddock General Hospital, where he died several hours later.

Police scoured the neighborhood and rounded up a dozen Negroes, who were released when the girl was unable to identify them.

BANDIT WOUNDED

The shooting of Akers and Hilberry climaxed an orgy of daring holdups in the Allegheny Valley started Sunday night.

Hilberry with a man who said he was Albert Kipp, 22, of the Bull Creek road, Millertown, police said, attempted to hold up Akers, who was driving with Miss Elizabeth Ramaley, of Springdale.

From his cot in the hospital Akers described the holdup and shooting. He said:

"We were driving along at a slow pace when a car with two men came up beside us. Both got out and came to my car and ordered me to open the door. I refused, and one of the men broke the door glass with a blackjack, and hit me on the head. Then he backed away and shot at me, hitting me in the left arm. I pulled my revolver and opened fire at him. He shot me again, then both ran back to their car. One of the men staggered, and I knew I had hit him. The second shot that hit me shattered my watch. It was 12:13 a. m."

SUSPECT CAPTURED

After the exchange of shots, in which Akers and Hilberry were hit, the alleged bandits drove away. Hours later both were arrested and questioned by Motorcycle Patrolmen Harry Lloyd and John Troeger, of Springdale police, and five members of the Parnassus detail of the State Highway Patrol, under Sergeant William A. Blair.

Kipp was to be brought from Springdale Police Station and placed in jail, where victims of recent holdups were to try to identify him.

Several hours before Kipp and Hilberry escaped capture near Cheswick, police say, in a daring manner when they were pursued by Francis B. Geyer, 24, of the Beechwood Farms, O'Hara Township, and Robert N. Poppleton, 57, who conducts a gasoline station on the Kittanning pike, O'Hara Township. Poppleton commandeered Geyer's car when the bandit pair drove away without paying for gas and oil.

STEAL PURSUERS' CAR

When forced off the road near Cheswick, Kipp and Hilberry covered their pursuers with revolvers when Poppleton and Geyer stepped out of the latter's machine. They robbed Geyer of $3 and stole his car.

Investigation proved that the car the bandits left behind them was the one stolen from Eugene Allen, of Ford City, Sunday night. Allen was compelled to turn over his machine, money and overcoat near Freeport after he had given the two men a lift while he was en route home from Tarentum.

After fleeing in Geyer's car, the pair proceeded into Westmoreland County, and when they neared Camp Joan, on the Greensburg road, they held up and robbed George Myers, 22, of Parnassus R. D. 1 of $22. They then proceeded into New Kensington and back into Allegheny County until they met Akers.

FIND WOUNDED MAN

Hilberry after he was wounded dragged himself into a nearby woods while Kipp fled in Geyer's car. Loyalty to his wounded companion, police said, caused Kirk to return to the scene of the gun battle where he was arrested by Lloyd and Troeger.

Burglars Loot Altoona Office

ALTOONA, Oct. 28.—Burglars cracked the safe in the office of the Pittsburgh Auto Equipment Company, in the center of the Altoona business district, and secured $200 in cash. Entrance was gained through a trap door in the roof. A sledge hammer was used to break the dial on the safe, and the inside doors forced by punchers. Burglar tools were recovered by police.

DUCE BACKED BY SHAW

conquest and plunder remain unrevised; whilst every attempt to check the race of armaments breaks down publicly and disgracefully like the late naval conference in London and its predecessor at Washington, and whilst all the powers are trying To substitute the Kellogg pact—sanctioning war of self-defense, that is, war whenever it suits the powers—for the covenant of the League of Nations.

COMMON SENSE

"The most hopeful feature of the situation is that there is one man in Europe who has the courage and common sense to tell the truth about it."

As in other countries of Europe, Premier Mussolini's latest speech has aroused widespread comment here. The British press credited him with consistency in his beliefs at least, for he expressed similar sentiments in a speech delivered shortly after Premier Aristide Briand, of France, sent out his questionnaire regarding formation of a United States of Europe.

At that time, Mussolini declared that no new measures for peace and co-operation between the nations of Europe could be undertaken successfully until the treaty of Versailles had been revised.

All Italy Observes Fascist Anniversary

ROME, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—All Italy today celebrated the eighth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. The day was observed as a general business holiday, with public buildings, buses, trolleys and the like decorated with bunting. All members of the Duce's party turned out in black shirts with war and Fascist decorations.

NEW BRAZIL RULE WARNS PLOTTERS

By AROXELLAS GALVAO.
International News Service.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 28.—Determined to forestall any further outbreaks of counter-revolution violence, the military junta governing Brazil pending the arrival of Provisional President Getulio Vargas today threatened "ferocious treatment" to any malcontents who choose to "behave like wild animals."

Driven to the necessity of a new show of strength early in its career, the new government was held to have demonstrated its popularity with the great mass of the people when an incipient counter-insurrection was put down with approximately 100 casualties yesterday.

CITIZENS AID GOVERNMENT

Government troops called out to combat the revolt were aided by thousands of citizens, who voluntarily took up arms against the counter-revolutionists, a military regiment.

The revolt was declared to have been engineered by Communist agents.

The military regiment launched its revolt at 10 a. m., shooting, seizing Central police station. Firemen and city police, aided by troops, were hastily mobilized to combat the insurrectionists, and at least 3,000 citizens hurled themselves into the fray on the side of the government.

AIR BOMBS END FIGHT

Within a few moments troops had erected barricades around the station and other buildings, including that of the ministry of war.

During the heat of the battle, in which hundreds of shots were fired, Communists circulated through the excited populace, attempting to incite them to revolt, the government declared. Their efforts were unavailing.

The conflict ended when military bombing planes got the range of the revolutionaries' headquarters, and spattered bombs in the immediate vicinity.

Realizing they had no chance of success, the revolters capitulated. The ringleaders, including Col. Bandeira Mello, were placed under arrest.

JEWELS SOLD AFTER SEIZURE

The two platinum diamond and sapphire bracelets which Mrs. Morris Baer, of Pittsburgh, brought undeclared into this country from France in 1925, were sold at public auction today in Federal Court.

The bracelets—one with 100 tiny diamonds—were appraised by the government at $2,250. They sold today for $575 to Edward Bennett, contractor, of Indiana, Pa., son-in-law of United States Marshal J. C. McGregor.

It was not until two years after the bracelets had been brought here, government records show, that the customs officer seized them. A federal penalty of $2,250 was paid by Mrs. Baer. Three weeks ago, in Federal Court, the bracelets were forfeited.

The sale took place in Marshal McGregor's office.

Churchill Asks Tax On Foreign Goods

EPPING, England, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Imposition of a general tariff on all imports of goods manufactured in foreign countries was advocated in a speech by Winston Churchill, former Conservative chancellor of the exchequer.

Churchill recalled that six years ago Conservative leaders had pledged themselves to avoid a general tariff for the taxation of foodstuffs, but said changed conditions would oblige them to change their policy.

Sir John Harry Lee Fagge, who until he inherited his baronetcy was a New England day laborer, John Fagge, 61. The title brought no money, but in England he met and married the former Mrs. Florence Murdock, wealthy widow. "I haven't a dime," Sir John said.

12 on Bus Saved as Dying Driver Pulls Brake

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Oct. 28.—Last thought of John L. Spargo, 34, national road bus driver, who died at the wheel of a Wheeling-Columbus bus near Zanesville, was for the 12 passengers, occupants of the bus reported to Red Star Way headquarters here today.

Spargo, as life ebbed, due to a heart attack caused by being gassed in France, pulled the emergency brake and shut off the motor, and as he collapsed in death a front-seat passenger was able to catch the wheel and guide the bus down a four-foot embankment into a level field in such a way that the vehicle did not upset.

The only injury was to a woman passenger, whose teeth were knocked out. Damage to the bus is estimated at $25. Spargo's body was taken to Old Washington, near Cambridge.

N. Y. Opera Season Opens In Dazzling Brilliance

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Long lines of high-priced motor cars—equally extended lines of honking, semi-delapidated taxis—harassed bluecoats trying to handle traffic.

A myriad of dazzling lights, glittering jewels, magnificently-garbed social leaders, debutantes making their premiere appearance in the "golden horseshoe," hundreds standing at the rear of the orchestra stalls—the music lovers who stood in line for hours to procure obscure places in the galleries—the hum of 1,000 voices—the mighty, deep-toned orchestra—a hush—the part of the yellow brocaded curtains, and the colorful pageantry and impressive music of Verdi's "Aida."

All these were the high lights of the brilliant opening of the opera season at the Metropolitan last night.

Ever since that memorable night—October 22, 1883—when the new Metropolitan was opened, with Christine Nilsson singing the role of Marguerite in "Faust," the first night of each and every season at the Metropolitan has heralded the opening of a new social season.

Hundreds of spectators lined the sidewalks last night eager to catch a glimpse of the arbiters of fashion as they moved from their motor cars to the entrances.

BROKER SUICIDE 3RD IN 5 DAYS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Robert L. Zoll, 56, a partner in the firm of Charles H. Bean & Co., stock brokers, committed suicide late yesterday in the basement of the company's offices, 1523 Chestnut street.

He was the third Philadelphia broker to end his life within five days. A member of the firm said the company's affairs were in excellent shape but that Zoll had been worried recently about his own financial condition.

None of the thirty or more employes of the company noticed Zoll leave the cashier's cage and start toward the basement, but they heard the shots that ended his life. Solomon Schwartz, another partner, was the first to reach Zoll's side. He was shot twice in the head. An old-fashioned revolver, which had been kept for years in the cashier's cage, was clutched in his hand.

Zoll's suicide occurred soon after that of Sydney F. Tyler Brock, junior partner in the investment firm of Reilly, Brock & Co., who killed himself yesterday. Brock's senior partner, George K. Reilly, shot himself at his Ardmore home last Thursday.

'ARMY' TO USE CLOSED CLUB

Judge R. M. Gibson, in Federal Court today, signed a decree removing a padlock from the property formerly occupied by the Scandinavian Odin Social, Beneficial and Protective Association in Erie.

A. W. Mitchell, president of the Erie Salvation Army board, said the Army had purchased the property as a barracks, but was unable to occupy it while the padlock order stood. Louis E. Graham, United States attorney, and Robert S. Krause, deputy prohibition administrator, assented to the removal of the ban.

The Scandinavian club was fined $1,000 for violation of the liquor laws last April and the place was ordered padlocked for a year.

2 Fined $500 Each For Possessing Still

Thomas Slat and Joseph Olswski, of the Strip district, were fined $500 each by Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court today, charged with possessing a 150-gallon still. They were found guilty last December 9.

Voters in Chicago Must be Slim And Speedy

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Chicago's really earnest voters are going in for reducing exercises and mental gymnastics.

They are training to overcome the hazards of the latest in voting machinery—booths just 32 inches square, lighted by a candle, in which must be handled four ballots with total area of 1,857 square inches containing 199 names and 22 assorted propositions and questions of public policy.

All these choices and decisions must be made in just five minutes. Fast readers have tried it out and declare 18 minutes are required to read the four ballots.

WOMAN MOVIE WRITER TO WED

Miss King, for many years identified with studios here as a leading scenarist, is the widow of John Griffith Wray, one of Hollywood's pioneer picture directors.

The marriage will culminate a romance begun several months ago when Miss King went to the Hawaiian Islands on a vacation. She met Boyd at Honolulu, where he had gone on business. The couple plan a honeymoon in Spain early next year.

School Offers Added Traffic Essay Prizes

Teachers in the Allegheny Vocational School, to further interest in the fourth annual essay contest of the Beher Traffic Committee, will conduct a similar contest in their school, according to E. W. Case, principal. Any pupil receiving first prize in either of the two divisions will be awarded $5, and any pupil placing in either division will be awarded a ticket to one of the local college football games or the equivalent in money.

Case announced that one-third of the students in his school are studying automotive mechanics.

Hearings Shifted For Court Repairs

Beginning tomorrow morning, Center Avenue Police Court hearings for the following 10 days will be held at Central Station. Extensive repairs are being made at Center avenue station. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg announced that the Hill hearings will start promptly at 8:30.

DAUGHTER OF HARRISON DIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Relatives here this morning announced receipt of word that Mrs. James Robert McKee, daughter of President Benjamin Harrison, died early today at her home, Berkeley Lodge in Greenwich, Connecticut.

Mrs. McKee was Miss Mary Scott Harrison, only daughter of the former president and his first wife, Carolina Scott Harrison. She had been ill since the middle of February when she underwent an operation in New York.

For many years she was a prominent figure in charity and club circles in New York and Indianapolis. Before her marriage she was known as one of the belles in Washington society. With her children she stayed at the White House for the greater part of her father's regime as president, and was mistress of the mansion during her mother's illness and after her death.

She was the cause of a storm of criticism before her mother's illness by inspiring the first dance to be held in the executive mansion. At that time such frivolous entertainment was considered by many too undignified for the presidential home.

Sculptor Orders Diary Destroyed

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A diary kept over a period of 73 years by Edward V. Valentine, noted Virginia sculptor who died at his home here October 19, is to be consigned to flames without being read by anyone.

This disposition is provided in his will. The greater part of his estate of $110,982 is left to local institutions, friends and long-time employes.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28. —(AP.)—Sir Rabindranath Tagore, Hindu poet, philosopher and apostle of peace, is reported to be seriously ill at the home of William C. Biddle in Lansdowne, a suburb.

Laughlin's Dog Ruffles Calm Of Royalty

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—An account of how an Irish terrier dog named Scamp recently ruffled the quiet life of the royal household of Spain and brought the highest Spanish officials into a search for him was recounted by Irwin B. Laughlin, of Pittsburgh, American ambassador to Madrid, who has returned here for conferences with State Department officials.

The dog, owned by the ambassador's daughter, Gertrude, ran away on the "parda" when a rabbit crossed his path. The dog gave chase into the palace grounds and was not found at dusk. An appeal by the ambassador to palace officials resulted in a temporary suspension of the order to police on the palace grounds that all stray dogs shall be shot. The dog was returned next day.

'RADIO DOCTOR' PUT ON TRIAL

Dr. J. E. Johnston, "radio doctor," of 6101 Penn avenue, was placed on trial in Criminal Court today on charges of obtaining money under false pretense, the outgrowth of a raid on his office by county detectives several months ago.

Esther Meising, Johnston's nurse, is also being tried as a result of the detectives' investigation of Johnston's "radio cures." Detective David Drexler said that the man used a fake radio hookup in his "cures," effected, according to Johnston's claims, in Africa and other distant points.

Johnston's practice, Drexler said, was built up on a plan which did not make it necessary for his patients to visit him for treatments. Treatments were broadcast regularly, Johnston claimed, although detectives said it would be impossible to broadcast by the outfit Johnston had in his office.

COL. J. A. LOGAN, BANKER, DIES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—James A. Logan, 51, banker and former colonel in the United States Army, died last night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Logan Rhoads. His home was in New York, where he was associated with the banking firm of Dillon, Read & Co.

He resigned from the Army in 1922 after a service record that dated back to the Spanish-American War. In 1914 he went to France as the chief of the American military mission. When America entered the war, he became assistant chief of staff, General Headquarters of A. E. F.

After the armistice he was principal assistant to Herbert Hoover in relief operations in Europe and later was European representative of the United States Grain Corporation. American representative at the Supreme Economic Council, unofficial delegate to the London conference of prime ministers in 1924 and the finance ministers' conference in 1925.

Police-Gangster Alliance Hinted

DETROIT, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Transactions of a high police official with a coal company which police describe as a "front" for a gangster organization were under scrutiny today by Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox and, supposedly, by the special crime grand jury which yesterday seized the company's records.

Commissioner Wilcox revealed one transaction after he had relieved the official, Robert A. MacPherson, deputy chief of detectives, from active duty.

Church Graduates Cradle Roll Babies

The Brookline Boulevard United Presbyterian Church, Brookline, yesterday graduated 13 babies from the Sunday School cradle roll to the beginners' department. Mrs. C. F. Brown, superintendent of the cradle roll department, was hostess to more than 40 babies and their mothers at the graduation party, the fourth annual event of its kind in the church.

BORIS, WIFE ILL, MAY QUIT SEA

SOFIA, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—King Boris of Bulgaria and his bride, former Princess Giovanna of Italy, like many another bridal couple of less exalted station who have taken to the sea for their honeymoon, have been so seasick that they may abandon their bridal yacht and complete their journey here by train.

A wireless received from the yacht Czar Ferdinand today said the ship had passed through a severe storm which, although not dangerous to the vessel, tossed the royal couple about considerably.

It was believed possible that the couple may land at Constantinople and travel the remainder of their journey by train.

QUIZ SECRETARY OF DIAMOND

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Described as a sort of private secretary to Jack (Legs) Diamond, and reported to have witnessed the shooting of Diamond in the Monticello Hotel, Robert ("Count") Miller, 35, well-known Broadway figure, was held for questioning by District Attorney Crain today.

According to Police Commissioner Mulrooney, Miller admitted having been in the hotel the day of the shooting—Sunday, October 12—but denied that he witnessed it or knew anything about it until it was all over.

Diamond himself, still a patient in Metropolitan Hospital on Welfare Island, was ordered held as a material witness in his own shooting.

Woman Charged With Killing Sailor

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Florence Silverthorn, Tia Juana, Mex., entertainer, at a preliminary hearing was held for trial without bail on a charge of murdering William Robinson, Jr., sailor, in her apartment here on the night of September 17.

GLASS MURDER ALIBI SHAKEN

DENVER, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Deep mystery still surrounds the killing of 10-year-old Leona O'Loughlin, daughter of a Denver detective, today as police continue to hammer away at the alibi of Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, 32, stepmother of the girl, who is charged with the murder.

John S. Allen, a former husband of Mrs. O'Loughlin's hairdresser, Mrs. Ethel Sparr, and a roomer in the Sparr home, was subjected to hours of questioning in an attempt to further break down Mrs. O'Loughlin's story of her whereabouts on the night of the murder.

Mrs. Sparr Sunday admitted that she had not told the truth concerning Mrs. O'Loughlin's visit to the Sparr home on the night the girl was fed ground glass, beaten over the head with a blunt instrument and thrown into a Denver park lake, according to District Attorney Earl O. Wettengel.

Pine Offers Reward To Balk Vote Fakes

OKMULGEE, Okla., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Rewards totaling $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any persons guilty of election frauds designed to deprive him of votes in the general election of November 4, have been offered by U. S. Senator W. B. Pine, Republican.

Senator Pine said his offer "is no reflection upon any honest election official in Oklahoma, and I believe most of them are honest."

BANKER'S WIFE TO PAY RANSOM

GALVA, Ill., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Pleading with authorities not to interfere and thus endanger the life of her husband, Mrs. Earl Yocum today was making preparations to pay a $50,000 ransom for the release of her millionaire banker-husband, who was kidnaped from his home here Saturday night. She cried:

"What is $50,000 compared to my husband's life?"

Mrs. Yocum implored Henry County authorities and investigators for the Illinois Bankers' Association to halt their search for the kidnaping gang, generally believed to be from Chicago.

Making all the negotiations herself, Mrs. Yocum indicated that negotiations with her husband's abductors were virtually completed and that payment of the demanded ransom would be only a matter of hours.

Second Pilot Joins Hunt for Lost Trio

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Pat Renehan, Washington-Alaska Airways pilot, hopped off here today to join in the search for Pilot Capt. E. J. A. Burke, who has been missing for two weeks in the Liard district of Northern British Columbia, with "Three Finger" Martin, noted prospector, and Emil Kading, mining engineer.

Coolidge Deems America Comparatively Well Off

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 28.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The conditions in many parts of the world ought to have a very sobering effect on the people of the United States. There are dictators in Spain, Poland and Italy. Chronic revolution has devastated China. Russia is prostrate. India is filled with unrest. Australia is in acute financial difficulties. Nearly all of South America has overturned its governments by force. Both Great Britain and Germany are feeling the pressure of heavy taxation and unemployment.

Calvin Coolidge

We cannot escape bearing some of this burden. We must face the fact that we are an integral part of the world. But because we are affected by the weakness of other people is no reason for discarding the system that has made us so strong. The credit of the nation and state governments never before stood so high. The national debt and taxes are being constantly reduced. We have some unemployment, but the Department of Labor estimates that 41,500,000 of our people are gainfully employed. Our banks are filled with money. We have met the test of adverse world conditions and completely demonstrated that fundamentally we are sound. We have the resources for any emergency. The thing for us to do is to stand firm.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Sculptor Refuses to Move Until Arch Is Finished

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—George Grey Barnard, sculptor, challenged the City of New York and the Rockefeller Foundation yesterday to put him out of his studio on "God's Thumb" until he has completed his Arch of War and Peace.

Barnard has been given notice to move by November 21 from his workshop at the top of a cliff in order that the land which John D. Rockefeller gave to the city may be converted into a park.

Barnard said, pointing to the huge uncompleted figures in marble on which he has been working for 10 years:

"I cannot move and they cannot move me. I must have three or four more years. This work I am doing is not for myself. In the end it will belong to the city. I have invested in it my time, my strength and every dollar I possess in the world."

The arch is to embody the mothers' viewpoint of war.

FAIR RATE BODY, HONEST VOTE, PINCHOT AIM

Forester Believes Getting Job More Important Than Finding Where to Drink

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second of three articles, prepared by the opposing candidates for governor of Pennsylvania, describing the issues of the campaign. In the first article, Mr. Hemphill declared self-government and repeal of the state's hose-dry law were the great issues. Mr. Pinchot replies in the following article. Tomorrow Mr. Mauser will give the Socialist viewpoint.)

By GIFFORD PINCHOT,
Republican Candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania.
Written for International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—The Republican party of Pennsylvania has taken the side of decency and the square deal in the two most conspicuous issues now before the people of the United States. One of them is the utility issue.

The principal plank in the platform upon which I was nominated is the abolition of the present Public Service Commission. This commission has been consistently unfair to the people and consistently overfair to the utilities. It must be replaced by a fair rate board, organized to give the people a square deal and to provide a square deal to the utilities from the people.

OPPOSES 'GOUGE'

By fair treatment to the utilities, I do not mean the unlimited right to gouge the public nor to earn 100 per cent or 1,000 per cent, as not uncommonly happens, upon every dollar invested in the business. But I do mean a fair and even a liberal return on the actual investment.

The second of the great issues is prohibition. My attitude toward it remains precisely what it was during my first term. The Democratic wets, and the scattering of Republican renegades who are threatening to go over to them, appear to think that the one great question which agitates the people of Pennsylvania is how to get a drink.

I am of the opinion that a far greater question, of far more consequence to many more people, is the question of how to get a job and earn a living. The present unemployment situation is not easy to solve, for it is not only state-wide and nation-wide, but world-wide, and it has many causes. I do promise, and it would be dishonest to promise more, to give my best attention to it and to recognize not only in word but in deed the vast importance of keeping all the people well fed, well clothed and well employed.

CLEAN UP ELECTIONS

There is another issue in this campaign of the tremendous importance to the people. No one thing is more essential to the permanent success of the Republican party in Pennsylvania, or more important to the Republican party in the nation, than a complete cleanup of election conditions in the leading Republican state. However much local pride may shy at an acknowledgement of the actual facts, the truth is and we all know it, that elections in certain parts of Pennsylvania are notoriously crooked, have long been crooked and will continue to be crooked until the law abiding citizens of the state rise up and call a halt.

One of the foremost duties of the next administration will be to secure the introduction of clean election bills in the Legislature and leave no stone unturned until they are passed. The vast majority of the voters of this state are sick and tired, and rightly so, of election corruption. The time for a cleanup has come.

WON'T PLAY GAME

Certain disgruntled political leaders, incited and supported by certain public utilities, are refusing to abide by the rules of the game and accept the decision of the voters in the Republican primary. With no regard for party or principle, but driven by the desire of their masters to control the government, they purpose to bring about the election of a wet Democrat. The defection of these masqueraders is neither respectable nor important. It will be made good, and more than good, by thousands of Democratic voters, who refuse to approve the alliance between the worst elements of their party and the worst elements of ours.

The platform upon which I run, including its public utility and clean election planks, was approved by the Republican party when it nominated me. The Republican party is as much bound by it as I am myself. I reiterate my pledge to use the full power of the governorship to carry out the planks of that platform, and I call upon every Republican, loyal to the party, to help me in carrying out this pledge.

Witness Arrested For Changing Story

Mrs. Bertha Williams, 33, Negro, of 2932 Spring way, was held over by Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court today after detectives told him she changed her story as a witness in Criminal Court yesterday in the murder trial of William Cobb, Jr., Negro.

Destroyer Rescues Flier From Ocean

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The rescue by the destroyer Trever of Lieut. Felix F. Baker, Navy aviator, of Homestead, Okla., who dropped into the Pacific with a parachute after his land plane caught fire at 5,000 feet yesterday, was reported today to the Navy Department.

Ban on Corn Shock As Halloween Decoration

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The traditional corn shock will be missing from Halloween dances and parties in Lancaster this year.

An order banning corn shocks as decorations was issued by Fire Chief Frank Deen on the grounds that the shocks will present a great fire hazard because of the drought.

Several theaters and dance halls which had already been decorated with shocks were ordered to remove them.

SEES CIVIL WAR OVER DRY LAW

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Prediction that America is confronted with an imminent internecine strife in the form of a wet-and-dry civil war or a revolution unless the Eighteenth Amendment is stricken from the Constitution was made today by Ralph Beaver Strassburger, wealthy Norristown publisher.

Strassburger's prophecy was embodied in a formal statement following his return from France, where he was created a chevalier of the Legion of Honor for promoting cordial relations between France and America.

He asked:

"How much longer are we going to shut our eyes to the fact that if we persist in our attitude of letting prohibition take care of itself we are bound to face a new civil war or a revolution? Election day should register our unshakable opposition to the present scandalous conditions.

"On account of prohibition we have become the laughing stock of the world. Corruption and organized crime has become luxuriant in our midst."

plied, and supplied overwhelmingly, time and again. The fact that more than 122,000 errors were uncovered in the opening of 550 ballot boxes last summer amounts to a conclusive demonstration, especially when we remember that a great majority of these errors resulted to the advantage of the Philadelphia gang.

"Pennsylvania has been disgraced long enough by crooked registration, the theft of votes, and the general attempt to nullify the honest ballots of honest electors, up the state, for which the Philadelphia gang is responsible. This is just as good a time as any other to stop it—and stop it short."

Hoover Spokesman To Urge 'Ticket' Vote

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Representative Franklin W. Fort, friend of President Hoover and considered in many political quarters as one of his spokesmen, last night said he will speak "for the entire Republican ticket of Pennsylvania" when he addresses a political gathering in Monroe County, Pennsylvania, tonight. Fort recently conferred with the President on the Pennsylvania situation.

Fort last night said definitely he would ask election of the entire G. O. P. slate.

Democratic Judge Supports Pinchot

CLARION, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Judge Frank L. Harvey, of the Clarion County Courts, who was elected on the Democratic ticket, today made public his indorsement of Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor. He said:

"It is not a question of politics, it is a question of true patriotism, love for my country and county and its welfare."

Judge Harvey said he was in favor of prohibition.

Woman's Apartment Robbed, $877 Taken

City detectives today were investigating the robbery of the apartment of Mrs. Julius Leubkeit, 1010 North Lincoln avenue, after the woman reported the theft of a purse containing $877 from a cabinet drawer.

HEMPHILL OUT FOR OLD AGE PENSIONS

'Cheaper Than Almshouses,' Says Nominee, Resuming Stumping Tour of State

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Pledging his aid to the cause of old age pensions, John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal candidate for governor, resumed his stumping tour here last night.

Hemphill said it was his opinion that old and indigent persons can be supported through state pensions "as economically and sometimes more so" than by the present almshouse system.

Pensions, Insurance Changes, Pinchot Aim

In a radio address over WJAS last night, Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, pledged himself to work, when elected, for an old age pension measure that would pass constitutional tests and to work for an amendment to the workmen's compensation act that would provide state assistance for workers that fall victims of occupational diseases. He said:

"When I was governor before, I signed a legislative measure designed to create an old age pension system in Pennsylvania. I visioned the outlawing of the present harsh system under which aged men and women, coming to the closing years of their lives, are forced to become inmates of almshouses because they have not the worldly wealth to sustain themselves.

"Almshouses would go, and with them the heavy costs that fall upon the various counties for their maintenance. And we would have no more sordid scandals arising from the mismanagement of such institutions.

"Other countries and other states have wiped out this system, but we have still to make the first forward step."

Concerning an amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act that would provide state aid for victims of occupational diseases, Pinchot said:

"If we admit, and we do, that a worker who is injured physically while on his job is entitled to compensation, then we must take the next step and see to it that the victim of disease contracted in the course of employment likewise receives compensation."

Democratic women of Allegheny County will be hosts at a reception in the William Penn Hotel at 4 p. m. tomorrow to Mrs. Kistler, Mrs. Hemphill and Mrs. Winston.

Mrs. Carroll Miller, who seconded the nomination of Al Smith for president at two Democratic national conventions, delivered a broadcast last night over WCAE in support of Hemphill.

The report of Mrs. Miller's radio address as sent out by the Liberal party's publicity bureau quotes her as advocating repeal of the prohibition law, although no mention is made of support for Kistler, who if elected senator would have more of a voice on prohibition legislation than would Hemphill as governor.

LAUD HEMPHILL

Assistant County Solicitor B. B. McGinnis addressed the noon meeting yesterday in Democratic headquarters, 334 Fourth avenue, urging support of Hemphill.

Hemphill's qualifications were extolled yesterday in statements by Gordon Fisher, president of Spang, Chalfant & Co. and vice president of the Pennsylvania Trust Company; George T. Ladd, president of the United Engineering and Foundry Company, and Francis S. Guthrie, insurance broker and civic leader.

Boardman Abandons Trans-Atlantic Hop

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Plans of Russel Boardman, Boston flier, to span the Atlantic were definitely abandoned for the year today. Boardman said he hoped to fly from New York to London in 1931.

PINCHOT LEAVES FOR EASTERN FRONT

Will Invade Philadelphia To Wind Up Campaign; Praises Workers Here

Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, today invaded the "storm area," Philadelphia, after winding up his Western Pennsylvania campaign with two big meetings here last night.

Hopping from the banquet of the Roosevelt Memorial Association in the William Penn Hotel last night, he made his final address to political lieutenants of the Tenth and Thirteenth Legislative districts in the Hotel Henry. He expressed appreciation for the work of the local Republican leaders. He said:

"I have seen many wonderful meetings in this campaign but this one beats them all. I leave here glad that I have your support, feeling it will be one of the most important factors in achieving what we all are trying for—whip the Philadelphia gang.

IMPRESSED HERE

"What I have seen in Allegheny County gives me profound satisfaction; workers, under the guidance of leaders, filled with vim and snap. I know many of you were not for me in the primary. That was perfectly all right, just as it was all right for my friends to be for me. However, now we are all loyal Republicans and I feel sure the whole ticket from top to bottom will be elected."

Other speakers declared almost without exception they had been against Pinchot in the primary, but now since he had "won fairly" they would vote and work for his election. The speakers included Judge James B. Drew, Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, Assistant District Attorney George F. Langfitt representing District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Coroner W. J. McGregor, Col. J. L. Costello, representing Recorder of Deeds Samuel D. Foster and Prothonotary John Vogt.

SCHEDULED RALLIES

The East End Council of Republican Women will meet tonight in East Liberty Carnegie Library. Voters from the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Wards will attend. Mrs. Evelyn R. Payne, president of the council, will preside.

Workers of the Twenty-eighth Ward will meet tonight in the home of the chairman, E. Boyd Birch. Mrs. Theodore L. Brown, vice chairman, will preside. Coraopolis committeemen and women will meet tonight in the borough municipal building. Voters from Neville, Moon, Findley, Robinson, Crescent, and North and South Fayette townships will attend. Scheduled speakers include Judge W. Heber Dithrich, State Senator Frank J. Harris, David B. Johns and Horace J. Thomas, F. C. Gangloff, nominee for the legislature, will preside.

A rally will be held tomorrow night in Buckingham Hall, State Highway Route No. 72, Hampton Township, for workers of Hampton, Ross, Shaler, McCandless, Pine, East Deer, West Deer, Indiana, Frazier and Fawn townships. Scheduled speakers include Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Mrs. Laura Hannau, vice chairman of the county committee; Mrs. Lois Downs McBride, vice chairman of Pinchot's primary campaign; State Senator Herman P. Brandt; Louis A. Hagmaier, and T. W. Neely, nominee for the legislature, and John A. Schrader, chairman of the Thirteenth Legislative District.

POLITICAL TEA

Women of the Twenty-sixth Ward will attend a political tea tomorrow in the home of Mrs. A. J. Wehner, Essen street. Mrs. Nell Bartley will give a tea Saturday in her home, 405 South Pacific avenue to Eighth Ward women.

CALLS PINCHOT GRUNDY 'TOOL'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—William J. Higgins, of the Typographical Union, in addressing a rally at Liberal Party headquarters here asserted that Senator Joseph R. Grundy was the "arch enemy of organized labor and that Pennsylvania labor would not stand for Grundyism." He said:

"Now we are out to smash Grundy's hired man, Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor. Organized labor will repudiate Mr. Pinchot at the coming election in the same forceful fashion that it downed Mr. Grundy last spring."

Other speakers included Herbert Spieser, former assistant district attorney, and Randolph W. Childs, city chairman of the Liberal party, which is supporting John Hemphill for governor. Spieser said:

"I am amazed that Mr. Pinchot has the effrontery to denounce Philadelphia in the open way he has and then mail letters to residents of this city in which he says, 'I am your friend.' Brutus said the same thing to Caesar just before he stuck the knife in his back."

Shots From Passing Auto Kill Chauffeur

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Joseph F. Fuereman, 40, a chauffeur, was hit by several bullets fired from an automobile as he stood in West One Hundred and Seventy-fourth treet, the Bronx, last night, and died before he could be questioned about the shooting.

Declares Atterbury Stand Costs His Road Fares

The Pennsylvania Railroad has lost passenger revenue because its president, W. W. Atterbury, was anti-dry and reported opposing Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, according to Charles E. Smith, endowment secretary of Drake University, Des Moines, Ia.

Smith addressed the following letter, October 25, to C. I. Leeper, general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania at Pittsburgh:

"Corporations often assume that church people are vocal, sleepy and unpractical. Often this is true, but here is a rather large illustration to the contrary.

"Last week the Churches of Christ closed their National World Conventions at Washington, D. C., with 7,500 registered delegates and probably 12,000 in attendance from 35 countries representing about 2,000,000 members; three-fourths of whom live in the United States and Canada.

"Visiting Los Angeles railroad offices early in this month, I was surprised to learn according to national newspaper agencies, that your preseident, W. W. Atterbury, was wet and would not support Gifford Pinchot in the coming election.

"I was further informed that as a consequence, all delegates of our churches in California were routing themselves over the B. and O. from Chicago to St. Louis. At the convention it was discovered that the Western and and Northwestern delegates were so diverted.

"Being a former Pennsylvania citizen, contact with Pennsylvania Railroad employes convinces me that countless thousands of them are angered at the stand of President Atterbury inasmuch as the employes of the railroad are not allowed to drink on or off duty.

"I have had many courtesies from your splendid road and I am very sorry that it should have forfeited its share of patronage to these conventions. I will be just as resentful of this inconsistency at the polls on November 4."

CARNEGIE STEEL MEN HONORED

I. Lamont Hughes and Sidney Dillon, president and assistant to the vice president respectively of the Carnegie Steel Company, were honored at a testimonial dinner last night in the Edgewood Country Club. The men were advanced to their new positions within the last month. Both are natives of Braddock. The dinner was tendered by Braddock merchants, friends and business associates.

Among the speakers were Congressman Clyde Kelly, O. J. H. Hartauff, general superintendent of the Edgar Thomson Steel Company at Braddock, and James P. Lose, general superintendent of the Homestead Steel Company. Hughes and Dillon responded. E. C. Striebich was chairman and toastmaster. Hughes and Dillon were presented with gifts. More than 250 were present.

2 YEARS, $5,000 RUM PENALTY

Declaring that a previous prison term had not served as a deterrent, Federal Judge Nelson McVicar pronounced sentence of a $5,000 fine and costs, and two years in the Atlanta penitentiary, upon Stanley Dobkowski, of Erie. Dobkowski was convicted at the September term of Federal Court in Erie, of conspiring to violate the national prohibition law. His counsel said an appeal would be made to the United States Circuit Court.

Dobkowski in 1927 was convicted and given an 18-months term in the Atlanta penitentiary on a liquor charge. Soon after his release in February, 1929, he again was arrested and convicted. This time he sought a new trial on the ground that his case had been prejudiced by an Erie newspaper. The court denied his motion.

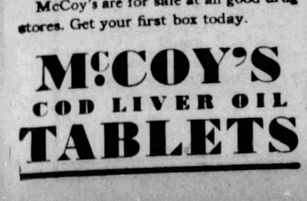
MRS. L HATED COD LIVER OIL



Now, thanks to McCOY'S tasteless tablets, she wards off sickness pleasantly

MRS. L was constantly troubled with stubborn colds. She tried every remedy she could find. Nothing helped her. Desperate at last she asked her doctor what to do, and the doctor recommended the regular use of cod liver oil.

She tried it, and sure enough she rid herself of those bothersome annoying colds. But that dose of oil three times a day was awful. Sometimes it even made her sick.

Then Mrs. L heard about McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets. Eagerly she went to her druggist and bought a box. She used them regularly for several weeks. She continued to get all the benefits of cod liver oil without putting up with that nasty fishy taste.

Two of these wonderful tablets contain all the vitamins you get in a whole spoonful of cod liver oil—they'll do everything for you that cod liver oil can do. Extensive tests prove this to be so. That's why the Good Housekeeping Institute has given these tablets its seal of approval. That's why so many doctors widely recommend them.

PRAISE HEARST CAMPAIGN FOR U. S. DEFENSE

Navy Day Speakers Declare Newspapers' Patriotic Stand Deserves Support

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—William Randolph Hearst was praised for the patriotic campaigns for an adequate national defense conducted by his newspapers, at a Navy Day meeting of the National Patriotic Council here last night.

Members of the council were told by Lieut. L. S. Perry U. S. N., that lack of sympathetic understanding in times of peace does more harm to the American Navy than actual warfare.

Rexford L. Holmes, secretary of the council, said:

"I want to take this opportunity to voice my warm admiration of the patriotic work done by Mr. William Randolph Hearst in campaigning for an adequate national defense.

"He deserves the support of this council and other patriotic organizations in his campaign to secure a Navy for the United States which will be able to protect our shores and our commerce.

"He has never failed to lend sympathetic attention to the needs of our Navy and has fought against all attempts to cripple it and make it inferior to the navies of foreign powers."

Mrs. Cornelia Ross Potts, president of the council, also expressed admiration of the patriotism of Mr. Heart and said she had found the campaigns conducted by his newspapers of great value while she was stressing the need of preparedness for national defense and opposition to Communism on Capitol Hill.

King Carol Made Rumanian Marshal

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—King Carol has been made a marshal of Rumania by the war minister at the conclusion of the autumnal army maneuvers at Sighischoarr. The 50,000 troops assembled cheered as the king was invested with his new rank and was acclaimed as the first Rumanian king who was born in this country.

The previous kings, King Carol's father and uncle, were Germans.

RECEIVER PLEA ACCUSES BOB

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—In a bankruptcy petition on file today in Federal Court against Charles V. Bob & Co., by three creditors, who asked appointment of a receiver, a charge of absconding was made, based on "allegation and belief."

The document accused Bob and his associate, Louis P. Jubien, of removing and concealing assets "with intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors." It was charged they placed large sums "in banks or places outside of New York."

This latest development in the $12,000,000 Bob mystery revealed these as the petitioning creditors:

P. H. Whiting & Co., Inc., claiming $2,372; A. B. Collins & Co., of Kansas City, Mo., with a bill for $7,391, and Benjamin T. Gilbert, of Utica, demanding $100 on an assigned claim of the New York Investing Corporation.

All three items were based on sales of stock of Metals and Mining, Inc., the petitioners relating they received no commission, though they were to have $1.25 a share.

Kindles Fire, Halts Train, Saves Auto

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Joseph H. McNally, part owner of the New York Giants, is a convert to the belief that necessity not only is the mother of invention but the father of inspiration.

Crossing the Long Island Railroad tracks on the outskirts of Bluepoint, N. Y., last night McNally's automobile skidded and straddled the rails. While vainly trying to dislodge it, he heard the whistle of a New York bound train. Hurriedly gathering a pile of leaves, he lit a fire which brought the train to a halt 250 feet from the car.

Ballot Box Urged As Aid to Business

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—If Americans would devote as much care to selecting their public officials as they do to running their business, they would avoid economic depressions, in the opinion of James S. Kemper, president of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies, who spoke today at the opening session of the organization's fourteenth annual convention here.

Suspect Confesses Pawn Shop Theft

Charles Perry, 27, Negro, no home, was held for court by Magistrate Leo Rohenberg in Central Police Court today on a charge of entering and larceny.

He admitted breaking a show case at the pawn shop of Abe Lippard, 823 Wylie avenue, and taking jewelry valued at $150 and a flute. Perry was released from the workhouse on October 17.

First Rubber Plane Soon Ready for Test

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Two enterprising men here are constructing the first rubber airplane and expect to have it ready to fly in a month. The airplane will weigh about 125 pounds, and its builders believe it can be manufactured in quantity to sell for about $200. The first tests will be as a glider and if successful a small motor will be installed.

China Diplomats Act To Combat Outlawry

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The diplomatic corps here will meet as a body shortly to consider joint action to protect foreign life and property along the Yangtse River, due to the increasing menace of outlaws in major ports, it was announced today.

BECHTEL, EARLY FILM STAR, DIES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—William A. (Billy) Bechtel, 63, reputed to have been the first motion picture player recruited from the stage, died after a brief illness.

Born in Germany, Bechtel came to the United States with an English repertoire company and for a time was Lillian Russell's leading man. The old Edison company persuaded Bechtel to desert the footlights for the screen in 1907. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jenny Bechtel, former actress.

Straus, Jr. Serves As Zionist Chairman

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Nathan Straus, Jr., today took over the work of vice chairman of the Zionist emergency fund to combat the new British policy in Palestine. He will serve for his father, who is ill.

Mistreated Wife Also Misquoted; Husband Fined

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Since Polish interpreters are not included on the staff of Evanston's municipal courts, it seemed rather decent of Roman Puszkiewicz to tell the judge what his wife was saying.

"She says," volunteered the husband, "that she wants me to leave home."

"Wait a minute," called a voice from the back of the room, and Detective A. E. Frey stepped up to announce that he, too, could understand Polish.

"What she said," he told the court, "was that she wants him to get the limit for beating her. She says she has had him arrested many times before."

The fine was $200 and costs.

NEW TO SERVE 36-YEAR TERM

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Harry S. New, reputed son of the former postmaster general of the United States, must serve 36 years in San Quentin prison, according to the ruling of the parole board.

New was convicted of the murder of his sweetheart, Freda Lesser, July 4, 1919, at Los Angeles.

The parole board pointed out it was possible that New might receive 10 years off of his sentence for good behavior.

Settlement Gives Halloween Parties

The Irene Kaufmann Settlement will hold the first of a series of Halloween parties for members tonight, when intermediates, seniors and adults meet in its Mirror ballroom. Friday night, secondaries and midgets and junior members will be feted.

Council Approves Miniature Golf In Home Zones

An ordinance giving the Zoning Board of Adjustment authority to permit installation of miniature golf courses, indoor and outdoor, in residential districts, was approved yesterday by Council. Robert Garland voted "no," but was overruled by seven other members present.

Assistant City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner presented a ruling to the effect that, as the ordinance had been disapproved by the zoning board, seven votes were needed for its passage.

Child Home Society Appoints Secretary

The Rev. Charles T. Murdock, 4357 Murray avenue, has been appointed field secretary of the Children's Homes Society of Pennsylvania. The society is a child-placing institution operating throughout Pennsylvania.

HINT BONUS PAID TO KILL AIELLO

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A bonus of $10,000 was paid to the assassins of Joe Aiello, wealthy gang leader, slain by machine gunners last Thursday, detectives investigating the murder believed today.

Detective Sergts. Rocco Feletti and William Balzano said they had facts to support their theory that the killers were kept on a gang payroll at $100 a week and received the bonus after the slaying.

Pasquale Prestogiacomo, from whose home Aiello stepped into the fire of machine gun nests, was subjected to a long questioning last night in the belief he knows more of the slaying than he has revealed. He was surrendered by his attorney yesterday and locked up after last night's questioning for further examination.

CHOIR TO LEAD LUTHERANS

One hundred and fifty of the best voices in Pittsburgh's Lutheran churches will comprise the Pittsburgh Lutheran Chorus which will sing in Syria Mosque at a reformation mass meeting and demonstration of the Lutheran churches of Western Pennsylvania next Sunday. The meeting will celebrate 400 years of Lutheranism.

The Rev. Dr. Walter Schuette, president of the eastern district of the American Lutheran Church, will address the group on "The Great Confession's Vitality." At a simultaneous meeting in Carnegie Music Hall, Oakland, the Rev. A. G. Merkens, First Trinity Church, will speak on "Follow the Fathers." All Lutheran churches in this district will suspend services Sunday night, it is said, that their congregations may attend.

Five Autoists Hurt When Car Upsets

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 28.—Five people returning from Pittsburgh received slight injuries when their auto overturned on the Mercer highway as the driver swerved the machine to avoid hitting a car parked without lights in the center of the road. The injured were A. A. McCamant, the driver; Mrs. McCamant and Miss Eleanor Sowers, of Sharon, and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sampson, of Struthers, Ohio.

Pupils to Attend Auto Victim's Rites

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 28.—The sixth grade of Patterson Heights School will dismiss tomorrow afternoon so schoolmates of Harry Miller, 12, killed by a hit-run driver, may attend the funeral services. Helen Miller, 6, a sister, was cut and bruised by the car, which swerved from the Darlington road as the boy and girl were returning from an errand.

TIRED?
Then Try This

An electric cabinet bath will take that tiredness away — all you do is seat yourself in this cabinet full of electric bulbs going full force —your head protruding out of a hole into the top—just relax and sweat away that tired feeling. It's good for the nerves—quiets them and your muscles are given the exercise that they haven't been getting. Boy! does it give you back that lost appetite—well you just try it. The poisons in your system are taken out and your complexion is clear and fresh.

Ultra-Violet Ray
SUN BATHS
Science's artificial sunlight gives the body violet rays which is really food for it. Try one after a cabinet bath —it's really good.

(Left) Copy of Bruyere's grosgrain-trimmed dress, in brown or black with the ribbon trimming in Heaven blue. $35.

In the Sports Manner

The scene at the hunt club, at the football games, and at country house week-ends, will be smartly enlivened by the new frocks of wool and of silk, just brought out by The Sportswear Shop.

Schiaparelli's tie-on frock of sheer tweed combined with silk crepe. Lucile Paray's two-piece model copied in wool crepe. Patou's latest peplum frock, Chanel's jigsaw model, and the distracting Marcel Rochas two-color frock, all reproduced in silk crepes.

. . . This is only half the story, for there is case after case filled with bright, new frocks for misses and women, at $16.75, $25, $35 to $45.

. . . Horne's, Second Floor . . .

Violets Embroidered on Purple-Ink Frocks

. . . And dainty blue flowers with green leaves, embroidered on black frocks, flowers in a delicate pink on frocks in black or navy, and conventionalized designs in red-white-and-green on frocks in deep wine shade.

. . . That is the new way that finely wrought Beauvais embroidery is used on a collection of women's silk crepe frocks for town and luncheon wear.

There are four delightful models, especially becoming to those women who don't want to look like debutantes and yet like clothes which flatter them by making them look younger than they are.

Priced $49.50.

The Finest Pittsburgh Display of American Oriental Rugs

If beauty, above all else, is your requirement in a rug, you would choose an American Oriental, even without the knowledge that its price was startlingly low.

The famed beauty of Oriental rugs . . . the sheen and rich hues of Persian rose, of copper, of old blues we long believed were to be found only in hand-woven rugs . . . the deep pile that tells an Oriental rug the minute you touch it—these are the very qualities found in American Orientals.

Horne's selection of these rugs is large—including rugs in small mat size or large 11.3x15-foot sizes—and every one of them was selected because it reproduced the pattern and the beauty of a real Oriental rug.

For a feast of beauty, we recommend these American Oriental rugs!

9x12-ft. Rugs are priced from $125 to $195.

RULES

Proper nouns, slang and words that offend good taste cannot be used. SCORING: The first and last letters of each word do not count as strokes. A longer or shorter word can be substituted, but at a penalty. If a longer word is used, each letter above par counts as a stroke; if a shorter word is used, each letter below par counts as a stroke. If player cannot insert a suitable word, add 3 strokes to par for hole and proceed to next hole.

CLUES

1—To examine books and accounts.
2—That which is transcribed.
3—Sorrowful.
4—A pillow.
5—New; unusual.
6—Conspicuous object on land that serves as a guide.
7—Cloth for soldiers' uniforms.
8—The very same.
9—To wail; to mourn.
10—Slightly blue.
11—Toward home.
12—To degrade.
13—Pertaining to the east.
14—Pertaining to birth.
15—A washerwoman.
16—That which is seen.
17—Possessing talent.
18—A dredging machine.

The solution to this puzzle can be found on page 17.

URGES RELEASE OF VETS' FUNDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—G. W. Fagan, a World War veteran of Reading, Pa., has suggested to President Hoover and Representative C. J. Esterly that the government make immediately available benefits guaranteed in the adjusted compensation certificate act, which was passed in 1927.

The adjusted compensation act carried graduated payments which would mature at the end of 20 years. The principal was computed at $1 a day for each day served at home during the war and $1.25 a day for service in the American Expeditionary Forces.

Fagan made the suggestion as a probable relief for World War veterans who may be unemployed at present and in need of cash.

BOMB SLAYER GETS LIFE

EBENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 28.—A life sentence was imposed upon Perry C. Langham, of Hillsdale, Indiana County, who recently pleaded guilty to dynamiting the home of his wife at Emeigh Run, Cambria County, killing two of his children. The Langham home was destroyed July 22. The children fatally injured were aged 6 years and 18 months respectively.

Perry Langham

Joseph Parse, of Johnstown, was given the death penalty in court here today after admitting he was guilty of complicity in the murder of Louis Hoffman several years ago. The court also imposed a life sentence on Daniel Snyder, of Johnstown, who pleaded guilty to killing his wife, Hazel Miller Snyder, at the home of her brother in Johnstown last June 3.

AUTO FIRM HEAD FOUND SHOT

Business worries were hinted by deputy coroners today as a probable motive in the alleged suicide last night of Larry H. Rutherford, 40, of 5662 Beacon street, who conducted the L. H. Rutherford Automobile Agency at 407 South Craig street.

A shotgun at his side, Rutherford's body was found in bed by his wife, Mrs. Rutherford was quoted as telling deputy coroners that her husband came home about 6 p. m., made a telephone call and then went to his bedroom. A short time later Mrs. Rutherford said she heard a shot. Believing the noise an automobile backfire, Mrs. Rutherford continued preparing the evening meal. When she went to the husband's bedroom she found him. Rutherford was believed to have placed the barrel of the gun in his mouth and then pressed the trigger.

HAWKS TO SEEK N. Y.-CUBA MARK

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Capt. Frank Hawks, who recently broke Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's cross-country flight record, plans an attempt to cut in half the flying record from New York to Havana, Cuba, he has announced.

Capt. Hawks said he would take off as soon as he got permission from the Cuban government to land there, and as soon as weather conditions were favorable. He is to fly by way of Columbia, S. C., Miami, Fla., and the Florida Keys.

Using the same plane with which he broke the cross-country flight record, Capt. Hawks hopes to fly the 1,400 miles to Havana in seven hours.

Girl Flier Nearly Equals Hawks' Mark

Officials of the National Aeronautic Association said she had come close to equaling the Philadelphia-New York time of Capt. Frank Hawks, who recently flew from Camden to North Beach in 21 minutes.

Reduction Co. Audit Cost Before Council

A bill appropriating $5,000 for part payment for an audit made of the books of the American Reduction Company was to be considered by Council today. The audit is in connection with the city's action against the company, following the charge of former Controller Henry Oliver Evans that the city has a claim of approximately $1,000,000 against the concern.

The audit is being made by Collins McLean Company. The case is pending in the courts.

WIFE'S CHARGES DRAW $25 FINE

Frank Kalek, 42, of 2432 South Eighteenth street, who said he was a customs house guard in New York, was fined $25 or 30 days in the workhouse by Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court today.

His wife, mother of five children, testified he had returned home October 9 and mistreated her. He denied the charges, saying his wife threw salt and pepper in his eyes.

Rumania Prepares To Greet Pershing

BUCHAREST, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Rumanian delegates to the recent "Fidac" congress of World War veterans in the United States announced that Gen. John J. Pershing had promised to visit Rumania in November. Great preparations are being made to give the American general a suitable welcome.

Wife of Crowell, Author, Wins Divorce

RENO, Nev., Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Mary Crowell won a divorce here from Merle Crowell, well-known magazine writer and editor. Extreme cruelty was alleged, and custody of their children was awarded the wife by the divorce. They were married in Benton, N. H., in September, 1920.

I Was Skinny, Run-down. Gained 34 lbs in Few Weeks

"I was so skinny and run-down friends thought I had a fatal disease. At last I tried Ironized Yeast and gained 34 lbs. in few weeks."—Paul Blanch.

"Skinny," weak, nervous people are delighted as new Ironized Yeast adds 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 weeks. Changes "scarecrow" body quick to strong, well-developed form. Blotchy skin clears like magic. Nervousness, indigestion, constipation end overnight. Sound sleep, pep quick.

Two great tonics in one—special weight-building Brewer's Yeast and strengthening Iron. Pleasant little tablets. Far stronger than unmedicated yeast. Results in ½ time. No yeasty taste, no gas.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Hoot of Owl Brings Death to Youth, 19

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The hooting of an owl resulted in the death of 19-year-old Robert Macey.

The youth and his brother-in-law, Keith Radcliffe, 27, living in the northeast part of the city, heard the owl, and the younger boy seized a rifle and flashlight and went to the porch to shoot the bird.

Passing the flashlight to Radcliffe, the youth dropped the rifle, which discharged as it struck the ground. The bullet passed through his head.

IS PINCHOT A REPUBLICAN?

Mr. Pinchot said the following in a letter signed by him:

"I am not a Republican, and I am not a Progressive-Republican. Neither am I headed back toward the Republican Party, either all the way or half way.

I am a Progressive, straight, and I propose to act with other Progressives to keep our Party as it is today, the determinating factor in politics, both in Pennsylvania and in the Nation."

REPUBLICANS NEED NOT FEAR THAT THEY WILL LOSE THEIR PARTY STATUS BY VOTING FOR

HEMPHILL for GOVERNOR

JOHN M. HEMPHILL SAFE-SANE-SOUND

At this critical time, the promotion and stabilization of employment and industry and the safeguarding of public welfare is the most important issue before Pennsylvania. John M. Hemphill is a sane, conservative and constructive leader, the SAFE candidate for the office of Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Under the law you can mark your ballot in the Republican Party column and also vote for Mr. Hemphill for Governor, thus voting for all Republican candidates except Mr. Pinchot.

BRITISH BEGIN R-101 INQUIRY

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—With a beautifully executed model of the airship R-101 suspended before their eyes as a poignant reminder of one of history's greatest air tragedies, a solemn committee of inquiry assembled at the Institute of Engineers here today to investigate the causes of the dirigible's tragic crash on a hillside near Beauvais, France.

The model, especially designed for the Antwerp exposition, was hastily requisitioned for the purposes of the inquiry. It was hung on wires from the rafters of the great hall of the institute building, where the committee gathered under the chairmanship of Sir John Simon to begin their investigation into the tragedy which cost 48 lives.

Appointment of Sir John Simon, one of Britain's most brilliant legal minds, as chairman of the inquiry indicates that the British government will not tolerate a "whitewash" verdict.

Euchre Players Must Pay Janitor

BARTON, O., Oct. 28.—The office of Justice of the Peace Robert M. Simpson, which is a center for men of the town, has a new sign. It reads:

"Hereafter and until further notice, euchre players who are 'skunked' while playing here will be required to forfeit and pay five cents each into a fund to pay for the cleaning. Parties refusing to abide by this rule are barred from further playing."

Train Crashes Line Of Traffic, 6 Hurt

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—An investigation was under way today to determine whether watchmen were on duty when a New York Central flier crashed into a line of traffic here late yesterday, wrecking an automobile and a bus and injuring six persons. Two of the injured were in a serious condition.

TEACHER TELLS OF KIDNAPING

PALMYRA, Mo., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A story of having been bound blindfolded and gagged, and left on a railroad track to die, was told last night by Horace Hansborough, a young Palmyra school teacher.

Hansborough told police that as he was driving home from Fabius Community School, where he teaches, four men leaped to the running board, bound him, drove him around several hours, then left him in his auto on the track an hour before a freight train was due to pass. He wriggled out of the car to the ground and lay there, unable because of the blindfold to be sure he was safely clear of the track, he related.

A short time later he was found by Ed Strate, a farmer.

The teacher said he had received a threatening letter a week ago ordering him to leave.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

The LOUDSPEAKER

Precious Speech, McNamee Natural. | Slang in Webster, Pep in Football.

By LOUIS REID

Louis Reid

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The catty phrase of the day, the Tangy Americanese that is such a formidable part of every-day conversation in the republic, seldom issue from the loudspeaker.

The vital and expressive slang of the day is hushed when the attention-callers of the air clear their throats. The clammy spirit of Nice Nellie, lorgnette in hand and forefinger raised, is hovering over the microphone.

Cup your ears to the average announcer and you will hear the accents of the average English instructor in dear old Siwash when you are not hearing the accents of the average Fifth Avenue backgammon salesman. The zip and gusto of the American language is missing from their gabbing.

The announcers are not entirely to be blamed for the preciousness of their speech. They have had their eyes fastened too long on the diction medals of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. Good diction, of course, is to be prized. But too often it is confused with dignity—and solemn and pompous dignity at that.

No Time on Air For Phrases of the Day

One longs for the pep and vigor of those phrases of the day as expressed by the more popular comic artists, by George Ade, by the abler sports writer, by Alfred E. Smith. It is our notion that McNamee built up his enormous prestige as a noun-and-adjective man largely through his knack of talking in the spirit of the day, to be natural and human, to use "oh, boy" when he felt that "oh, boy" would best express the excitement he was trying to convey.

Dictionaries Get Slang in the End

Good words, too, they are. As funny as the smell of bacon. And as American. Eventually they will find their way into Vizetelly's dictionary as Walter Winchell's "whoopee" already has. George Ade has contributed enormously to the American language with his penetrating pen. So for that matter has Ring Lardner. So, too, have Bugs Baer, Rube Goldberg and Harry Hershfield. So did T. A. Dorgan, perhaps, the most prolific of all makers of Americaneese.

In a fat volume, three inches thick, H. L. Mencken has compiled the fruits of a pleasure-hunt into the highways and by ways of the American language. It is a rich and permanent memorial to the word-and-phrase inventiveness of the American people. It ought to be within easy reach of every radio announcer. If it were, we fancy the average attention-caller would not feel forced, as he does at present, to apologize for any and all lapses from the pompous and ceremonious language of the lecture hall.

Only the other night one such apologist addressed the armchairs. It was during a political broadcast, and the announcer said:

"The band is playing the 'Sidewalks of New York,' which, in the vernacular of the movies, is the theme song of Al Smith."

Vernacular, my eye!

Even such an apparently dull broadcast as the reading of football scores can be made a vivid event with the right announcer. And the right announcer, if you ask us, makes them snappy.

Bad Man and Saint.
The story of "Bellerin" Teck, the first permanent resident of Death Valley, will be told.
"Bellerin," who came by his unique name by reason of his habit of shouting when he wished to emphasize his meaning, went into Death Valley in 1870 in quest of solitude. As he expressed it, "he had raised so much Hell in other localities, he decided to raise alfalfa for a change."
When he made a home at Furnace Creek by creating a little oasis ranch there in the desert, he took on a sanctimonious partner by the name of Jackson. The breaking up of the partnership between the bad man and the saint, and the hasty departure of the latter at the point of a shotgun form an interesting climax.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Dr. C. W. Petty

Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, nationally famous lecturer, returns to the Sacred Song concert tonight in the first of a series of interesting talks. "Bankruptcy" is the subject for KDKA listeners at 7:30. Hymns include "Come Thou Almighty King," and "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me." The Happy Bakers, WCAE at 9:30, experience a "Kiss in the Dark" while Vee Lawnhurst — we like to hear her sing—goes for the "Kiss Waltz" on KDKA at 9. A selection that will be recognized immediately by Pittsburghers is Stephen Foster's "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" on KDKA at 8. The Purol Quartet does "Old Man River." Prof. Ambrose J. Weems, chief enunciator of Station KUKU, starts a Beatrice Fairfax series on WJZ, 760 kilocycles, at 10:30 p. m. Also WJR, WREN, WBZ.

Carson Robison, starting out as a salesman, told us he got two orders the first store he visited:

"Get out and stay out."

Don't let anyone tell you that Amos 'n' Andy are not funny in "Check and Doublecheck."

The Kingfish at a session of the Mystic Knights of the Sea is a riot. Guess what he wears as a symbol of his office? A gilded crown with a goldfish dangling from its pinnacle. Really funny.

And Andy, the bargart, throws an important document into the waste basket when he reads D-E-E-D out slowly and pronounces it "Dead."

"Human" is the best description we can give "Moonshine and Honeysuckle" on WCAE every Sunday now.

* * *

This play involves more plot, action, description than any other drama on the air. Sunday they had a thunderstorm and we caught a cold listening to it.

A LESSON

We've never told you the story of the Sponsor of Sacred Songs and an employe in her home who delighted in peeling potatoes thick "because there were lots more in the bin."

The Sponsor surprised a kitchen maid at this practice one day and preached a sermon on making the most of what we have regardless of what finer benefits may lay in store for us.

Quoting from Longfellow's "Psalm of Life" she told the maid to "Trust no Future, howe'er pleasant."

"Make the most of what we have now," she said. "Waste is an abomination anytime . . . waste in time, waste in money, waste in material, waste in spirit. Correctly utilized these things may bring more happiness to others and to ourselves."

How?

Well, in this case, a bin of potatoes carefully peeled may be the difference between an inspiring singer or speaker on the Sacred Song period.

Art Gillham, "whispering pianist," is to present six 15-minute programs over KQV starting Friday, November 7.

FULL INSTRUCTIONS ON KDKA Tomorrow morning at 9:02

Can you get distance in the early evening?

OR do you have to wait until the "wee small hours" to hear distant stations? How sensitive is your radio? Can it bring in programs from far away in the early evening when powerful local stations are on? Can it bring them in with clarity and volume?

Mark how the new Grebe reaches out for feeble, distant broadcasts at any hour; see whether any other set can bring in all of the stations you can hear at will on this new set. Compare by actual count.

Get a 7-check test card from your nearest Grebe dealer and compare for tone, control, selectivity, decorative quality, construction and value, too. So much of your future enjoyment of your radio depends on the care with which you select it, that it will pay you to investigate before you buy.

BUILDER HURT, TRIO HELD

Unable to determine how Herbert Dressler, 52, of 564 Princeton boulevard, Wilkinsburg, received injuries which sent him to Wilkinsburg Private Hospital in critical condition, police today asked Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court to hold three men until they could investigate.

U. Hanlin, 19, Negro, of 81 Ruch street, one of those held, said he found Dressler unconscious at the foot of a flight of steps in a house being built on Rosemeier street, near Shady avenue.

Hanlin, Dressler, and the others under arrest, Henry Benner, 45, of 20 Isabella street, and Harry Miller, of 1357 Woodlawn street, Wilkinsburg, all were employed by the contractor who is building the house. They said Dressler fell down the steps. Police believe Dressler may have been beaten.

Dressler had not regained consciousness shortly before noon. He has a skull fracture and internal injuries. The three suspects were released on bail for further hearing.

KING CONVENES PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—King George convened Parliament today in its annual meeting for the first time since the beginning of his serious illness two years ago. A great crowd witnessed the pageantry of the march from Buckingham Palace to Westminster, where he read before a combined meeting of lords and commons his speech from the throne.

Politically speaking, the high point of the speech was his majesty's brief statement that "a measure of electoral reform will be submitted to you." It was believed that with this measure the Labor government will assure itself continued Liberal support.

The speech gave indication of at least one highly controversial feature in addition to the electoral reform project, this being the projected nullification of the law which made the general strike of 1926 illegal and placed restrictions on certain trade union activities which made strikes possible.

Must Slay Lion To Become King In Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—One must slay the king of kings in order to be king of kings of Ethiopia. And so Ras Tafari has a job this week. He must kill a lion in preparation for his coronation next week as emperor.

WALKER CALLED IN RED TRIAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Mayor Walker and President McKee of the board of aldermen today were under subpena to appear as witnesses Thursday at the hearing of five Communists arrested at the City Hall in Red disturbances. Attorneys for the Communists charged that the mayor caused the disturbances when he refused to listen to Communists' appeals for aid for the unemployed.

Four Communists arrested yesterday for creating a disturbance in a cafeteria, which was being picketed by Reds, will appear for examination tomorrow.

Ralph Duncan, 24, a seaman, of San Francisco, arrested for carrying a lead-weighted bludgeon and said by police to have Communist affiliations, was found guilty of carrying a dangerous weapon, but sentence was suspended.

CUTS SILK HOSE BILLS IN TWO

A New York fashion expert has just made a wonderful discovery. Realizing the expense of constantly buying silk hose and lingerie, she learned that with perspiration comes an oily excretion from the sebaceous glands that causes silks to rot.

Soap and water she found were inadequate. Only a solvent like Energine cuts this film of oil.

So when next washing silk hose or dainty undergarments, add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new, fresh cleanliness—see how the original color is revived so easily and with less rubbing. After using this new method, you'll be amazed at the difference in results from washing in just soap and water.

And when you see how many more weeks' wear you get from silk hose, you'll be more than delighted—it's real economy. Energine is unexcelled also for quickly removing all dirt and grease spots from dresses, hats, shoes, gloves, ties. Large can 25c.

VALLEY TOWNS GET 5c FARE

The West Penn Railways yesterday announced a drastic reduction in fares on all its lines in the Allegheny Valley.

The cut amounts to not less than 20 per cent in any zone, and in some zones is much more. The reduction goes into effect next Sunday.

All ticket sales are eliminated and cash fares will be collected for each ride.

The fare in all towns in the district will be 5 cents instead of 6¼ cents as heretofore.

On interurban rides, such as from New Kensington to Natrona, the fare is reduced from 18¾ to 15 cents, and from New Kensington to Aspinwall, the cut is from 37½ cents to 25 cents. The district affected is reduced from eight to seven zones, giving the rider more distance for less money.

INDICT BANKER, SHORT $75,000

NAUVOO, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Tension over the investigation into the affairs of a defunct bank, evidenced in two suicides and an attempted bombing, was climaxed today with the indictment of George Dachroth, who has admitted, authorities said, irregularities in his accounts totaling $75,000.

Dachroth provided $10,000 bail on two of several indictments returned against him by the Hancock County grand jury at Carthage, Ill. He had been cashier of the defunct first trust and savings bank.

The first tragedy following the closing of the bank came when John Argast, one of the town's leading citizens, killed himself with poison several weeks ago. His suicide was laid to losses through the bank.

Friday Jacob Walters, Dachroth's uncle and a bank stockholder, shot and killed himself. Loss of his deposits and his liability as a stockholder were blamed.

Saturday Dachroth was stunned when he threw what he thought was a bundle of rags into a bonfire. Police said that it was a dynamite bomb placed against his house the night before.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Home at night... to a STATLER

When evening comes, and your body is tired and your nerves are frayed from the irritations of a busy day—it's a real comfort to get back home to your Statler room.

There, after you have tubbed or had a shower in your own private bath, you dress before a full-length mirror. When you've finished dinner, you come back to your room where there's radio reception and an easy chair in which you can read a book from the Statler library. Then you pile into bed . . . relax luxuriously on the inner-spring hair mattress . . . switch on the bed-head reading lamp . . . read until an irresistible drowsiness makes the print a blurred line . . . and then . . . then . . . it's morning . . . and there's a paper under your door . . . ice water on tap . . . and you discover a ravenous appetite for an excellent Statler breakfast—perhaps in your room.

You can be sure of such a delightful experience in every Statler. You can be sure, also, of service by employees who are trained, courteous and helpful, of fair rates that are not changed by the flow of travel and, best of all, you can be sure that your satisfaction is always guaranteed.

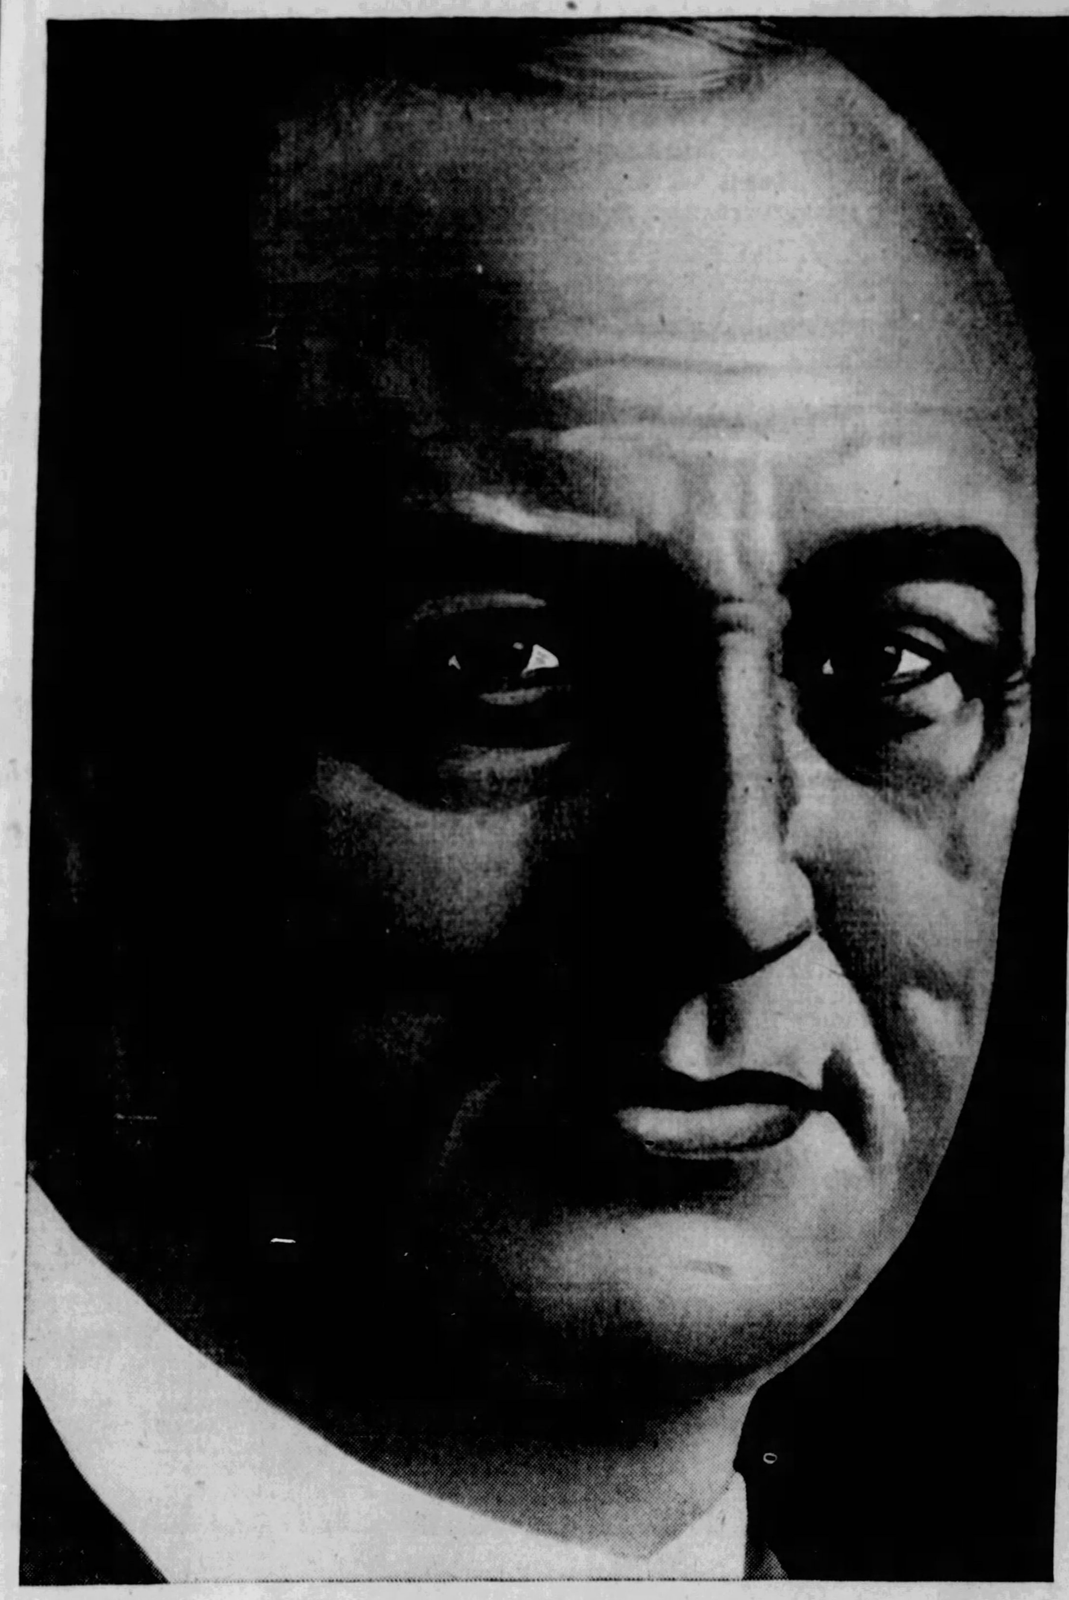
JAMES A. FARLEY



Says

"Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the Toasting of LUCKY STRIKE ranks with the many other great contributions to the health and comfort of millions."

Here is the complete statement as authorized by

JAMES A. FARLEY

President, General Builders Supply Corp.
Chairman, New York State Athletic Commission
Chairman, New York State Democratic Committee

"I am certain that without the use of modern, scientific methods the skyscrapers for which our country is so justly proud, would never have been possible. I am equally convinced that your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the Toasting of your LUCKY STRIKE Tobaccos ranks with the many other great contributions to the health and comfort of millions and that it is responsible for the sky-scraping sales of your famous brand."

James A. Farley

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

LUCKY GIRL

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER LVI.

Cathie dressed for her last day in court. The last day . . . Mr. Allan and Gordon were sure it would be the last day . . . Well, even if it wasn't, she could stand it, she felt so freshened and renewed, so . . . so human again.

In her weeks in jail she had suffered so much, passed through so many phases of suffering . . . bewilderment, despair, shame, sorrow, disillusionment and finally that last, terrible deadness when all hope was gone, and she seemed squeezed dry of all human emotions . . . empty and vacuous like a sponge.

And now she was all hope and gentleness and delicately surging life again . . . impatient, quivering to have it over with.

No need for the policewoman and the deputy sheriff to prod her along this time. She pushed ahead, stepping lightly and firmly in her high-heeled black pumps, thin little face flushed and expectant, long widow's veil floating behind, every bit of her straining with eagerness . . . hurry . . . get out of here . . .

Even the crowd looked different. They didn't look morbidly curious, like men and women who have come to hear a sentence in a murder case . . . but of course they hadn't come for that . . . they'd read the papers . . . they were coming to hear her acquitted . . . to see her walk away . . . free . . .

"Good morning!"

It was Mr. Macmillan, the district attorney! And smiling, too. And so was Assistant District Attorney McLoughlin. "Glad to hear the good news. You're a lucky girl!" he whispered in her ear as he passed her in the anteroom.

"There she comes!"

"That's her!"

"Shh . . . that's Mrs. Farnsworth—that's Catherine!"

People whispering. People leaning forward to see her. People smiling their good wishes . . . strange people, dear people . . . oh, how different to be someone people believe in again . . . not to have the world against you . . . And there . . . by the table . . .

Sees Her Mother

"Ma! Ma, darling!" Cathie couldn't keep back the words. They tumbled out before she knew it. She almost threw herself into the beloved, faithful arms before she remembered where she was, and all the people watching, and Ma wanting to do everything just right.

"Sure, it's me. Pull your collar straight, Cathie, it's a bit more to the right—"

"But, Ma—oh, I can't believe it. I didn't dare to hope you'd be able to come. Oh, Ma, I'm so glad—so glad—"

"Try to keep me away!"

"You're sure you're well enough? You don't think you—"

"The very idea! As I said to Doolin, and that trained nurse he sent—a nice girl, but not what I'd call a good hand for a sickroom—hush—they're beginnin'—"

"You're sure you'll be all right, Ma? You're sure?"

"Of course! When I got the news I was well—just like that! Shh—listen——"

"But——" Cathie whispered, behind her hand.

"Shh!" Ma whispered, forbiddingly, sitting up very straight, and turning respectful, gentle eyes on the judge.

"Darling Ma," Cathie thought lovingly, "dear, darling Ma," studying the sweet, lined face with anxious care. "Sticking to me through everything, not even being surprised at the way it turned out, and coming . . . coming right out of a sickbed . . . pushing the poor nurse right out of the room, I'll bet, and Dr. Doolin storming at her . . . as if it would do any good to try to keep Ma from one of us kids . . ."

Gordon Present

"Pay attention!" Mr. Gunther said, nudging her. "Pete's sake, aren't you interested in your own release?"

Cathie nodded brightly. "Oh, yes . . . I was just thinking . . ."

Then her eye caught Gordon's. He smiled at her, a serious, promising smile, as if he were saying: "Didn't I tell you? Didn't I promise . . ."

Across the courtroom her love went winging back . . . her message to him, in her dewy, tremulous smile. . . .

Newly discovered evidence . . . wrongly and unjustly accused . . . full and complete confession . . . verdict set aside. . . .

Legal words, legal phrases went flying over Cathie's head . . . Mr. Allan, in his most eloquent voice . . . the judge, very judicial, and his cold so much better . . . a sharp question from the harassed reporter, pencil flying to get all the words. . . .

And Cathie smiling at Gordon across the courtroom . . . smiling with her flower-blue eyes, yearning with all her heart to reach across to him, to take his strong, brown hands in hers, and go away . . . waiting in a fever of impatience for the thing to be over, so she could go home. . . .

"Cathie! You're wool-gathering!" Ruth's piercing whisper right in Cathie's ear.

"I am not!" Cathie whispered back, indignant, because it was true. Darn Ruth anyway, always interfering, always telling her what to do!

Mr. Macmillan was on his feet now. Oh, Lord, he was going to make a long speech. When he put his hands in his pockets and swayed back and forwards that way it always meant a long speech.

"May it please the court—" his sonorous voice rang out, for all the world like an actor approaching his best bit in the play . . .

"Good for an hour!" Cathie mouthed at Gordon, feeling wicked and reckless the way she used to feel long ago in school, when she mouthed messages across to Addie White about the teacher. And when she looked at him, and saw his familiar, answering twinkle, and remembered all that had happened since she saw it last . . . and where she really was, and how nearly it had come to being the end of all twinkles for her and Gordon, a lump rose in her throat and the tears sprang to her eyes. So she didn't hear the speech after all. She was too busy wiping her eyes, and trying not to break down after there was no more need for it.

Free Again

"There wasn't a dry eye in the courtroom when District Attorney Macmillan made the motion for the beautiful young widow's release on behalf of the people of the state of California," one scribe wrote in a flowery account of Cathie's acquittal at the hands of Judge East for the morning papers.

Maybe there wasn't. Certainly Cathie wasn't dry eyed. But she didn't hear a word of it. And neither the rush of congratulations that followed, nor the storm of applause from the thrilled and delighted spectators who just wouldn't listen to the baliff's pounding for order, made her realize just how lucky she was, and just how unusual it is for a district attorney to ask a judge for a prisoner's release.

"And how does it feel to be free again?" newspaper reporters asked her.

"Have you a statement for the press?

"Are you going to prosecute Chester Farnsworth for perjury?"

"Sure, she's worn out, the poor child," Ma answered, protecting her. "Later she'll answer all your questions. But not now — don't ask her — she's been through too much!"

"Thank you — thank you so much!" Cathie murmured over and over, to Mr. Macmillan, to Mr. McLoughlin, to Mr. Allan, to Mr. Gunther—to policemen, and policewomen, and newspaper women and everyone who crowded up to shake her hand, and congratulate her.

Going Back Home

And all the while she was straining and leaning toward the door . . . toward the door that led out . . . away from jail . . . towards home . . .

Ma had her by one arm, Gordon by the other . . . oh, so different from a policewoman and a deputy sheriff . . .

"DON'T cry NOW!" Ruth begged, passing her the fourth handkerchief that morning. "My Lord, it's all over. I'm sure Ma and I am glad if you aren't!"

"Now don't worry the child, Ruth. It's the reaction and all she's been through. . . . Cathie, darlin'—the policeman with the red hair wants to say goodby to you—"

"The car's waiting outside, Mrs. Paige. I can take you all," Gordon was saying. "Cathie, I suppose you'll want to go with your mother?"

Mary Paige stood still in her tracks. Halted the whole triumphal procession. "And where else should Cathie want to go? Where else indeed, but her own home?"

And then Cathie did break down. Gordon almost carried her to the car. People stood back in respectful silence, made a narrow human lane for them to pass through.

"Plain foolishness," Ruth was grumbling, bringing up in the rear, wondering whether to give Cathie the green chiffon sport handkerchief, which was the only one she had left, or to let her get along with the sodden ball she had in her hand.

"I'm so h-happy!" Cathie was sobbing.

She was crying because she was going home . . . home to the old white cottage on Clara street.

One Pretty Face in Thousand Finds Fame and Millionaire, Says Fay King

FAY-KING

By FAY KING

A pretty girl looking into the glass and finding herself very pretty decides to seek fame and fortune.

She has read of all the wonderful things that have come to girls no prettier than she is.

She, too, will be famous and meet and marry a millionaire.

What she does not stop to consider is that countless other pretty girls are planning the same thing.

There can't possibly be enough fame and fortune and millionaires for all.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Prompted to Investigate Owen's Presence in N. Y.

I do not know what the shoppers and saleswomen nearest me thought in the seconds following my sudden glimpse of Lillian's young daughter, Marion, and her "roomie," Carolyn Brixton, under the escort of Charles Owen.

They could not have regarded me as wholly sane in the dash away from the art jewelry counter which followed the fraction of a second in which the sight of the winsome faces looking up into that of "Uncle Charlie's" had robbed me of speech and movement, even of volition.

They must not see me. That was the first message which my benumbed brain sent to my muscles, and I obeyed it with a feeling of panic which would have seemed the height of absurdity to anyone acquainted with only the surface facts of the encounter. Charles Owen, half brother of Samuel Brixton, always had been Carolyn's idolized "Uncle Charlie." Only a few intimates of her mother's youth knew that Samuel Brixton was not Carolyn's father, but that he had given his name and legal protection to both the little girl and her brother when he had married their young widowed mother after a peculiarly unhappy first marriage.

I knew that Lillian did not expect Marion home from her school until the next day at the earliest. Because of the uncertainty of the weather and the possibility of icy roads over the mountains, it had been decided that Harry and Lillian would drive only to Hoboken and there meet Marion and Carolyn and the two girls whom Carolyn was planning to bring home with her for the Christmas holidays. It was a little odd that Marion and Carolyn should have come a day earlier and under the chaperonage of Carolyn's uncle, but it would not appear to any uninitiated person as a reason for the actual terror which was gripping me.

But I was not seeking humdrum, ordinary explanations from the vantage point of a rack in the neighboring book department, behind which I had taken sanctuary. With my eyes fixed upon the animated group in the art jewelry department, I was going over the sinister associations with Charles Owen's name which had caused both Lillian and me such anxiety in the exciting days following the murderous attack upon Prince Georges while he was still living incognito near the farmhouse. Harry Underwood had discovered that the attack upon the young heir to the throne of Trees had been inspired and carried out by the members of the dread secret society of Kenellos, one of whose aims was the elimination of any other heir to the throne of Trees than the renegade cousin of Georges, the head of their society. From an earlier revelation of Prince Georges, after his dramatic recognition of Owen, we had learned that Samuel Brixton's brother not only understood Treek perfectly, but had borne a Treek name when he had lived in Trees and Transvania, and the Prince had told us that the man was a renegade member of Kenellos, in danger of his life if he ever set foot in Trees or Transvania.

It was the threat of revealing the whereabouts of Owen to the society which had foiled the probable plan of Brixton's half-brother to send word to Queen Olga of Transvania, that her missing daughter, Olina, was masquerading as Eleanor Lincoln, an American girl of wealth, at the summer estate of The Larches, near the farmhouse. When only a few days later Prince Georges had been murderously attacked, Harry Underwood had said that Charles Owen, in all probability, had sent anonymously to the members of Kenellos the important knowledge that young George Jackson was in reality the missing Prince Georges for whom they were searching. He also had said that Owen would at once put hundreds of miles between himself and the "scene of the crime," and his prediction was verified when Lillian had received a letter from Marion telling of the wonderful things for their room at school which Carolyn's "Uncle Charlie" was sending them from the different cities through which he was "making a business trip." For some time, however, there had been no references to Owen in Marion's letters. Suddenly, with an inexplicable little chill at my heart, I realized that there had been very few letters from Marion in the last two months. Was the child merely too busy to write or was she too much preoccupied by her new "roomie" and her good times, or—was she growing secretive? And if so, why?

Another facet of Charles Owen's personality turned itself toward me. I could not forget how firmly I had believed him to be the controlling factor in Samuel Brixton's proposal of restoration to Marion of money he had fraudulently taken from her father, a proposal which I had believed to be simply a scheme for defrauding the child and her mother and which my counsel to Lillian had foiled—until Marion came of age, at least.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, October 29

Although there is a basis for prognosticating a very lively and eventful day, with much substantial progress and achievement through dogged enprise and faithful application, yet there is a sign of restlessness, agitation and probably much stirring about. Also there is a sign of some discord or friction in employment, or in a clash with those in authority; also a menace through violence or accident.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a lively year, with some change or removal, possibly anxiety about employment, but advantageous contacts with large corporations or secret bodies and through diplomacy or stratagem.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Heir to the Family Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I wish to thank you for the great help your column has been to me, and I do hope you will be able to answer this question for me.

1. If the grandfather's name is John Henry Jones, and the son's name is John William Jones, would the grandson's name be John Jones III, or John William Jones, Jr.?

2. If John Jones III is correct, which middle name should be used? Reader.

1. If the grandson's name is John Jones, with no middle name, he would not affix either junior or third, since the name would not be the same as the name of his father or of his grandfather. If the son's name is John William Jones, he would add junior to it.

2. This depends on what the parents choose for the name of their son.

Extending Good Wishes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I received an announcement of the marriage of a girl I know quite well to a young man I have never met. Do I send a letter of congratulation to Mrs. Jones, Mr. Jones, or Mr. and Mrs. Jones?

Also, will you kindly give me a few ideas as to what I should write, and the correct form?

H. W.

Write your letter to the girl, address it to her, and in it tell her of your happiness at the news of her happiness. Write your letter in a chatty fashion, as you would talk with her about this good news. And, in your letter, even though you do not know her husband, send a message to him, telling her to tell him of your congratulations on his good fortune in winning such a fine wife.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Build Yourself a 'Dream Man'—Find a Real One!

Why can't Arlette find a "worthwhile Boy Friend?" Is it because she's just a girl that men forget? Is it because she's shy? Timid? Friendless?

No indeedy! That's not it. She's pretty as a pansy and peppy as a chipmunk. She belongs to three clubs, and she's been proposed to twice. She dances 'n' swims 'n' rides . . . And has a wonderful time doing it. And boys think she's a "regular fellow" and a great kid . . . But she just can't get interested in them.

"They're so dull and conceited," she sniffs, "and what's the use of going with them...if you don't enjoy yourself? But I long to meet one I could love. One that's different from those I've known so far. I don't want to be an old maid.

"I dream of romance and love, but I never seem to find it."

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I am bringing you a problem that I've never so far seen in your column. It has me worried. I can't understand it. And neither can my mother. So we've decided to ask you what you think.

"Maybe you'll think it sounds awfully queer, but I can't seem to find a worthwhile boy friend. It's not because I don't know plenty of boys. I do, and they seem to like me. I belong to three clubs, and have just lots of friends, both boys and girls, and I'm never a wallflower when I go out.

"In fact, two different boys have asked me to marry them. But I just can't seem to get interested in them. Many, many boys ask me for dates, and once in a while I accept. But for the most part, I say no. Why? I don't know. Except that most boys seem so dull and so conceited when I'm with them. All they think about is laughing and joking and having a good time. And I don't want that sort.

"At school I regarded them as just friends, and I never could understand what the other girls saw in them to make them rave about them. I didn't mind them, because I couldn't feel the way these girls did. But now, since I'm older, and since most of them have beaux or are married, I really do want to be interested in boys, but I'm just not. And what's the use of going out with them when you don't enjoy yourself?

"Is there something wrong with me?

"The other girls seem to think there is. They tell me I am foolish. And I often feel that I must be, but I don't know what to do about it.

"I have a wonderful dad and mother, and can entertain in my home any time I want to. In fact, the more the merrier. But boys just seem to bore me so. Maybe I'm taking it all too seriously, but it does have me worried. I am no flapper. I am 25.

"I dream often of romance and love. But I never seem to find it. It seems to me sometimes that I am waiting for someone. Am I? And will he ever come? Or will I keep on refusing dates and being a man hater all my life?

"I'll watch the paper for your reply. I am so lonesome and blue, when I think of it all. Please tell me what to do, and I will try to do it. Why can't I find the man of my dreams?

"ARLETTE."

Why can't you find him, my dear?

I suspect that it's because, way down in the secret places of your heart, you're afraid of him. You're afraid to come alive, and really face life and its chances and hazards. Part of you longs for the richness and beauty of love and experience . . . but part of you shrinks from it in fear. Fear of being hurt. Fear of what Life will ask of you in return for its gifts.

But you never have been able to admit that you felt that fear . . . even to yourself. So, in order to cover it up and hide it away from all prying eyes, you've set yourself up in judgment on all these really fine, genuine youngsters you grew up with and work with. You've tried to protect yourself against your own heart by being snooty and critical and stand-offish. By laying the blame on them.

You have tried to protect yourself and justify yourself by pretending to yourself that you're waiting for your Dream Man. But you're not really waiting for him at all. You're just dodging. And if you are, that dream man will never come, so long as you keep yourself walled up behind your own fears. He'll never come because you'll keep right on running away.

And what'll you do about it? Here's what. Recognize your fear. Yank it up out of the dark crevasses where it is hiding, and bring it into the light of day. Realize what it is costing you. Look life in the face, shoulders up and courage to the front.

And then learn to really know these boys you find in your world. You think that you know them now, but you don't. You've only been looking at the outside of them.

"But they're so dull!" you cry.

Yes, undoubtedly some of them are. Just as some girls are dull. But if you'll use imagination . . . if you'll try to find out what they hope and dream and are interested in, you'll find that most of them are just as interesting as jungles. You'll find them full of fascinating ideas and ambitions and plans and hopes. And you'll find that they're real . . . worth all the comradeship and appreciation you can give them. And somewhere among them, then, you'll find love.

So crash into it, honey! Whether you spend the rest of your life being lonely and blue, or spend it as a busy, happy, interested wife and mother is up to you.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sweets—and the Child's Diet

With our present-day knowledge of nutrition, we must take great care in providing the proper combination of food. We must do this to give our children the best nutrition possible. Among our faulty practices is the tendency of including too much sweet in the diet.

DR. COPELAND

Sugar is an important element in some of the best of our natural foods. It is always found in fruits. Except in honey, it is rarely found without being combined with certain salts and fiber. To get its benefits the foods must be carefully chewed and properly mixed with the saliva.

Then it is ready for the gastric juices.

All persons crave sweets, especially the children. This is well, because a moderate use of sugar is necessary to meet the demands of the active youngsters. They need the carbohydrates, which are the sugars and starches, to make energy.

There is no doubt that many young children are given too much sugar. In the past many baby food formulas were used which contained too much sugar, more than is found in mother's milk. By overfeeding of sweets there is danger that a child's taste may become perverted. Then he will crave more and more sugar.

There are many-sided foods and the one-sided food. The many-sided, "protective" foods include serials, breadstuffs, meat, milk, fruits and vegetables. All these contain the life-giving elements, and, when properly combined, they make an ideal diet for the growing child, as well as for the adult.

The one-sided food, such as sugar, is all right in its place and in proper quantity, but it must not be taken to the exclusion of the important protective foods. If taken in reasonable quantities, and after the nourishing foods have been eaten, they are good for you and your child.

To be perfectly straightforward on the subject, white sugar can only be classed as a one-sided food. It is deficient in the necessary proteins, minerals and vitamins which we must have in the diet if we are to have good health. If sugar is taken in the form of candy, or any concentrated form, and used to excess it may prove troublesome.

When a child is given too many sweets, such as candy, jam or chocolate, they interfere with the formation and composition of the saliva. It lessens the power to digest starchy foods. A diet of this sort spoils the appetite for foods which are far more important to growth and development.

Many of the thousands of cases of dental defects and serious digestive disorders date from the time when the infant was persistently given too much sugar at feeding time. Don't make the mistake of giving in to your child every time he cries for candy and sweets. Keep for his dessert at luncheon or dinner some sweet, as maple syrup, honey or brown sugar, applied on the pudding, but curtail the candy and jam. Teach your child the right habits of eating from the earliest possible moment. That is the way to build for health.

FARMER AFIRE AS BARN BURNS

Alvin McCulley, Penn Township farmer, narrowly escaped serious burns as his clothing ignited while he was attempting to remove an automobile from a blazing barn on his property along the William Penn highway near Gascola, Penn Township. The barn, the automobile and a small truck were destroyed.

Last night during a heavy rain, McCulley was backing a touring car into the barn. According to reports, the backfire of the machine ignited the barn. McCulley leaped out of the car and attempted to push it from the barn. His clothing ignited when the gasoline tank exploded.

McCulley beat out the flames and ran for help. Unity firemen responded, but were unable to save the barn because of the lack of water.

POLL OFFICIALS HOLD PLACES

Thirty election officers, appointed to fill vacancies before the last primary election, were authorized to serve at the November election in an order made by Judge George V. Moore, in Quarter Sessions Court. When the appointments were made it had been specified the designated persons should only serve at the primaries, as it was expected then that the Redistricting Commission would have completed its work by this time.

When this is done and voting machines put into use, only about two-thirds as many election boards as are now serving will be needed, as the machines will be able to take care of larger numbers of voters per precinct. There will then be a wholesale elimination of superfluous election officers.

DRAMA, MUSIC AND COMEDY LINE UP IN MUSTER OF PITTSBURGH STAGE

Rich Melodies Pour From "The Well of Romance" Over Antic Humor

By GEORGE SEIBEL

SINCE THE PREMIERE of "Show Boat" in Pittsburgh made musical history, producers have looked with favor on this city as a port to sail from. And last night one of the most impressive and promising of such productions since "Show Boat" was heard for the first time in the world at the Nixon Theater. It was "The Well of Romance"—the composer is Maurice Jacquet, a master melodist from France—the book was written by Preston Sturges, whose comedy "Strictly Dishonorable" has been running for a year or so in New York, and shows no signs of running down.

George Seibel

But if Monsieur Jacquet had composed the song which the morning stars sang together, and if Preston Sturges were the reincarnation of Aristophanes, "The Well of Romance" would have to be judged by its own waters.

When the baton of the composer himself smote the rock, and the melodies began to gush, in a glittering spray of refreshing rhythms, the audience knew this was not stale ditch-water, but a deep draught from the magic fountain of music.

But what is a Sullivan without his Gilbert? The question to be settled concerns the Gilbertian potentialities of the librettist.

He has an antic humor, this man Sturges. At times the action becomes irresistibly droll. Often the lyrics have an undertone of ebullient merriment. But you can't be droll enough—you can't be merry enough in this operettic world.

FATE SUPPLIES A HINT

It was some fortunate fate that sent an accident at the opening of the second act—a benign accident from which librettist and stage director might take a hint. A goblet of the magical water was upset—and so was the audience, which rocked with laughter.

It is the business of a Gilbert to be funnier than any accident could be. And Sturges shows in so many places that he has this faculty, that it is regrettable he has not let himself go the limit.

That was a most amusing idea to make the falling birthrate in the kingdom of Magnesia the reason for a law compelling eligible bachelors and spinsters to marry.

It was another happy thought to have a princess who scorns the thought of love sent to drink of the well which thrills all hearts with romance.

And it was a fine climactic stroke to take the princess away from the rheumatic old general, to whom she is to be married, by having the king claim her by the "jus primae noctis."

But it's a shock to find a librettist who has looked up Sir Henry Maine on ancient law. W. S. Gilbert would have made his own few.

WHERE THE HUMOR FLOWS

Most of the humor flows through the scenes in which Louis Sorin as the Grand Chancellor, whose name was Cohen, shares the stage with Frau Schlitzl, who has acquired wisdom through a romantic past, and is otherwise known as Lina Abarbanell. Miss Abarbanell was deliciously quaint and sly, while Sorin's Chancellor, a mixture of Sothern's Malvolio and Warfield's Auctioneer, furnished more robustious fun.

Most of the romance is woven around the figure of the poet, bravely sung by Howard Marsh, and the Princess, as charming as Norma Terriss can make her. These two look and act and sing in a way that gives glamor to some rather long and barren scenes — scenes that need much speeding and inspiriting, especially in the first act.

STIRRING FAN BALLET

There are a number of lesser lights—dainty Laine Blaire as the "souvenir" of Frau Schlitzl's romantic indiscretion, and Max Figman as the Baron von Sprudelwasser, stood out in a cast of even excellence. But a stellar hit was made by a beautiful Fan Ballet, in which the cost of the fans must have staggered the financial acumen of Grand Chancellor Cohen. That Fan Ballet, and a festive Cow in the first act, and a male chorus with uniforms that make a rainbow reaching from the Urals to the Pyrenees, are the high points in "The Well of Romance."

This man has the melodic facility of a Balfe or an Offenbach, and songs like "Dream of Dreams" or "I'll Never Complain" have the magic of moonlight, while the national anthem of Magnesia is stirring enough to win a war. His dances have entrancing rhythms—a mazourka, the waltz, and a humorous country dance are filled with happy invention.

The music of Maurice Jacquet is dipped from the Well of Romance.

WHEN ALL IS SAID

Enchanted with the music, dazzled by the wealth of rich costumes, amused at the antic humors of the plot, when all is said there is but one regret. Preston Sturges hasn't "relaxed" enough.

The subtleties and bizarre fancies of "Strictly Dishonorable" are apparent in this libretto.

But comedy set to music requires bold strokes, exuberant clowning, madly grotesque humor. And the romance must be sparkling like champagne, not long-drawn-out like taffy.

Speed it up, especially the first act, and inject more laughing gas, and "The Well of Romance" ought to run long on Broadway before it goes dry.

Officers Elected By V. F. W. Post

Program:

La Folia	Corelli
Sarabande	Bach
Double	Bach
Bourree	Bach
Concerto, E Minor	Mendelssohn
Romance, A Major	Schumann
Rondo, G Major	Mozart
Three Caprices
Study on a Chorale	Stamitz
La Chasse	Cartier
Tarentelle	Wieniawski
Caprice Viennois	Kreisler
La Sitana	Kreisler

Hard times were hardly noticeable last night when Syria Mosque was filled to the brim and many were turned away after they had braved the rain to hear Fritz Kreisler. It was the opening concert of May Beegle's series and as brilliant an audience as we have seen in many a year.

The Mosque, however, is not the auditorium for Kreisler's art. The intimate details of his style that originate in his Viennese blood are all but lost in these large spaces. And Kreisler is far too great a musician to ignore the limitations of his instrument for the sake of unnaturally big tone. His prodigious technique was as much in evidence as always, and certainly there has been no diminution in the powers that lie in his intellect and personality.

Kreisler's unaccompanied Bach and his Stamitz Chorale were monuments of violin tone production. The cantilena of the Mendelssohn andante, the easy virtuosity of the finale in the same concerto, and the simple warmheartedness of his Schumann Romance were the violinist at his best. Quite naturally his own works brought forth storms of applause.

As always Carl Lamson played excellent accompaniments, and Kreisler allows him to be heard.

This Town of Ours

The Gilda-Gray-H. H. Van Loon romance has curdled already. . . . Altho it will be vigorously denied (it always is!), the M. Chevaliers (Yvonne Vallee) are On The Verge . . . The Paul Zuckermans (she was Ruth Taylor of the flickers) will be hit'd in mid-December . . . Sidney (Royal Flying Corps) Bowen, now managing ed of Aviation, the mag, and Marion MacIntyre were secretly sealed in Greenwich Thursday . . . Alice ("Vanities") McDonald and Bates Whately, broker, were welded in Pittsburgh . . . Though you'll see her with Rudy Vallee, her intimates would have you believe Mary Brian is secretly betrothed to Buddy Rogers . . . The John (Mayfair) Rumsey-Marie Hammond romance is better than eye-water for the orbs . . . The William Seaburys (Margaret Irving), who were married in almost every State, are telling it to a judge again.

Joseph von Sternberg (his real tag is Styninski—he has recently melted from Rita Royce) and Marlene Deitrich positively Will! . . . If Curtis reads what Kummer says about Ben Franklin in "Gentlemen in Hades," they'll probably stop the sale of the tome in Philly . . . Johnny (Irish) Costello, and Mae Tate, childhood sweetenheartens, were sealed . . . "Broadway," a new weekly, bows promisingly . . . Frederique christens this sort of stuff "Adam and Evesdropping" . . . Alma Rubens, the moom-pitcher gel, will ankle up a middle-aisle with her benefactor as soon as his squaw gives in . . . La Guinan argues that most locals were not raised on nursery nipples, but on police whistles!

Edna Wallace Hopper, who is at least 66, and Fernand Grip, of the Casino de Paris, are May-and-Decembering it . . . Chaplin's next picture has enticed four million smackers in booking fees already . . . Ray (Cosmop) Long is Russia-bound to confer with Moscow fictionists . . . There is a newsstand in G'wich Village which keeps good gin behind the magazines. You ask for it this way: "Got a Literary Digest for 1924?" . . . Clara Bow's newest chevron is Maxie Rosenbloom, the champ, whose slave bracelet is inscribed "From Clara to Maxie."

Margaret Ritchie, whose grandpap, Martin Maloney, left her a mess of it, is being adored by James Eben of the M. J. Meehan Co. . . . And Luigi (Monocle) Rothschild and Emita (Crater case) . . . Casanova are still baby-talking . . . As are Morgan Morgan and "Billie" Barber . . . When Florence Crozier gets her final from John Rutherford in West Palm Beach, Maude Hughes, the Philly filly, will pinch hit . . . Richard Bennett's contract for "Solid South" says no curtain speeches in N. Y., proving that a contract is just a contract . . . Edna Hastings, former Peggy Hoyt model, and Williamson Howe, of the Blue Blooded Brook, are Thata Ways.

Recommended to diversion seekers: The blazing orchestra at Hot Feet's at 142 W. Houston . . . Earl Lindsay's plenty-pretty-person at the Picardy . . . La Etting at the Palace and her platter of "When a Black Man's Blue" . . . The grand Nyorker "Talk of the Town" item tagged "Cop's Friend" . . . Mamie Guinan's 54th Street asylum after 4 a. m. . . . Allan ("Girl Crazy") Kearn's finger-pulling gag, off stage, that is . . . Burton Rascoe in The New Republic . . . "Hunkie Wedding," by Owen Francis, in Scribner's . . . Leo Reisman's platter of Ravel's "Bolero," a classic, . . . and the new song silly entitled: "We Ain't Had so Much Fun Since We Nailed the Baby to the Floor."

Alice Boulden's new "business" is J. Rutkin . . . Jim Tully and Jim Quirk, the Photoplay ed, are feuding again . . . N. O. Youmans, author of "Best Seller," the novel on the literary racket, is really Allen Marpel of Harpers . . . When Jack and Sylvia (N. Y. World) Lewis tell it to a melting referee, the most interested listener will be Dr. Leo Berman, the molar and pyorrhea man . . . "Willie" Mae's sister, Leslie, now West-coasting for Fox, will be starred by Warner's here . . . Perhaps the largest display of nudes is in that tiny cigar shop on W. 48th Street, near 7th.

Mr. Uberall, whose connection with the Hollywood Restaurant was purchased for $75,000, began his Broadway career without even a shoelace . . . The Gerald (Letty Gay) Carsons and the Wm. (Benton & Bowles) Bentons will receive their respective blessed events from Santa.

The Theater League's big problem is unemployed actresses who spend their days promoting complimentary tickets for hit shows and then peddling them to gyp ticket agencies . . . Anna Fitziu, the grand operactress, is trying to lose her voice rooting home horses at the tracks . . . J. Borelli is opening a new bridge club Wensdee—strictly social register membership . . . As if we care, huh? . . . Frieda Hempel is having the miseries because Jack Taylor has gone to Calif . . . Society is broke, too. An incoming dramatic show sent out 4,000 announcements to the top-hatted . . . Of the 200 ticket orders which resulted—an excellent response—all but a handful were of balcony pews . . . A large newsstand now occupies the site, approximately that of the subway kiosk, which was removed from the N. E. cor. of Madison and 42nd "because it blocked traffic and caused accidents!" . . . . . .

The El Patio has enticed the Embassy's smart set sinners . . . Jim Cherry is back from Yurrup without his Baroness Risi . . . Carol Frink, the ex-Mrs. Charles MacArthur, will bride it, again. . . . Patsy Salmon, who was sports-written right into the Ziegfeld Follies (in the Dempsey-Gibbons era), is back playing the Chicago girliecue houses . . . La Garbo is actually going back to Sweden forevermore, in spite of denials.

ASTHMA DISAPPEARS

Recovery Due to Discovery of Basic Cause of Bronchial Asthma.

Indianapolis—H. H. Cornet, Uncasville, Conn., sends a message of great interest to all who suffer with Bronchial Asthma. He tells of his results from using the remedy based on Dr. Fugate's discovery of the basic or underlying cause of Bronchial Asthma and Hay Fever. Mr. Cornet's letter follows:

"I started to take Dr. Fugate's Remedy for Bronchial Asthma October, 1927, which relieved me entirely, for which I am very thankful. I took two bottles after I had suffered one of the worst attacks I had ever had. After taking one-half bottle I felt very much relieved. I think Dr. Fugate's Remedy sure is a godsend to Asthma sufferers."

Later Mr. Cornet wrote: "I sure am feeling fine. Have not had an attack since a year ago this month. It seems so good to be able to go out in the open and work and feel all right."

Copies of similar letters from others who once suffered with Bronchial Asthma and an important booklet on Dr. Fugate's discovery of the cause of Asthma and Hay Fever will be sent free by The Fugate Co., Dept. 6737, 126 So. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind. No matter how serious your case, write for this free booklet.

Katharine Cornell Wins Approval in Emotional Role in Alvin

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

Katharine Cornell caused a lot of women in the Alvin to gasp last night. This because she gave life and vibrancy to the character of one of those romantically agitated females she does so well, and in doing so, revealed a woman whose amorous technique is of the kind more often observed in the male, and when so observed earns for him the distinction—or notoriety—of being a fast worker.

You see, the Madeleine Cary, within whose skin Miss Cornell hides herself for dramatic purposes, doesn't wait to be made love to. Inside of five minutes after she appears on the scene she invites Jose Moreno to embrace her. From that point on the women gasp—and small wonder.

A NO-GOOD WOMAN

Madeline is just no good, though all of her friends think otherwise. When a decent chap wishes to espouse her, she tells him she is unworthy. The redeeming part of her character is her honesty in that respect. She is true enough even to attempt to prevent him making a declaration of love and honest enough to tell him her character without revealing her secret love affair. But he is not to be discouraged and when she sees what real love is she accepts him. But there is the other chap. He will not surrender and threatens to make trouble. So he just has to be removed from the scene.

Then, when all of the fireworks are out of the way, and Madeleine has been lied to freedom in a murder trial, the decent boy still wants her. She is honest enough to tell him that she did kill her lover, but not until after she had spent pleasant hours with him—the crime having been a kind of a belated triumph of reason over sensual emotion which she was sure would recur had the cause of it been suffered to live.

PLAY IS UNPLEASANT

It is an unpleasant play, which the authors, Margaret Ayer Barnes and Edward Sheldon, created from the love career of Miss Madeleine Smith, of Glasgow. Nevertheless it sweeps the audience into waves of approval for the sureness of the dramatic art of Miss Cornell. She has one of the best voices on the stage, and the ease with which she makes it register the abandon of one lost in erotic love, the sobbing of hopelessness, the deceit of a siren, and the pathos of a poor soul crying for happiness she knows never can be hers, causes more than the women of the audience to say they were well repaid in seeing Miss Cornell—even in so unpleasant a play.

Another fine bit of emotional playing must be credited to Ruth Fallows, in the role of a cabaret girl, whose sweetheart is stolen by Madeleine. This is Jose, well played by S. Herbert Braggiotti. Harry Stephens, as a young assistant prosecuting attorney, and Paul Harvey, as a loyal friend of Madeleine, also stand out. Charles Francis, Fred L. Tilden, Lewis A. Sealy, Gertrude Macy and Jimmy Daniels are other members of a good company.

"In the YEAR of JUBILEE!"

Just a year ago, it was announced that The Edward A. Woods Company had set for itself a goal for the year by far the largest in the history of life insurance. It was a sum almost beyond the imagination of man, $100,000,000. We said, "The amount is tremendous, greater than the entire budget of several nations which have made history for a thousand years. It will be attained."

It has been attained. On October 31st, fifty years from the founding of the Agency in 1880, it will be announced just how far we have exceeded the greatest quota ever set by any life insurance agency. Until then we say with pride that the record of our Agency in this year of business readjustment has brought new honor to Pittsburgh. It has met the challenge contained in the title, borne for a generation, of "The largest life insurance agency in the world."

PITT COMEDY DRAMA PUTS FAMILY LIFE ON EXHIBITION

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Alice Ann Baker, who wore the royal purple of the Barrymore family a couple of weeks ago in the Pitt, is now appearing in more homely dress. She's the small town mother who motivates the plot of "That Ferguson Family," a comedy drama of home life, which is the latest George Sharp venture.

We always thought Miss Baker had talent. At the same time, we always thought she was "too much" Alice Ann Baker. But it's been our error. These two portrayals of hers have convinced us of this. So we take this opportunity to toss her a belated bouquet. We say to her: You, Alice Ann Baker, are an actress!

TURN OFF THE LIGHT!

This mother in "That Ferguson Family" is one of those women who can't realize that it is the way of children to grow up and go away. And she's a fretful, worrying soul. She worries about the single light bulb that burns in Mr. Sharp's offstage kitchen, but she's unmindful of the dozen bulbs that blaze away merrily in the living room on the stage. But, in spite of this inconsistency, she's consistent in her scolding.

Her fretting drives her children from her, when what she wants most is to keep them with her. She scolds one daughter into a runaway marriage; another into stealing pretty clothes; a son into a [illegible]-girl's parlor, and her meek husband into tinkering with old clocks.

So it isn't surprising when the last act arrives that she finds herself alone; alone except for her husband. And by this time he has become a man of authority, a man of vision. His words of comfort are: Everything will be all right; now there will be grandchildren.

Paul McGrath gives another boisterous performance in the role of the fellow who is out after one of mother's daughters. Needless to say he gets Jean May. Catherine Maison, as a town gossip, and Robert Fiske, in the father role, arouse interest.

The production is well presented. Its scenic setting is well conceived. And as comedy drama it affords an amusing peep at one family. Who among us will cast the first stone?

"ST. ELMO" CURRENT MENKE OFFERING ON SHOWBOAT

By LEE CURRAN

Marking the close of the season on the Allegheny River at Montrose, Capt. J. W. Menke last night opened a week's engagement of "St. Elmo."

All of the old favorites, including Johnny Lee Austin and his wife, Minnie Devoe, were very much in evidence as the captain staged one of his biggest successes.

In spite of the rain, which began early and continued throughout the night, the opening of "St. Elmo" was witnessed by a typical first night "Showboat" audience.

The production is replete with marriages, after everyone understands that he misunderstood everyone else. The only sigh in the whole presentation is the fact that Carl Replogle, one of the really good clowns at which Pittsburgh has had the opportunity to laugh, passed up his only opportunity to become a Benedict.

While everyone in the piece gives indications that he is doing his best to get a bride, Carl spends his time antagonizing all of his prospects, until he finally has a real chance of ending his life of "single blessedness."

Then it is that Carl tosses his chance over his shoulder, watches that reformed demon, St. Elmo, steal the hit of the piece, and displays the drama of a true heartbreak.

"St. Elmo" has been presented by better companies, but it is a long time since it was shown in such a manner as it is given in this, the closing week of the Showboat on the river.

Legion Hauls Water to Aid In Drought

MARIETTA, O., Oct. 28.—The American Legion has borrowed three trucks from the Ohio National Guard for use in hauling water to drought-hit homes in Washington County, Col. Wade C. Christy, Youngstown, assistant to the adjutant general, announced while in Eastern Ohio last week.

The ex-service men are furnishing the personnel for a drought-relief motor transport corps.

FRANK SILK'S REVIUE SHOWING IN ACADEMY

"Silk Stocking Revue," current attraction in the Academy, headed by the tramp comedian Frank X. Silk, has varied scenic effects. Two of the comedy sketches are "Atta Boy Horace" and "Baggage Office." Jean Pearson is co-featured with Silk. She has several song numbers. There also are vaudeville acts. Earl Rooi, Billie La Mont, Armond Monte, Dorothy Maye, Milton Bronson, Paul Jerome, Yvonne Melford and Tereta Sheaffer are among the cast of principals.

PENNA. NURSES PICK NOMINEES

ALLENTOWN, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Miss Esther J. Tinsley, of the Fitzsten Hospital, was renominated for re-election as president of the Pennsylvania Graduate Nurses' Association of Pennsylvania, at its twenty-eighth annual convention, which convened here yesterday. Other nominations were: Gertrude L. Heasley, South Side Hospital, Pittsburgh, vice president; Jessie J. Turnbull, Mayview Hospital, Pittsburgh, second vice president; Mary Rothrock, Clearfield Hospital, Clearfield; Helen Graeny, Pittsburgh, and Elisabeth Scarborough, Philadelphia, third vice president; Adelaide W. Pfromm, Philadelphia, and Mary Walton, Pittsburgh, secretary-treasurer. Nominees for board of directors are Alice O'Halloran, Philadelphia; Frances Gooden, Pittsburgh; Katherine Hope, Wilkes-Barre; Rose Meyers, Johnstown, and Jennie Manley, Homestead.

The election of officers will take place today when the next convention city also will be named. So far Wilkes-Barre is the only city in the field for the 1931 gathering.

DRY MEN SEIZE BEER, AUTO

Prohibition agents on an inspection tour seized a beer-laden automobile and raided a store, an alleged speakeasy, in McKeesport yesterday.

Observing two men carry two cases of beer into a store in Fifth avenue, the agents arrested them. They gave their names as David Gray and James Welch, of McKeesport. In the car, from which the beer was carried, the agents reported finding 72 bottles of beer.

A raid on the store in which the men were alleged to have delivered the beer, resulted in the arrest of Edward Sayfoot, Jr., according to the raiders' report.

A rent receipt found on Gray, agents declared, led to a raid on a house at 936 Rose street, where large seizures of moonshine and beer were made.

4 MUSIC FIRMS ASK DAMAGES

Four suits charging infringement of copyrighted music were filed in Federal court by New York publishers, who seek to have the defendants enjoined from further public renditions and made to pay damages of $250 in each case.

The Famous Music Corporation charges Joel Baker, who operates the Lake Le Beouf Pavilion at Watertown, Pa., with giving a public rendition of "Sing You Sinners," on September 16. He was also named defendant in another suit by the Remick Music Corporation, which involved the song "Reminiscing."

The Erie Dispatch Broadcasting Corporation was named defendant in two suits brought by the Harms, Inc., and De Sylva, Brown and Henderson. The selections named in the actions were "Dancing Tambourine" and "Little Pal."

SUES TO OBTAIN FIRE PENSION

Harry E. Grieble, of 925 Carson street, retired fire captain, procured a writ of mandamus in Common Pleas Court directed to the board of managers of the Firemen's Pension Fund to be placed on the pension roll.

He was captain of No. 23 Company when he retired after 23 years of service in the department and was receiving a monthly salary of $200, which entitled him to a pension of half that amount, according to the petition. A pension has not been granted him.

Mayor Charles H. Kline, President of Council John S. Herron, Fire Chief Richard Smith, Director James M. Clark and other members of the board are named in the suit. A hearing was fixed for November 12 by Judge Elder W. Marshall.

MAURER FINED FOR SPEECH BAN DEFI

The next time you see Dr. C. F. Linn, of Monongahela, ask him to tell you the story of Mudge, the Linn cat, and the anonymous mouse. A truthful gentleman, Dr. Linn will tell you that one morning Miss Becky Linn tiptoed downstairs to give Mudge his morning saucer of warm milk. But Miss Becky was second; her sister, Miss Marny, had reached and filled the saucer first. But what Miss Becky saw was Mudge lapping contentedly on one side of the saucer, and on the other side, filling itself with equal content, a fearless, tiny mouse.

Fred Service is now one of Mercer County's most prominent attorneys but the index finger on his right hand is still out of joint. It happened in a semi-pro game near Mercer years ago. The attorney was then "Dinky" Service, a good semi-pro catcher. Rube Waddell was the pitcher. "Dinky" signaled for a curve but Rube, misunderstanding, let him have the fast one. With his bare right hand "Dinky" took it—and the finger snapped. It never has gone back into place. Attorney Service was a state senator eight or nine years ago and inconspicuous as most state senators until his colleagues learned that here was a man who owned a finger which had been cracked by the great Waddell. In the Senate chamber on the day of the discovery the most important business was the business of crowding around Service to examine the limping digit.

If you are enjoying what seems to be the unemployment situation, drop around to the KDKA studio in the William Penn Hotel any Tuesday or Thursday afternoon and listen to the auditions. Hopefuls come from all parts of the country seeking fame, fortune and work. Would-be singers, orchestras and announcers show up, nervous and courageous. Sixty per cent are women and 40 of that 60 per cent see themselves as divas.

We asked Percy Boyd, of the studio, how many persons had taken the test in KDKA'S history and he gasped and said, "Oh, my!" Most of the applicants are nervous, although they broadcast only from one room to another. Most of the talent, of course, is not usable, but a surprising number make the grade and are placed on the programs.

One day a few months ago a young foreigner from Greensburg walked up to Boyd and said, "I want to sing on the radio." Boyd requested something from "Pagliacci" because, having a wide range, it is a stiff test. Listeners were amazed at the foreigner's voice. He was immediately given work and Boyd predicts that in three years he will be a name in opera.

His name is Fiorenzo Tasso. He worked as a coal miner and later a gardener near Greensburg. He is studying voice in Philadelphia. Geraldine Farrar is interested in him.

On the other hand, a Chautauqua singer sang a song on a studio audition recently and, when told that her voice was unsatisfactory, stamped out, indignant, remarking that of all the radio stations she'd ever been —— and so on.

The auditions are free to the applicants and inexpensive to the station. Boyd feels the results justify the time. In fact, three of KDKA's present staff of announcers obtained their jobs simply by walking into the station, unknown, and taking the test. In such cases Boyd hands the announcer the nearest print at hand and tells him to read it into the microphone. At the next audition, if he finds an especially nervy applicant, he will probably hand him these lines to read. (In that case, the applicant need have no knowledge of three-syllable words.)

Water Main Breaks, Flood Halts Traffic

Traffic was stopped for three hours in the vicinity of East North avenue and James street, North Side, early this mornig when a 24-inch water main broke. Supt. Robert Black, of the Allegheny Division, Bureau of Water, in charge of the repair work, would give no estimate of the damage.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Half the world is fighting and the other half is out of a job, and would as soon be fighting as starving (for that's one thing in favor of war. They do feed you during one). Then in the midst of all this we start sinking our Navy to save taxes. Saving taxes doesn't help the unemployed. They got nothing, are earning nothing, hence they pay nothing. To reduce your navy in these times is exactly like a man who is not doing so well financially canceling all his life insurance, figuring it's a dead loss, because he hasn't died yet.

Will Rogers.

Yours, WILL.

WEST HEARS CITY, STATE LEADERS

By AL GOUGH,
Aviation Editor.

(Mr. Gough was the only Pittsburgh newspaperman to accompany the first coast-to-coast all-flying passenger airplane. Pittsburgh was formally given a place on this new air-mail and passenger line Saturday when the first ship took on passengers and mail here.)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—The voices of Mayor Charles H. Kline, Gov. John S. Fisher and Mayor Mackey, of Philadelphia, carried messages of good will and congratulations to 500 members of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce here on the occasion of a joint celebration of Navy Day and the arrival of the first coast-to-coast air travelers over the new Transcontinental and Western Airways.

VOICES ON RECORDS

The messages, recorded on dictaphone records carried in the first shipment of air mail over the new route, were reproduced on loudspeakers in the banquet hall of the Biltmore Hotel and broadcast over Radio Station KHJ. Rear Admiral J. N. Reeves, in command of naval aviation operations with the Pacific fleet, was guest of honor and the principal speaker. Maj. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary for aeronautics, United States Department of Commerce, also spoke. Maj. Young was a passenger from Columbus, O., on the inaugural east-to-west flight, marking the beginning of 36-hour coast-to-coast air service.

Admiral Reeves, commenting on the importance of aviation in commerce and national defense, said:

"Aviation is a vital factor in a victory on land or sea. No commander can neglect any weapon placed in his hands by science, and it is our fearless pioneering in commercial aviation that makes for progress."

FISHER'S MESSAGE

The personally delivered addresses were interspersed with the reproduced messages from Pennsylvania and New York executives. In his dictated address Gov. Fisher said in part:

"Pennsylvania is proud of its part in this new aerial transportation system, linking together three of its largest cities —Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Pittsburgh. The Commonwealth has provided $250,000 for the establishment of airways and promotion of aeronautics realizing that air travel depends upon the preparation of its airways and airports.

"Hail to California."

COMMENDS STATE

Maj. Young paid high compliment to Pennsylvania's air-mindedness. He said:

The State of Pennsylvania has co-operated with the department in every particular and is to be commended in its foresight. We are now completing a lighted airway across the Allegheny Mountains and by the first of the year we expect to have in operation a completely lighted and marked airway from coast to coast. This will make possible a 24-hour service to supplement the 36-hour service just inaugurated."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Following the killing of "The Edgewater Kid," a member of Goldie Gorio's North Side gang, Kinky King, leader of the rival West Side gang, is murdered. Evidence points to Goldie, but crooked politics prevent his arrest. To satisfy the public, Polack Annie, the Kid's woman, and formerly Kinky's, is arrested. When the police chief refuses to release Annie, Goldie creates havoc by destroying public property. Later, he raids the jail and kidnaps Annie. The police give chase. As they close in, Goldie throws a twenty-dollar gold-piece at the chief, striking him in the eye, and escapes. The chief plans to deal with the gangsters in the only manner they understand. He makes a proposition to Joe Gleason, heir to Kinky's crown, whereby Gleason is to wipe out Goldie's gang, the rival territory to be his reward. Annie awakes in Gorio's golden palace and learns the gang leader also loved the kid. Chimp, Gorio gunman, captured after the jail raid, is treated to a unique bit of "third degree" methods until he is ready to talk.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVII.

Goldie Gorio and his entire gang were "under cover" at Goldenrod Manor. They were lying low until Goldie could learn a few things—and then Goldie would act after his own fashion.

In the rear and to the side of Goldie's stone mansion were a score of little bungalows, concealed almost as well as was the huge structure—built to conform with the terrain—built so that they seemed a part of the landscape from the distance. In these bungalows were housed Goldie's gang—all but Chimp.

The men played cards, drank and sat around all day. They were forbidden to show themselves until Goldie ordered. Their cars were locked in a huge garage, built into the hill.

Goldie's estate consisted of 60 acres. It was a hilly, wooded section, 30 miles from the Big Burg. The entrance to his place was through a huge steel gate which was locked. Two guards, ex-cons, watched the gate night and day. Running around the estate was a high steel wire fence, with wicked barbs curving outward over the top. At night a dozen fierce police dogs roamed the grounds and four men walked along the inside of the fence day and night. At five different points were telephones concealed in the underbrush, by which the alarm could be spread quickly.

The house itself was a fortress. The innocent-looking French windows in the front could be protected at any moment by huge steel shutters, which dropped when a button was pressed. In the front of the house were small slots through which the noses of rifles and typewriters could be poked. The sloping front yard, cleared of trees, could be effectively swept with a death-dealing fire. And this was the only approach to the house.

In that section Goldie was known as Mr. August Maher, a contractor in the Big Burg. So far his identity had been well concealed and nothing had happened which would excite suspicion in the community. Goldie felt secure here. He could make his last stand in case of trouble. The only thing worrying him was the arrest of Chimp. Yet he had full reliance in Chimp. The cops would never be able to break him down. Chimp and Monk were his most trusted men, and although he had brutally shut the mouth of Chimp when he broke his beak, he knew that this would not affect his vassal's loyalty. Because Goldie knew something about Chimp, and Chimp knew that Goldie knew. Goldie would have turned him up at the slightest rebellion. Goldie could get away with it.

Through the grapevine, Goldie had learned a number of things in the last few days. One was the belligerent attitude of the Kinky King gang since the ascendancy of Secretary Gleason. But the grapevine had not informed Goldie of two important things—the Chief's visit to Gleason and the ratting of Chimp.

Goldie now decided to anticipate the move of the Kinky King mob, since it was to be HELD IN BOGUS MONEY PLOT

Anthony Salamona, formerly of Brady street, Pittsburgh, is under arrest in Louisville, Ky, charged with passing counterfeit $5 Federal Reserve Bank notes. Following the arrest of Salamona and Samuel Bellesiotis in Louisville by United States secret service operatives, the latter raided an alleged counterfeiting plant in an apartment in Detroit, where the spurious notes were said to have been made.

Salamona is a brother-in-law of Tony Balsis, former Pittsburgher, who a few months ago was sentenced in the Federal court at Toledo, O., to serve 14 years in the Atlanta penitentiary for counterfeiting $20 notes. William A. Landvoigt, United States secret service operative in charge of the Pittsburgh area, aided the secret service operatives in the Cleveland district in the arrest of Balsis and the raid of the plant in Toledo, where the bogus $20 notes were made.

Cab Driver Injures Arresting Policeman

Patrolman William Dacy testified in Morals Court today that when he went to the home of Henry Kopec, 28, of 4210 Calvin street, yesterday to arrest him on complaint of his wife, Kopec fought and dislocated Dacy's shoulder. Kopec, a cab driver, was fined $5.

Two Men Victims Of Hit-Skip Driver

Walter Evans, 57, of Elizabeth Township, and Thomas Miller, 59, of Third street, Elizabeth, were in McKeesport Hospital today with serious injuries inflicted by a hit-run autoist in Roberts Hollow, back of Elizabeth, last night. Evans has a fractured skull.

Police Care of Throngs Wins Council's Praise

Council yesterday unanimously approved a resolution praising the manner in which police handled the crowds at the Eucharistic day observance at Forbes Field and at the Pitt-Notre Dame game at the Stadium. The resolution, presented by Harry A. Little, said 75,000 attended the first gathering and 72,000 the latter.

Councilman W. Y. English, who investigated traffic conditions in Boston with Traffic Engineer L. W. McIntyre, praised the system here, comparing it very favorably with conditions in the vicinity of the football stadiums in that section. English said:

"We should have a single authority to handle the traffic lights. I don't care whether the police or the traffic committee have the authority, but it should not be divided. I understand some of the lights downtown were turned off before the game Saturday while others were on."

Councilman Robert J. Alderdice commented on traffic regulation costs, saying:

"Tell us how to reduce the traffic cost. It is getting more expensive every year, and I hear more will be wanted for next year."

Bellevue Class To Hold Meet

The monthly business and social meting of the Women's Bible Class, Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Basil Bell, 840 Florence avenue, Avalon. Assisting the hostess will be Mrs. Bertha Hay, Mrs. Mary Lowe, Mrs. W. H. Koerner, Mrs. Russell Mitchell, Mrs. F. E David and Mrs. M. M. Hubbard.

Art Critic Says 'Messy' Picture Won Prize Here

Royal Cortissoz, well-known art critic, disparaged two of the prize-winning pictures of the Carnegie Institution international exhibition of paintings, in an address at Carnegie Music Hall last night.

He said he disliked the modernists, but objected to Pablo Picasso's portrait of his wife, which was awarded first prize, not because Picasso was a modernist, but because his drawing was "only tolerably good," the draperies in the picture were not arranged satisfactorily, and the painting of the left hand was decidedly poor.

Cortissoz said the painting which won third prize was "messy."

He made it plain he did not think much of the judgment of the jury of award.

Cortissoz said that while the exhibition contained few great paintings, it was one of the best ever held here.

SOCIALIST TO APPEAL CASE

Political Followers Crowd Courtroom for Hearing; Walsh's Action Scored

James H. Maurer, the Socialist candidate for governor, was fined $10 in Central Police Court today for trying to make a speech without a permit in front of the City-County Building yesterday.

At the end of the hearing, Maurer reached over and shook hands with the police magistrate who had fined him, Leo Rothenberg.

ORGANIZER FINED

Also fined $10 was Arthur G. McDowell, 22, of Wilkinsburg, a Socialist organizer, who tried to speak on the Maurer program. The third man arrested, Louis Weissbart, of the North Side, was discharged after it was brought out that he was simply a flag-bearer.

McDowell announced that the fines would be appealed immediately to the County Courts on the grounds that Walsh had shown discrimination in the use of his authority.

In his own defense Maurer said, after Magistrate Rothenberg had asked him whether he knew that a permit had been refused:

"My Republican opponent, Pinchot, had held a similar meeting and I thought I should have been extended the same courtesy. Out of self respect I could not remain silent."

COURTROOM CROWDED

The courtroom was crowded with political followers of Maurer, a former mayor of Reading, Pa., and now the public safety director of that city.

Maurer's attorney, Maurice Schneirov, contended that Police Supt. Walsh had been unfair in refusing to grant a permit inasmuch as the Republican party had been allowed to hold a like meeting. But Magistrate Rothenberg pointed out that it was Maurer's right to appeal to the courts to order Walsh to grant the permit. After the hearing, Walsh himself issued a statement in which he suggested Maurer test the case in the higher courts.

POST FORFEITS

The three were arrested yesterday following an attempt to address a gathering in front of the City-County Building. They had been refused a permit by Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh. The three men were taken to Central Police Court in the patrol and then released on forfeits pending today's hearing.

Maurer motored to Blairsville last night and addressed a meeting there. He intended to continue on to Reading, but canceled that meeting so that he might be in Pittsburgh for his hearing.

Before leaving the city last night Maurer stated it was not only obvious but well established now that the administration of the city will not only permit, but will and did promote use of public facilities that the people could again hear Gifford Pinchot's "extravagant promises," at the same time, denying working people a noon hour chance to hear what he and his followers had to say.

Prior to the arrest of the three yesterday, Dr. Albert E. Day and Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, representing the Civil Liberties Union, called upon Superntendent Walsh to make a last minute request for a permit. Walsh had refused a similar request of party leaders last Wednesday. This was before the Republican rally Saturday noon for which permission was given.

On Wednesday when he refused permission for the Socialists to hold their meeting he did not give any reason. Yesterday in making his second refusal, Walsh declared he did not want another traffic tieup similar to that caused by Saturday's meeting.

Sues for $30,000 Over Fall in Street

A suit asking $30,000 damages from the City of Pittsburgh was filed in Common Pleas Court by Frank Meyer, who alleged he was seriously injured when he stepped into a hole in the pavement at Tustin and Moultrie streets July 26 last, and was thrown against a street car rail.

CITY OFFICIALS PLAN START ON NORTH SIDE

Leasing of Site on Ohio Necessary; Monongahela Property May be Bought

As soon as legal preliminaries are finished, work is to begin on at least one of Pittsburgh's rail and river terminals.

The first work, according to a decision reached late yesterday at a conference attended by Mayor Charles H. Kline, members of Council, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, Controller James P. Kerr and city engineers, will be done on the North Side site.

The sum of $250,000 is available to start the work. Additional money, the Mayor said, can be obtained by a councilmanic bond issue.

PLAN PRELIMINARIES

Preliminary steps to be taken include leasing of the land from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Equitable Land Company, the passage of construction and financial ordinances, the placing in escrow of the value of a strip of property disputed by the two companies and the opening of Reedsdale street to provide entrance and egress for trucks.

The North Side terminal, designed to handle package goods from barge to train or truck, especially the latter, is to be located on the Ohio River, west of the Manchester Bridge.

MAY BUY HAYS SITE

At the same time the conferees agreed to start negotiations for the lease, and possibly the eventual purchase of the Hays site terminal location, now owned by John Eichleay. This is adapted especially for heavy, non-perishable materials. It is on the Monongahela River.

In general those at the conference approved the report of Director Lang and his engineers. This report urged the creation of the two terminals, suggesting the North Side location for a start.

CITIZENS JOIN CRUSADE ON NUISANCE

Churchmen, parent-teachers' associations, businessmen and residents of the Squirrel Hill district are ready for a show-down with City Council at 3 p. m. tomorrow on the question of whether the garbage dump in Forward avenue extension near the Mt. Royal road shall be continued.

Decisive action on the protest of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade against establishment of the dump on the John E. Born property, which it was said the city is considering purchasing for $10,000, is expected at a meeting in Council chambers tomorrow.

The Board of Trade has been augmented by the educational and church groups since it first took up the protest. When the complaint was first voiced, Council members told the business men no more refuse would be dumped on the Born property until a hearing had been held.

Church and school officials joined with the business men when it was learned that in spite of Council's promise, the dumping of refuse continued, although it was covered with ashes.

The proposed dump site consists of seven and a half acres, and was purchased by Born for about $1,000, residents of the district charge. J. M. Lambing, J. J. Lawler, George M. Dowler and Harry Connell, of the Board of Trade, are the leaders in the movement to prevent the adoption of the project.

2 DEATHS HELD DUE TO RUM

The deaths of two men in the North Side last night were attributed to acute alcoholism by the coroner's office today.

An alleged drinking bout in the room of Dave Wiengard, of 816 Manhattan street, proved fatal to his companion, Paul Hahn, 65, of Perrysville avenue. Wiengard told police, they said, that he went out for another bottle of moonshine and upon his return found Hahn dead in a chair. Wiengard and Hahn had been arrested for drunkenness Sunday and discharged yesterday morning.

The body of Henry Greiner, 65, was found in his basement room at 3224 Richardson avenue. Two pint bottles, each half-full of moonshine, were reported found in his room.

The cause of the deaths was disclosed by autopsies performed by Dr. J. W. McMeans, coroner's physician, at the county morgue.

ISLAM GROTTO INITIATES 100

Islam Grotto, Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, initiated 100 candidates at a ceremonial in the Davis Theater last night. The initiation followed a parade from the grotto headquarters at 18 West North avenue to the theater, led by officers and the patrol and members.

The ceremonies were under direction of William G. Doench, monarch; Walter F. Weberg, chief justice; J. Clifford Franz, master of ceremonies; Ralph W. Axthelm, veiled prophet; George G. Schmidt, treasurer, and Louis H. McMahan, secretary.

Camera Question Box

Today's question: What do you think of the new transcontinental air service through Pittsburgh:

JOHN MUSHER, North Side, unemployed: The new passenger air line through Pittsburgh should be of great advantage to the citizens of the city, both in a social and a business way. Just how much benefit will be derived from it remains to be seen.

Mr. Musher

JOHN ZELIK, North Side, unemployed: This new air service will be a wonderful improvement in transportation. It should make Pittsburgh a larger business center by offering such splendid opportunities for personal communication.

Mr. Zelik

MISS THELMA GARSON, Squirrel Hill, student, High School: I love the idea of traveling by plane. I wouldn't mind trying it out, myself. I think this will be a great convenience and help to make Pittsburgh a greater city.

Miss Garson

HENRY FREISMUTH, North Side, unemployed: Opening this new avenue of transportation seems to me to be a good project. It may bring with it more business and better working conditions. The need for these two things is, I believe, very evident.

Mr. Freismuth

MISS SUSAN McHUGH, student, Allegheny High School: I believe this system of transportation will be very advantageous to the city. Of course, as do all other projects, it will take time to prove its worth.

Miss McHugh

MISS DORIS MOORE, North Side, student, Allegheny High School: This new mode of travel undoubtedly will be a good system if it is proven successful. I believe that its use as a means of transportation will depend largely on whether or not it is too expensive.

Mackey Threatens To Quit as Mayor

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Mayor Harry A. Mackey threatened to resign at a meeting of his cabinet unless he was assured of 100 per cent support in bringing about economies in government contemplated in the budget recently submitted to Council. The Mayor served notice that he planned a general reorganization of the city government and said he would not countenance disloyalty.

Mackey, who is supporting Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, said there was no political significance to his discussion with his cabinet.

MOTOR OFFICER DIES IN CRASH

An investigation was launched today into the death of Motorcycle Patrolman Clarence Jones, of West Elizabeth, whose body was found last night on the Elizabeth-Clairton road by Alvin Penn, driver for the Monongahela Valley Bus Company.

It was believed that the patrolman, who was riding his motorcycle, had skidded on a turn and crashed into a tree.

Jones had been on the West Elizabeth police force for two weeks. He formerly was a member of Troop A, State Police, and recently was with the Sewickley Heights police department.

According to Burgess J. B. Abrahams, of West Elizabeth, Jones previously had told him that he was going to see Chief of Police C. A. Livingston, of Dravosburg.

Stephen Spatik, 73, of 409 Wilson avenue, Ambridge, died early today in Valley Hospital, Sewickley, from injuries suffered when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into a truck near Leechdale last Thursday.

Theodore S. Munson, 47, of 1431 Macon avenue, Swissvale, was in the Montefiore Hospital today from injuries suffered when struck by an automobile at Fifth and Bellefield avenues, early today.

Harry Gluckman, 16, of East Main street, Carnegie, swerved his automobile to avoid striking several children in Main street, West End, last night and was arrested on a eckless driving charge. Gluckman's automobile broke off a fire plug.

CITY WATCHES COAL WEIGHTS

Of a score of coal trucks seized yesterday by agents of the City Ordinance Enforcement Division, under the direction of James P. Bailey, six were found to be loaded with from 25 to 100 pounds in excess of the amount paid for, Bailey said. Seizures were a part of the annual campaign to check up on dealers who cheat in weight, Bailey said. The campaign will continue until January 1.

Only six of more than 200 loads of coal checked thus far have been found under weight. Informations will be made against the owners next week, Bailey said.

DOCTOR SEIZED, OFFICE RAIDED

Dr. John S. Drvodelic, at whose offices on the second floor of 203 West Eighth avenue, West Homestead, were advertised "mineral baths," was in the Homestead borough lockup today in lieu of payment of a fine of $100 and costs assessed against him after police became suspicious that something stronger than water was being used in his treatments.

Raiders under Chief David Lindberg and Sergt. Patrick Tierney entered the doctor's offices late yesterday. They said they seized a number of quart bottles containing alleged moonshine.

Dr. Drvodelic was given a hearing last night before Burgess Robert A. Morrow. A visitor, who said he was Carl Miller, of West Homestead, was fined $10 and costs, and spent the night in the lockup with the doctor.

Miller testified he went to the offices for a treatment. A second visitor, who told Burgess Morrow he went to the offices not to bathe but to drink, was discharged.

GROCERY BLAZE ROUTS NINE

Noticing smoke coming from the grocery of I. Singer, at 1814 Fifth avenue, early today, Sub-Patrolman Richard Kearns sounded an alarm, broke in the front door of the store, roused the occupants of the second and third floors and helped firemen carry three women and three children to safety.

Singer, his wife and their children, Alice, 14, Anna, 12, and Robert, 10, were asleep on the second floor. The third floor was occupied by Joseph Kann, his wife, Mrs. Kann's sister, Anna, and a roomer. The fire, of unknown origin, was confined to the grocery on the first floor, and caused damage estimated at $1,500.

PUT ON THE SPOT—By JACK LAIT

war. He would follow military tactics. His strategic move would be—a good offensive is the best defensive. He would wipe the gang out before the gang had a chance to wipe him out.

Only one thing made him hesitate—Polack Annie. The beautiful, titian-haired girl was his objective now. He was madly in love with Polack Annie, though none guessed it. Not even the sensitive intuition of woman made Polack Annie aware of it. She was deluded into thinking that Goldie's unique interest in her was grounded on his intense love for the Edgewater Kid, her lover who had died because of her love for him.

Goldie made no bold overtures to the girl. He was pleasant to her at arm's length—yet it took all his steel will-power to keep him from taking her, willingly or no. Goldie did not want her by force or mere convenience. He wanted his wild love returned, and in every way he sought to inspire in her some interest in himself beyond gratitude.

Appreciative
Girl Begins to Like Gang Leader

Of course, men had taken Polack Annie before—for trifles. But that was before she had met the Edgewater Kid. Her passion for him had changed her whole life. It had awakened in her a loathing for all other men—when before she had accepted their attentions with indifference. It had made a woman of her.

The Edgewater Kid had become a sanctified memory to her now. Thoughts of him had found a shrine in her heart, and she no longer wept over him. With her hallowed love and evefy material wish granted, Polack Annie was not unhappy. The peacefulness of the country soothed her grief. The lavish attentions which Goldie showered upon her eased her pain.

She did begin to think of Goldie in a favorable light. He had been like a father to the Edgewater Kid. He was like a foster-father to her. He did not pester her like other men had done. And she respected him for it.

They had long walks together, and Goldie would always terminate them by some sentimental blurb for her dead lover. He would press her hand consolingly or pat her cheek—but there seemed no sinister significance to these gestures. Sometimes she thought he did look strangely at her, but he offset that by his other actions. Polack Annie began to feel that she owed Goldie much for his kindness.

Confession
Says That She Killed Kinky King

So, when she learned that the Kinky King mob was planning to start trouble over the death of their leader, she told Goldie one night:

"Goldie," she began seriously, "there ain't no use of your gang takin' the rap for the killin' of Kinky King."

"Why not?" asked Goldie, surprised.

"I killed that hog," she answered, looking out through the French window into the purple twilight.

Goldie waited for her to continue. When she said nothing more, he caught her hand and intoned softly:

"I know it, Babes. I knew it because it was pulled with that gold automatic I gave the Edgewater Kid for knockin' off Lefty Pete. And, Babes, that was one reason why I wasn't goin' to take no chances of 'em nailin' that rap on you—why I stuck up Central an' took you away. I was afraid they might make it stick—fingerprints or somethin'—or third-degree you an' break you—though I knew they pinched you to give the papers somethin' to talk about."

"I killed him," dreamily continued Polack Annie, "because he killed the only man I ever loved. I knew he was goin' to croak him the night the Kid took me to the Devil's Hall. I saw it in his eyes that night. I knew that drunken devil. When he saw us, the Kid was on the spot!"

She began to weep softly. Goldie patted her hand.

"There, there, Babes, don't cry," he urged softly.

A Surprise
Goldie Tells Annie That He Loves Her

"I knocked him off with a smile," exclaimed Polack Annie, straightening up, her tear-starred eyes sparkling. "He took the only man I ever loved. When I left him for the Kid I still had a key to his flat. I knew just when to go there—just when the swine would be good and soused. An' before I let him have it I sobered him up—sober enough to know why. He was beggin', prayin—then I plugged him!"

Her slender body was quivering. Goldie put his arm around her shoulders gently, and her red-crested head fell on his breast. But she straightened almost instantly.

"There ain' no use of you and the mob takin' that rap, Goldie," she said softly. "I done that job. I don' care what happens to me. Let 'em burn me up, Goldie—or let Gleason an' his mob take me for a ride—I done it. You been too kind to me—to me an' the Kid—for me to let you get this fall."

"Now, listen, Babes," Goldie began sternly. "What's been done's done. You ain' walkin' into no rap—see? The Kid was like a son to me—"

He paused and pressed her to him.

"—And, Babes, I love you!"

She tore herself loose, fiercely.

"You—what!" she shrilled.

"I love you—like—a daughter!"

"Oh-h-h!"

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Sees Plays, Hears Kreisler

The triangle of attractions last night lured thousands of society folks to Syria Mosque, where Fritz Kreisler played; to the Alvin, where Katherine Cornell appeared in "Dishonorable Lady;" to the Nixon, where "The Well of Romance" had its premier.

Fritz Kreisler attracted the largest crowd, I was told, that Syria Mosque has ever had. There were over 4,000 music lovers there, with hundreds standing throughout the program. The boxes, the first row of the balcony, the parquet were filled with a brilliantly gowned audience. The house, with its three tiers, resembled a fantastic mosaic.

And everyone was there from a group of the season's buds, who were guests of Miss May Beegle, to their grandfathers and grandmothers. * * *

Particularly striking was Frances Kier's gown of white velvet with three tiers of deep ruffles, lined in green, at the side. Harriet La Salle Dorrance was wearing sky blue brocaded crepe, fashioned with a brief train, and a long graceful wrap of black velvet. Elizabeth Childs looked striking in black velvet, and so did her sister bud, Helen Tunnell. And I believe I caught a glimpse of Barbara Irwin, Nancy Craig, Martha Leggate, Jane Marshall and Elizabeth Miller. Eugenia Nash wore a gown of yellow satin, and a wrap of blanket velvet having a scarf collar of cream velvet.

Debs Seen at Mosque

I saw so many folks there last night I'm afraid I can't recall them all. Among the early arrivals was Mary Childs, wearing a graceful black lace gown. Frances Keating wore a black crepe gown and a white hare jacket. I caught a glimpse of Miss Helen Rauh, wearing garnet red chiffon and a white-furred black velvet wrap. And sitting in a box was Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett looking dignified in a printed pale green crepe gown.

* * *

Brilliant Fall Hues

Rosamound Fitch, a bud of the past winter, wore a red lace gown and a black velvet coat with a white hare collar. Another member of the younger set there was Frances Fitzgerald, wearing a copper-lo satin gown, and a greco coat. Mrs. George Collord was there, and Mrs. James Magee and her daughter, Frances Forsyth.

Mrs. A. P. Brill chose an apricot velvet wrap, and a blue crepe dress, and Mrs. William Terrell Johnson wore black lace. Mrs. Ralph Flinn wore an ermine wrap, and Mrs. Edwin Ruud entertained in a box Mrs. Julius Kaufmann, Betty Burke and Mrs. John Sarg. Others I noticed were Mrs. James Patterson and Mrs. David Pitcairn.

During intermission, Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, in black velvet, with a corsage of orchids, was chatting with friends, and so was Mrs. Rose Natalie Yost, who wore brown chiffon and deep cream lace. Mrs. James Edward Lewis wore an ermine wrap, and her daughter, Mrs. Solon A. Person, looked charming in an apricot taffeta gown with rhinestones outlining the decolletage.

Mrs. Charles W. Davis wore a long black velvet coat, and others from Sewickley I saw were Mrs. Clinton Childs, Mrs. James G. Pontefract and Mrs. C. M. Fitch. I saw Mrs. William J. Powell, wrapped in a white ermine coat, waiting for her car, and Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., wearing a black velvet and ermine wrap.

Audience Large

Mrs. Marcus W. Stoner was in the audience, Mrs. Robert Withers wore a wine velvet and chinchilla wrap, and Mrs. Phillip Hoelzell wore a black and white chiffon gown. Mrs. George Pearson had an exquisite Paisley cape, and with her was Mrs. David Wilson Kuhn.

Others I noticed were Judge Sara M. Soffel and Mrs. John Freeman, and Mrs. William D. Hamilton, who wore a blue chiffon gown, with rhinestone trimming and a black wrap with white ermine. Miss Harriet Alexander chose a green chiffon gown and a lame coat with chinchilla.

Mrs. Thomas Chesebrough was there, Mrs. Marcellin Cote Adams in black net with a black velvet coat having an astrakhan collar; Mrs. Mortimer Miller in a gown of ivory satin and lace and a gold lame coat; Bishop and Mrs. Alexander Mann.

Velvet Popular

Mrs. Maitland Alexander was there with her debutante daughter, Madelaine, who wore a white ermine coat. I caught a glimpse of Mrs. A. W. Robertson in a black lace gown and a black velvet wrap, and Mrs. John E. Nelson in white crepe with a black velvet wrap, and her daughter Peggy. The Clarence Van Dyke Tierses I saw awaiting for their car.

Mrs. John H. Bricker, wearing black net and satin with a coat of black velvet and ermine, had as her guests Mrs. H. C. Sheaff, who wore blue chiffon; Miss Edna McEwen, who chose pink net and a black velvet finger tip jacket, and Joseph McEwan.

The gorgeous Katherine Cornell proved her popularity among Pittsburgh first-nighters last night at the Alvin, where she is appearing in "Dishonored Lady." Smoking in the foyer during intermission I saw Mr. and Mrs. George Kelly III, and Mrs. Kelly wore a striking gown of green gold, with a deep V-decolletage. I noticed Margaret Seifert, too, wearing a wrap of black velvet and white fox.

Seen At The Alvin

Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon was chatting with Mrs. Simon T. Patterson in the lounge, and she wore a gown of black crepe, and Mrs. Patterson chose hyacinth blue chiffon, with an extremely full skirt.

Mrs. J. S. Howard was among the first-nighters, too, wearing flowered chiffon and a wrap of black velvet having a white fox collar. Mrs. William Christopher Robinson I caught a glimpse of, and as she was entering the house I saw Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson, Jr., wearing a black velvet dinner dress. I saw Mary Franklin Robinson, too.

Black Dominant

The J. O. Burgwins were there, with Mrs. Burgwin in a wrap of black seal with a collar of white fox. I also noticed Mrs. Frank Judson, Mrs. Wallace Shepard, who wore blue and black chiffon, and Mrs. M. R. Herron.

Mrs. T. M. Jones III was striking in a gown of black lace with a velvet and white fox wrap. I caught a glimpse of Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, too, wearing pansy-purple crepe with a wrap of purple velvet.

Mrs. George H. Love was among the people in the lounge, wearing a distinctive gown of beige lace with a wrap of red and gold lame, having a border of sable.

I noticed the Roberdeau Green Annans, too, with Mrs. Annan in a smart gown of black satin with a yoke of cream satin, and touches of tango red. Her wrap of black velvet was banded with ermine. As she was leaving the theater I saw Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly. * * *

The Nixon's premier attracted many folks, including Mrs. Preston Sturges, wife of the playwright, who wore champagne crepe. The Edward William Gwinners were there, and Marian Stone, whose marriage November 3 to Edward Purcell Mellon II will be a notable social event, was there with her mother, Mrs. Stephen Stone. Marian wore a black lace gown with a brief train and a black velvet wrap, with a deep collar of ermine.

Attending Premier

* * *

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, of Darlington road, will sponsor a meeting in her home tomorrow night for folks interested in training shepherd dogs for use in leading the blind.

* * *

Miss Mary Harnden, daughter of Mrs. Arthur D. Harnden, of Northumberland street, has named November 6 as the date for her marriage to William King Richwine, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Richwine, of Solway street. The ceremony will be a quiet affair, attended by the families and a few intimate friends. The Rev. Dr. William M. Woodfin will officiate, at 5:30 o'clock, in the Third United Presbyterian Church, Northumberland street and Shady avenue.

To Marry On Nov. 6

Miss Frances Ellis will be the maid of honor, and the bride-elect's small cousin, Mary Jane Lounsberry, of Washington, Pa., will be the flower girl. Walter Crawbuck will be the best man, and the ushers will include H. C. Anderson, Jr., H. R. Burgess, R. M. Hays and Karl Straub.

A charity ball will be given by the South Hills Italian Girls' Club on the evening of November 20, in the Hotel Schenley. The ball is for the benefit of the Italian orphanage.

Remedy for Idleness Offered

Addressing the Colloquium Club yesterday as "a sphere of influence," the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers told the members that dismissed workers must be taken back; that no employer has any right to expect one man to do two men's work; that there must be less profit in order that more men may have bread and that his hearers were to take that word home to their husbands.

This he said regarding the unemployment situation in this country, and in line with his comment on the same situation in Russia and his observation that unemployment makes Bolsheviks.

Dr. Ewers told the women much concerning his summer's experiences in Russia and spoke of the country as the greatest social laboratory in the world. There are two things, he said, on which Americans can not think straight—prohibition and Russia, all the facts are gathered on one side and all on the other side are totally ignored.

Dr. Ewers termed Moscow and Leningrad "moth-eaten cities" and remarked that a visitor in either feels under constant tension and espionage and is fed continuous propaganda. The Russian government is frankly and avowedly against religion, private property, romantic love and family life, he stated. Speaking of what he called Russia's exposure of "holy hoey," he declared Pittsburgh has too many churches and it might be a good thing to take one of these supernumerous churches that cannot stand the keen light of intelligent thinking and scientific knowledge and make of it a religious museum, as has been done in Russia.

Constant Espionage

Russia's women are so thoroughly emancipated that they are growing a little sorry for it. The miracle of Russia, he went on to say, is that the casual, dreamy, impractical Slavic temperament has been taken and scourged into a perfect passion of industrial madness. Should this continue, Dr. Ewers says, he looks for war in Europe within two or three years and he is convinced that Communism is the most dangerous thing on the planet and America needs to know how devilish and ruthless it is.

The club met in Woodland Hall, Pennsylvania College for Women, to do honor to its new president, Mrs. Ralph L. Smith, who received with the other officers. Among the guests were Miss Janet Brownlee, a past president and honorary member, who is now living in West Middletown, and Mrs. Edward A. Tobey, another past president, who is no longer a member. A delightful piano group was given by Miss Helene Welker, of the college faculty.

Miss Estella Slaven, librarian at State Teachers' College, will speak on "The Library and International Understanding" next Monday before the Indiana New Century Club. At the November 17 meeting Mrs. J. W. Cary will tell of her European trip and in December the two sessions will have Dr. Mary Riggs Noble, of the state department of Child Welfare, and Mrs. Ramsey Burton, of Erie, chairman of international relations in the State Federation, as speakers. The mid-winter business meeting comes in January and a guest night that same month will be addressed by Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, of Pittsburgh, chairman of community service in the State Federation. A benefit and patriotic night are February's events. Miss Elsie Hoewischer, of Boggs and Buhl's will address the club, at a meeting to be devoted to "Our Club," and Rhea F. Elliott will talk on "Plants and Their Proper Handling"—all in March. The annual business meeting and a sealed program are listed in April as the closing events.

ACCESSORIES IMPORTANT FOR THE WELL PLANNED COSTUME

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Those charming trifles that are accessories to the fact of being well dressed are more to the fore than ever. If so much costly jewelry is being worn in order to scatter the atmosphere of depression, that blankets almost every metropolis, well then, it would be nice if all of us were able to do our share for prosperity in the same way. Be that as it may, let us pause to record that lovely pearl and diamond necklace and diamond and ruby pieces are making gay the afternoon and night.

SHOES AND BAGS continue to evoke much interest, for both are integral parts of the costume, and however fine the hat, coat or frock, one cannot be a sartorial success unless these items blend harmoniously. Clothes are so definitely defined that one cannot just wear any shoe otherwise the whole effect of the toilette will be erased. The very smart walking shoes now available are decorative but yet cannot be worn with an afternoon frock, however elaborated they may be. But the plainest of plain suede pumps will be de rigeur for such a frock.

AND NOW for the latest pearl and diamond necklace which is easy to look upon, even if we are not able to possess such a lovely bauble. It is by Boucheron of the Place Vendome, famous for his gorgeous jewelry, both gems and original settings. This necklace has three graduated strands of perfectly matched pearls lopped at each side into handsome, flexible motifs of baguette diamonds. At the top of each of these motifs, a single pearl strand passes around the back and is closed with a matching baguette clasp. This is one of the choicest and most luxurious necklaces shown here for a long time.

HELLSTERN of the Place Vendome is showing calf skin purses and shoes in sets. The walking shoe illustrated has the padded moccasin relief design applied to a blucher oxford. The clasp on the bag is of precious wood. A very smart but withal sportlike ensemble is achieved in this way.

* * *

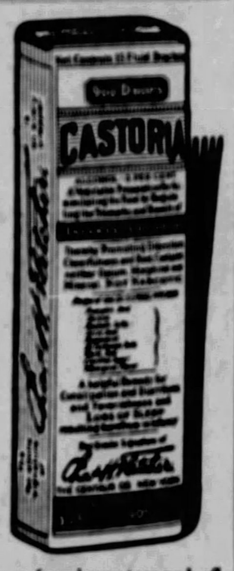
For TEETHING troubles



FUSSY, fretful . . . , of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it right little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

By JAMES J. LONG

WHAT ARE THEY LIKE AT THEIR BEST?

AFTER GASPING AT the speed, power and precision shown by the Notre Dame football team in smothering Pitt at The Stadium last Saturday, if you were in that record-breaking gathering of 74,233, you'll probably find it rather difficult to believe that the Irish did not have what is considered the full strength of their regular lineup on the field at any time. It isn't easy to conceive that an eleven could be any stronger than the South Benders were at the start, or that Knute Rockne could possibly have a better man for any position than he sent into action then, but it is a fact that one of the men who stood out in the great line is only a second-stringer. The regular was missing. And so was one other forward who has first call when he is not on the crippled list.

Dick Donoghue

Joe Kurth's work at right tackle for the Irish was one of the features of the afternoon's line play, yet he has been rated merely as a reserve and has been used as a first-stringer only because of what is believed to be just a temporary loss of form on the part of the regular, Dick Donoghue. Alvin Culver, who played the other tackle, is not a regular, either. The first-string man at that post is Frank Leahy, out on account of injuries.

DONOGHUE WASN'T EVEN brought on the trip, but the dope is that he will be back in the lineup before the season is over. He is the biggest man on the squad, scaling 215 pounds, and was given the regular assignment at right tackle not only because of his greater experience—he is a senior whereas Kurth is but a sophomore—but because he played so brilliantly in 1928 and 1929 that he was considered a strong candidate for all-America honors this year.

THE BIG FELLOW suffered a slight injury in the Southern Methodist game, but that kept him on the sidelines for only a few days. When he got back into practice he failed to tear loose as formerly, so Rockne set him down for the time being in the hope that the experience would stir him up again. The coach believes Donoghue will speedily show a reversal of form and fight his way back to his old job in time for the games with Northwestern and the Army. Leahy also is expected to be fit again soon. So it seems that, great as they looked to be, the Irish were two regulars shy of their full power here Saturday. The general opinion is that they could afford to lose a few more and still be able to plough through average opposition.

THERE APPEARS TO have been considerable confusion as to the nature of the offenses for which penalties were imposed upon the Notre Dame and Pitt teams by the competent officials who had charge of Saturday's big game and handled it in a most fair and able manner.

A check-up shows that several rulings were misunderstood. For instance, it was said that one of the 15-yard penalties against Notre Dame was for holding and that the other was for clipping. As a matter of fact, there was neither a holding nor a clipping offense in the whole game. Anyhow, the penalty for clipping is 25 yards, not 15.

Edwin Kosky

IN BOTH INSTANCES, the actual offense was illegal shifting of Edwin Kosky, who replaced Paul Host at left end for Notre Dame. Another rule violation for which the Irish were penalized about 20 yards on one of Pitt's forward pass plays was interference with a Pitt player eligible to receive the pass. The rule provides that the ball shall be given to the passing side at the spot of the foul. A big penalty that cost Pitt the ball at one stage of the second half, and that was not generally understood, was imposed because a forward pass made by the Panthers struck one of their own line players who was not eligible to receive it.

JOE TORMEY, who had relieved Ralph Daugherty at center for the Sutherlands, was struck in the back by the ball before it had touched anybody else when Pitt tried a forward pass on tl third down. The rule stipulates that when a forward pass touches or is touched by a player ineligible to receive it, the ball shall be forfetied to the opposing team at the point of the preceding down.

So Pitt not only had to give up the ball, but lost possibly 40 yards as well, as the Panthers were deprived of their chance to punt the leather as far as possible into Notre Dame territory on the fourth down. There were four other penalties in the game, each of five yards. All were for off-side play, an offense committed twice by each team.

ALREADY JOE M'CARTHY has begun to clean house as manager of the Yankees, and two members of the catching staff were the first veteran players to get the gate. Benny Bengough has been turned over to Milwaukee and Bubbles Hargrave has been given his unconditional release.

Benny Bengough

Bengough, who came to the majors from Buffalo in 1923, was one of the most capable young backstops in the big show a few seasons back, but during the last two years his usefulness has been impaired by an ailing throwing arm. Hargrave was brought back to the majors from St. Paul last spring as a coach, pinch-hitter and extra catcher. Bill McKechnie wanted him for the Braves at the time, but has not expressed himself as to whether or not he will try to sign him now that he is free but a year older.

McCARTHY HAS MADE another move as manager of the Yankees that he was generally expected to make. He has taken Jimmy Burke from his old berth as Cub coach and appointed him a coach of the Yankees. To make room for Burke, Charley O'Leary, long with the Ruppert outfit in the same capacity, has been dropped. Art Fletcher, former manager of the Phillies and a Yankee coach for several years, will be retained to work with Burke. "I am very glad to have Fletcher's services," McCarthy said. "He knows the American League and the players, whereas Burke and I have been in the National League exclusively the last five years."

NEW YORK U., which plays Carnegie Tech here next Saturday, has ruled the nickname Mac off the football squad. The explanation is that there are four McNamaras on the outfit—Bob, Bill, Paul and Martin—besides an almost similar name in Jack MacDonald. All five have been called Mac, with the result that there were frequent mix-ups.

Therefore a sort of compromise was effected recently. It was agreed to let the nickname stand, but the ruling was that it must be prefixed by Bob or Bill or Jack or Martin or Paul as well. But it didn't work, and different nicknames are now being introduced. The reason advanced by one player is that it's too much work remembering first names.

ZUPPKE HUNTS SPEED

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Coach Bob Zuppke shook up the Illinois backfield yesterday, hunting for more speed. Hunter Russell was used at Pete Vanuskus' half, while Don Munch, who played a strong defensive game against Michigan Saturday, was tried at quarterback.

CLOSES SCHOOLFOOTBALL

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—James C. Harwood, principal of John Marshall High School here, has closed the school's football season after a committee representing the football squad informed him the players would not play any more unless five members of the team declared ineligible were replaced on the squad.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE CARD ANNOUNCED

By CARL W. SHATO.

Although Pittsburgh will be represented in the International Hockey League, rather than the National circuit, this season, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday are to remain "hockey nights" here, the International loop's official schedule, released today, reveals. Of 24 games which the Yellow Jackets will play at Duquesne Garden, eight will be played on Tuesday, seven on Thursday and six on Saturday. Two contests are billed for Friday disposal and, on one occasion league hockey will be offered here on Wednesday.

Duquesne Garden will be the scene of the league's lid-lifter London is billed to help the Jackets set the ball rolling on Thursday, November 13, but local officials are making efforts to have this game advanced to November 11, Armistice Day. If this contemplated change is put through, the Pittsburgh and London puckmen will be in action five days before any other club in the loop gets into the race.

RACE ENDS MARCH 22

The league season is to be closed on March 22, but Pittsburgh will play its last scheduled game on March 20, when Buffalo will appear here.

London, Buffalo, Windsor, Detroit, Cleveland and Syracuse are to appear here in the order named, and by December 9 all clubs in the International circuit will have shown here. The card is exceptionally well balanced, and the Jackets will not be called upon to make extended invasions or home stands.

Pittsburgh will not play as many home games on Saturdays as heretofore, but this is because only two clubs—Detroit and Syracuse—can stage home games on Sundays.

CLEVELAND DEFENDS TITLE

Buffalo will be the attraction here on New Year's night, and no game is carded for Christmas.

Cleveland, the defending champion, again will rank as a title favorite, but the Yellow Jackets, with the players of both the Toronto and Niagara Falls clubs to choose from, figure to give the Forest City aggregation and all other championship aspirants a real argument.

Booth, Injured Yale Star, Back on Job

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Albie Booth, supposedly quite seriously damaged in the 7-7 tie with Army, bobbed up in his usual place yesterday running the Yale varsity through signal drill. He seemed in good condition, but the team physician announced it doubtful that he would line up against Dartmouth Saturday.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A DROP OF WATER CAUSED A CONFLAGRATION—A single drop of water caused the only fire in Durham, N. C., during the month of September, 1929, according to Fire Chief Frank Bennett, in a public report. One drop of prespiration fell from the face of an employe of a hosiery mill in East Durham while he was weighing a combination of chemicals used in the process of bleaching cotton. The chemicals immediately ingnited and the fire spread rapidly out of control, causing a very destructive conflagration. THE MOI REST HOUSE IN INDO-CHINA—The life of the Moi (collective name for the semi-savage tribes which inhabit the mountainous region between Mekong and Annam in Eastern Indo-China) is hedged about with numerous superstitions, chief of which is the fear of departed spirits. To placate them they erect the curious "rest houses" in the vicinity of their villages for the accommodation of the departed souls which they believe still roam their earthly haunts for five years following death. This suggestion is from Dr. Richard L. Sutton, noted author and big game hunter.

TARTANS GIVEN STIFF DRILL FOR VIOLET

By JESS CARVER

Chick Meehan

There are more Irish on Meehan's Violet club than there are at Notre Dame. For example — the five or six McNamaras, the Dunns, Murphys, and the Concannons. I'm glad I'm going to Nebraska with Pitt, for it will be plenty tough writing about all those McNamaras and tryin' to keep 'em straight.

Meehan had hoped to bring his team here undefeated, but Fordham put the fix in by harvesting the Violets on Saturday. The defeat recalls the situation as it existed when New York played here two years ago. Meehan had marched through everything in the East until he ran up against Georgetown, and Lou Little's valiant Hilltoppers rapped him to the tune of 7 to 2. But his team came back right nobly, and erased Carnegie from the list of unbeaten and untied teams of the East in the final game. Remember?

HARD PRACTICE

Carnegie's coaches are afraid of this very thing occuring this time and began preparations for the game Saturday yesterday afternoon. Bob Waddell put his squad through a long afternoon, an unusual procedure for Monday.

The Skibo warriors came out of the game with Western Reserve like a bum out of a speakeasy—in fine shape. Only the most minor of bumps and bruises were suffered by the Tartans, so they have no worry over their physical form as they prep for Meehan's arrival here Saturday.

According to Operative PQ 456—Series ZV, New York spent all last week polishing its offense for Fordham. They must have used the wrong sort of polish, for New York didn't gain its weight in yardage. The chances are, the attack will be stressed again this week, which promises an interesting ball game here, as the Skibos are planning to do the same thing.

Up in the Tartan office, Buddy Overend folded his paws over his round tummy and broke out into a discussion on attendance. It was far too long to be reported in detail here, the gist being that Buddy expects to entertain some 40,000 of the faithful in the Stadium.

And at Pitt—

There was no practice for the battered and disconsolate Panthers yesterday afternoon, the dressing room being as bare of ball players as a eel is of fur. (Fur goodness sake—!) But Harold Teen Moore's quarters, where they bake the throbbing sprain and massage the ailing muscle, was thickly populated with Saturday's casualties.

Hood, the big fullbacker, was sprawled very much decollete, under a lamp, baking the twisted muscles in his right side.

Jess Quatse, his hands swollen to half again their natural size, was getting 'em ice-bagged. They got that way, he said, from the caresses of Irish shoe-cleats.

Josh Williams wasn't present, but he sent a proxy to see about getting some arnica. He uses it for tooth-paste.

Other members of the cast, including Daugherty, who played a whale of a ball game while he was in there, were scattered about, receiving treatment for their aches

ROCCO HANDS PANKA FIRST KAYO DEFEAT

GEORGE TAKES FULL COUNT IN SIXTH

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

George Panka, Homestead's fighting bricklayer, suffered the first knockout defeat of his career last night, being counted out in the sixth round of his scheduled 10-round windup battle with Emmett Rocco, of Ellwood City, before a packed house at Motor Square Garden.

The end came suddenly with Rocco rushing Panka to the ropes and pumping both fists to the body and then to the head. George suddenly pitched forward and took the count shaking his head and holding it with his gloved fists as if to relieve pain. He got up just as the knockdown timekeeper and referee completed the toll of 10.

Rocco had the fight well in hand from the start with the exception of a bad spell in the fourth round, but a knockout for the rugged young Panka did not loom up until he was seen to drop to the floor. No one punch turned the trick. It was the series that he took against the ropes. The sixth round, including the count, lasted only 45 seconds.

EXPERIENCE TELLS TALE

A big edge in experience and ring generalship sent Rocco off to a flying start in the battle. Outweighed five and one-half pounds while scaling 190, Emmett also gave away height and reach, but he tore Lito Panka during the first two rounds and fought George off his feet. With hooking and swinging lefts and rights, he landed at will and in the clinches blazed away with both fists. A left hook shortly after the start sent Panka back off balance and later in the opening round he dropped to one knee for a count of one from a right-hand punch. In the second round, Rocco was warned for hitting low with his left.

The third round was even tougher going for Panka, who, it seemed, would have fared much better if he had boxed, using his left hand, as he did in his recent bout with Tom Heeney at the Meyers Bowl, instead of mixing with his veteran opponent. Rocco kept setting the pace and late in the round nailed Panka with a right to the jaw coming out of a clinch along the ropes and visibly hurt George. Then he volleyed punches to the head and body until he had the Homesteader in a bad way. George managed to weather the storm until the bell, however.

PANKA CARRIES ROUND

Rocco was beginning to tire at this stage and Panka for the first time turned to boxing and had no trouble jabbing solidly with his left and shooting his right to the head and body with telling effect in the fourth round. He finally had Rocco swinging wild. As Emmett missed with an uppercut, late in the frame, George dropped him for a count of two. It was Panka's only round of the fight.

In the fifth, Panka opened up by jolting Rocco with a left hook to the head and followed with two hard rights to the body, but Rocco came on to fight him off and carry the round. Came then the sudden finish in the short and sweet sixth.

It was a good fight for action, especially for heavyweights. Panka had been predicting in advance that he would knock out Rocco, but the latter, on account of his experience, entered the ring the favorite with the betting gentry, first at odds of 2 to 1 and then at 10 to 7.

BRANNON STOPS REED

Eddie Brannon, Negro, of the Hill, 136, won by a technical knockout over Jimmy Reed, of Erie, 135, also in the sixth round, in the scheduled eight-round semi-final, which almost ended disastrously when the referee permitted Brannon to drop Reed for a count of nine and then punch him out of the ring after Jimmy already was on the verge of collapse from having taken punishment that had floored him for four counts of eight previously. It was some time before Reed could be revived sufficiently to be able to leave the ring.

Reed was down twice in the third round and once each in the fourth and fifth and there was no excuse for letting the fight continue when it was apparent that he was defenseless at the start of the sixth round. Part of the crowd sensed his condition and yelled that the slaughter be stopped before the final two knockdowns, but the referee paid no attention until Jimmy was all but killed in action.

KUSIC BEATS MURRAY

Johnny Kusic, of Youngstown, 140, was too clever for Jackie Murray, Negro, of the H'l, 142, and won the unanimous decision in the six-round second bout, the best on the bill, while, in the opener, Len Johnson, of the North Side, 180-pound stablemate of Panka, outpunched the willing but crude Paul Rinsko, of Charleroi, 170, in every round only to see the decision go unanimously to Rinsko.

Willie Davies and Archie Bell, a popular pairing, were announced as the windup principals for the Garden next Monday night.

Eddie Kennedy alternated with Al Grayber as referee, the latter handling the main and second bouts; Frank Brown and Frank Ferris were the judges and Max Zeugschmidt and Norman Borland acted as timers. Harry Klaas did the announcing.

Between Rounds

Promoter Apples Meyers, of the Moose Temple, will complete his card for next Friday night today by signing a pair of scrappers for his second bout. He has Larry Madge and Tom Maico in his windup, Billy Brent and Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland, in the semi-final, and George Annarino, of Ohio, and Jackie Wilson, Negro bantamweight, of Homewood, in the opener.

Ray Collins, of Erie, and Johnny Burba, of Rochester, N. Y., box the six-round main bout of a show at Bradford, Pa., tomorrow night.

Midget Mike O'Dowd and Harry Falasino, a Filipino, box the main bout of the opening indoor show of the season in Columbus, O., next Monday night.

Georgie Chambers, having just beaten Billy Brent, is out with a challenge directed at Buck McTiernan. Billy Linder is his manager.

ENS SIGNS 1931 CONTRACT

thority that McCarthy was not approached.

TERMS NOT ANNOUNCED

The terms of the new document signed by Ens were not given out, but apparently they were entirely satisfactory to the pilot.

The present manager of the club, a native of St. Louis, took over the reins of leadership on the same day of the 1929 race in which Donie Bush tossed them aside.

ENS DID WELL

Ens ran off the remaining weeks of the season like a real director. The pace of the Pirates in that period was as good as any club in either of the major leagues in the same interval.

Last year Ens took a pennant contender to training camp, but the preparatory season had not started before misfortune began to assail him.

First was the serious illness of Outfielder Lloyd Waner; Pie Traynor then ran afoul of eye trouble; Pitcher Heinie Meine, opening day selection, was disabled on the eve of that important event; Pitcher Ervin Brame later became a 10-weeks' victim of the "flu," and Pitcher Steve Swetonic was a victim of appendicitis.

GOOD START—BAD FINISH

These were the more important of the club's disabilities in the big race. There were times when the team threatened to become a flag factor; it jumped off like a championship outfit, but after setting the pace in the early spring the Buccos fell into a mediocre style of play and finished in fifth place.

Through all its hard days, Ens kept his chin up and did not complain.

"We've got to stay in there and hustle and make the best of it," was Jewel's observation on the situation.

The white-haired leader was very anxious to bring home his club in the money. In his 10 years of association with the Pirates as player, coach and pilot, the Buccos had finished in the first division, but he could not make the hurdle this year on account of his hospital list.

ENS WAS STAR PLAYER

Ens' playing days were given largely to the fast minor leagues. He was a star infielder and resourceful pilot in the Texas League when a very young man. Jewel was playing third base and hitting the ball vigorously for Syracuse of the International League in 1921 when the Buccos acquired him.

Ens reported to Manager George Gibson in the spring of 1922 and at once contested with many others for an infield position. As the campaign wore on, Ens became a utility performer.

Gibby quit his managerial post in a dramatic manner in the early part of the 1922 chase, and Bill McKechnie, then coach of the club, succeeded Gibson. McKechnie, like Gibby, was fond of Ens' style, and he retained him as a player.

After the Buccos had won the flag and World Series in 1925, Skipper Bill made Ens a lieutenant. Jewel continued in this role through Donie Bush's reign and then followed Bush into the driver's seat.

Ens is about 40; he is married and has two small children, a boy and a girl.

SAM IS OPTIMISTIC

Sam Dreyfuss, vice president of the Pirates, said after Jewel had signed:

"We have confidence that Ens will keep the Pirates in the flag race next year.

"We had a fine team this year, but it was unfortunate. The squad for next season ought to be even better. French and Swetonic should be better pitchers and we look for much help from Wood, the new lefthander. Moreover, some of the new players may measure up."

COUNTY LEAGUE MEETS

The first meeting of the Allegheny County Basketball League was held last night, at which time applications for berths for this season's play were received. The Duquesne Lafayettes, which copped the title four consecutive years; Beckman Motors, J. J. Mieles, Fintex, Charleroi, Elizabeth and Homestead were represented.

Bill McKechnie Visits Pirate Headquarters

The Pirate directors asserted that Bill's visit had nothing to do with any deals involving the Pittsburgh and Boston clubs.

"It was just a personal call," they said.

St. Louis Open Golf Tourney Out $3,000

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—The St. Louis open golf tournament, which attracted golfers from all sections of the country, resulted in a deficit of more than $3,000, it has been learned. However, guarantors of the tourney have been asked for 25 per cent of the amount they subscribed for to make up the deficit, it was said.

TEMPLE CALLS IN TICKETS

According to the good word from Philadelphia, from whence comes most of the word, either good or bad, Temple University athletic office has called back all the tickets that had been sold for the game November 22 with Carnegie Tech.

A flock of bogus ducats put in their appearance a week ago, and the Temple bosses decided to get out an entire new set.

This sets a record for ticket scandal by at least three weeks. It is seldom that the fakes appear and the cry of the scalper is heard before at least the week in the game. Looks like they were waking up in Philly.

The Tipoff

When he arrived in Cleveland for Saturday's game with Western Reserve, Bob Waddell, coach of Carnegie Tech was informed that the Reserve mentor, Gordy Locke, was in the hospital.

"That's too bad," Bob cracked back, "but he's only the first of a lot of coaches who will be either in a hospital or the nut house before this season is over."

And how about the ladies who sat on the Pitt bench Saturday? Looks like football has gone effeminate.

The crack you hear most after a ball game—"who won the ball game, who's got the bottle and where's my wife?"

Believe it or not, but this scribbler had two requests for tickets for the Pitt-Army game for next year.

Saturday's football hit Old Man Depression right on the nose. There were 87,000 in New York watching Fordham and N. Y. U.; 80,000 at Yale for the Army game; 75,000 here in Pittsburgh and 88,000 in Los Angeles watching Warner take one on the whiskers from Southern California.

The best nifty that I heard after the Pitt game was one pulled by a slightly blaa-blaa gent in a William Penn elevator. He was leaning in all directions, and when some one made a crack after the game, he let this one get away:

"Pitt woulda won that game if they'd played five quarters."—JESS CARVER.

INJURIES LIKELY TO COST DUKES KOVALCHECK

The night riding Dukes of Duquesne will face their most formidable foe of the season, North Dakota University, without the services of their star fullback, plunging Kass Kovalcheck. Kass was taken from the Catholic University game last Friday night early in the first quarter. It was at first thought he had strained the ligaments in his foot and leg, but the hurt has taken on a more serious nature while Kovalcheck hobbles about the campus on crutches, his foot in a cast.

The Flickertails, of North Dakota, ought to prove the biggest football team to strike this Steel City during the current season since not one man on the line weighs under 200 pounds. And Coach C. A. West's big club, which is going on to its third successful season, has a backfield averaging 190 pounds of speed, brain and brawn.

TOUGH FOR DUKES

With Kovalcheck out probably for the rest of the season and his football career at Duquesne therefore ended, Head Coach Elmer Layden, of the Dukes, will have plenty on his mind between now and November 7 when the Night Riders ride their last game of the season under the floodlights of Forbes Field against N. D. U.

X-ray pictures taken yesterday afternoon may hold some ray of hope for Kass Kovalcheck, but it is absolutely certain that the big fullback will be out of both the North Dakota and Geneva College games, two high-lights on the Duke schedule.

North Dakota plays the Army at West Point on Saturday, the Cadets being the second Eastern team met by the Flickertails. Davis and Elkins, always a formidable ball club, fell before the crushing weight and dazzling speed of the North Dakota eleven, 16-0. The Red and Blue are sure to have a battle on their hands with their next foe, but if the men from way out West, where football players grow big and brawny, should happen to knock off the Army gridders, then the Dukes will have to prepare to stop an avalanche.

BLUFFITES STALE

The Dukes have been playing a stale sort of ball game it seems, although allowance must be made for the fact that their last three opponents also used the Notre Dame system, and their coaches who are far from pleased with their performance to date have ordered a heavy working schedule from today onward. Kovalcheck's injury completes the first team roster of hurts, excepting only Red Murphy, left end, every first stringer has had an injury this season. Burns, Pratt, Lally, Silverstein, Benedict and Kovalcheck having to remain out of games.

and pains, but the treatment they needed most was balm for injured feelings.

ENTRAIN WEDNESDAY

The best thing for such isn't so good for football players.

The chances are, although there has been nothing said by the coaches as yet, that Jim MacMurdo will be moved back to a tackle, Tully or Quatse benched for reserve strength and Daily, Hirshberg and Collins used as starting wingmen. MacMurdo never was impressive as an end, and Saturday, against the Irish, he was just another ball player.

The Panthers will entrain Wednesday night for Nebraska. They'll spend Thursday in Chicago and Friday in Omaha, moving into Lincoln the morning of the ball game.

CHICK DRILLS N. Y. U.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Chick Meehan has started out to wipe fumbling out of his Violet squad before Carnegie Tech gets here Saturday. A fumble by Jim Tanguay gave Fordham a chance to score the only touchdown made in the game with the Violets. The varsity worked out against Carnegie formations.

Baer, Manager Are Reinstated

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—(INS.)—Max Baer, heavyweight boxer, his manager, Hamilton Lorimer, and two seconds, Frankie Burns and Ray Carlen, were reinstated yesterday by the boxing commission.

All had been under suspension since the fight here two months ago between Baer and Frankie Campbell, which resulted in Campbell's death.

The commissioners, James Wood, Charles F. Traung and William H. Hanlon, said they were putting the quartet back into good graces so Baer can participate in a benefit bout contemplated here soon for the widow of Campbell.

However, the commissioners added, if the investigation of boxing now being conducted by Alan Bixby, in charge of state veterans' affairs, involves Baer in any way, the "reinstatement will be reconsidered."

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 44.

I have my own ideas why the Athletics were nosed out by Washington in the 1925 pennant fight.

Central standard time prevails in St. Louis and the games between Washington and Cleveland ended before our game with the Browns was half finished.

Connie Mack

The scores, of course, were posted inning by inning at the St. Louis park. Cleveland would be ahead at the start of the game and then Washington would beat it out in final innings.

The psychological effect of these games in Cleveland was plain. Our young players could not keep their eyes off the scoreboard. I am positive that it had a bad effect on our whole team.

Remember that most of my players were young and did not have the background of older players who would have paid no attention to the score of another game. I am not sure, but I believe things might have been different if the Athletics and Washington teams had started playing at the same hour, in which case there would not have been the fatal distraction of our young players paying more attention to the game in Cleveland than the one they were playing themselves in St. Louis.

PLAYERS BREAK DOWN

Up to this St. Louis series, everything was going along smoothly. Our players were not pressing and apparently were not worried.

They were not what is known as "pennant-conscious." While ball players are expected to play their hardest in the white heat of a campaign and aspire to the biggest awards open to them, it often is a detriment in the closing phase of a pennant struggle to think too much of the championship, for it is apt to unsettle them.

So prior to the St. Louis debacle, my team had been going along at an even pace, steady and unharassed, and it had been my intention to continue it that way until the first of September.

Then I had in mind that I would take off my coat and start them for the real pennant drive, but this was not possible when they smashed on the reefs in St. Louis.

WESTERN TRIP A ROUT

This last Western trip was a rout. While we went to Chicago and won two in a row, losing our first and last games, we started to sag and all told lost 12 straight before winning again.

It is only natural that some of these defeats were heart-breakers. We lost many a game that we could have won had not our players been panicky and pressing too much.

These defeats had completely lost them their poise and stability. They were as different from the team of early August as night is from day.

While we lost 12 straight on this ghastly trip, we finished a good second, well ahead of the third-place team.

I always felt that we should have won this pennant and traced our defeats to the fact that our players were too young to survive the ordeal of a pennant fight.

They did not yet possess the experience and background for such a test on their wits and stamina.

TEAM IMPROVES

They were too young to finish on top, yet I felt that I had a real machine at last and it would improve with the years.

We had done something, at any rate. We had finished in second place and that was the highest mark achieved by an Athletic team in the past 11 years.

I comforted myself over the loss of the championship by realizing that I had a powerful ball team at last and that it never was to be stopped with a little more experience and a few replacements.

BURNS, AMBRIDGE TO BATTLE TOMORROW

GRID LEAGUE LEADERS IN NIGHT TILT

By TOM BIRKS.

Still clicking along in wonderful fashion, the Western Pennsylvania Independent Gridiron Conference starts the second half of its titular race Sunday with McKeesport Olympics, Burns, the Majestics and West View very much in the race for the Honus Wagner trophy.

Contrary to sandlot critics, it has been anything but a one-sided race, and every team has been beaten. The Olympics are leading the pack by margin of one point, but the Tubers have played one more game than their nearest opponent.

Practically all of the managers have settled upon the lineups for the balance of the season. Sunday is the last day that names can be added to the list, and these lists will be published early next week.

LITTLE PRACTICE

Tomorrow evening Burns will play its conference game at Parnassus High School Field with the Ambridge Mystics providing the opposition.

Jimmy Smith feels that the worst Burns should have gotten out of the Akron game was a scoreless tie.

The Black and White had five first downs to one in the first half, and Dunn had the Awnings played off their feet. Dunn did not get into the game in the second half, probably being kept out for the Ambridge game tomorrow evening, which means more to the New Kensington club than an independent game in Ohio.

Keeping up its reputation, East Pittsburgh upset the dope by stopping West View, so Paul Muzzio is going to get his Red and White-clad outfit out to practice. Getting players out for practice seems to have all of the conference managers up in the air. This lack of practice is keeping down the scoring possibilities.

TWO BIG GAMES

On Sunday the big battle finds Burns A. A. clashing with the Olympics at the Bridgeville Speedway, and this battle means a chance to stay in the race for both clubs.

At Ambridge, the Mystics clash with the East Pittsburgh Firemen, and this game will give the Ohio Valley fans a chance to see Hooks Carroll, one of the best quarterbacks in this district, in action.

ROCKNE LIKES OWN SHIFT

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Knute Rockne can win ball games without his famous shift just as he has done so often in the past but if the rule-makers ever should outlaw this movement entirely he will quit guaranteeing to fill stadiums from one end of the country to the other.

Riding the high tide with another superlative Notre Dame team, perhaps the greatest he or any other coach ever has developed, the Norwegian master of the ready wit is in a happy mood these days. He feels rather deeply about regulations that have brought the shift to a full stop with at least a second's halt but the last laugh is not on him.

DON'T NEED SHIFT

"Notre Dame can get along without the shift," he declared in a round table discussion before the game at Pittsburgh. "We can stop 10 minutes on every play if necessary—as a referee warned us we'd have to do once—but there won't be much color in that kind of a game. We can win without the shift, but we won't draw the crowds. The color will be gone.

"Sure I could eliminate the shift. I could pass and play from a punt formation for one thing or I could use great big fellows and bruise a way through. But I don't choose to do either.

"There's nothing unsportsmanlike about the shift. It merely gives little men of ability and speed the chance to handle big men. It adds speed and grace to football. It brings out pass development. That's why, when light shifty teams began to beat the big fellows, coaches realized that a couple of 50-yard passes were better than 100 yards of driving. Some time the rules committee may realize this too and take the restrictions off running attacks."

LIKES SPEED

Rockne likes football material with brains, heart and speed. If you can have size and power along with these, he says, then you have potential all-Americans. But there is no room in Knute's system for the slow-witted, powerful fellows who depend on might alone. Rockne nods a smiling assent to Chick Meehan's declaration that Notre Dame wants acrobats, not football players, for her football teams.

As for systems, Rockne likes his own best, or he wouldn't be using it. The only difference between his own style of play and Pop Warner's, the other most-copied coach in the game, is his use of speed and deception where the Stanford veteran likes power and deception. The fullbacks, he thinks, typify the difference in the two styles of play.

IOWA REGULARS BACK

KID CHOCOLATE STOPS DOYLE

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban featherweight, knocked out Mickey Doyle, of Pottsville, Pa., last night in the first round of a scheduled 10-round feature bout here. Each weighed 127 pounds.

MILLER BEATS RUTH

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Freddie Miller, 127, Cincinnati, gained a newspaper decision over Babe Ruth, 126, Louisville, Ky., last night in a 10-round bout here. Ruth was down for counts of nine in the fourth and seventh rounds, but came back each time to furnish the fans with a good fight all the way.

Jackie Herman, 149, Wheeling, knocked out Pal Reed, 143, Springfield, Mo., in the second round. Eddie Ruckman, 136, Wheeling, and Jess McMarty, 135, Cincinnati, fought a six-round draw.

SAMMY MANDELL WINS

TWO DOGS TIE IN FUTURITY

CRAB ORCHARD, Ky., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Headman, owned by G. P. Patton, Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Ruling Chief, owned by the Golden Valley Kennels, Forest City, N. C., tied for first place in the general averages for the first cast in the Chase Futurity of the National Fox Hunters' Association here yesterday. Tracy Moore is master of the Golden Valley Kennels.

Headman is by Ladkin, out of Bonnie Stride. Ruling Chief is by Little Danger, out of Susan Moore. The second and third casts in the futurity, which carries a purse of $1,000 and trophies, will be run today and tomorrow.

Three dogs tied for second place in yesterday's trials. They were Morgan Casper, owned by Dr. M. Casper, Louisville; Warab's Merry Lass, owned by H. V. Conant, Dedham, Mass., and Danger's Fancy, owned by the Golden Valley Kennels.

Min's Last Cricket, owned by Dr. E. B. Ellis, Wakefield, Va., and Sunny Girl, owned by G. B. Morgan, Memphis, Tenn., tied for third. Florine, owned by Robert J. Walker, Paint Lick, Ky., was fourth.

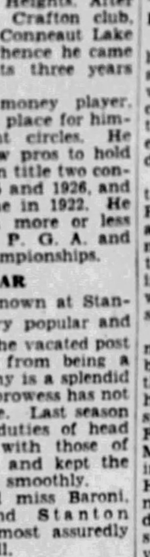
Young Ortiz Rubio with his brother, Guillermo, recently enrolled at St. Benedict's.

CARROLL GIVEN BARONI'S JOB AT STANTON

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The passing of Handsome Fred Baroni and the elevation of tilian-tassled Jimmy Carroll is the big news item in today's golf. Baroni has announced his intention of taking up a berth in the East next season. It has been reported, while an official of the Stanton Heights Golf Club has confirmed the fact that the board has accepted Fred's resignation and agreed upon placing Jimmy Carroll on the job as professional, beginning with the first of April. Carroll has been with Stanton Heights for a number of years, his capacity being that of caddie-master. Baroni will stay on the job until the latter part of next month.



Fred Baroni

The fact that Baroni is leaving the district, if the report be true, means that Western Pennsylvania is about to lose one of its finest competitive players and by all means one of the most popular men in the tri-state professional ranks.

FIRST AT OAKMONT

He came to this city from a little town in North Carolina 18 years ago, when he was only 12, working first as a caddie at Oakmont. In three years he became assistant in the pro shop to Macdonald Smith. In 1918 he became professional at the Montour Heights Golf Club, leaving there to go to Chartiers Heights. After two years at the Crafton club, Fred went to the Conneaut Lake Golf Club, from whence he came to Stanton Heights three years ago.

Marked as a money player, Baroni has made a place for himself in tournament circles. He was one of the few pros to hold the West Penn open title two consecutive years, 1925 and 1926, and held it a third time in 1922. He has qualified with more or less regularity for the P. G. A. and national open championships.

CARROLL POPULAR

Carroll is well-known at Stanton Heights, is very popular and should readily fill the vacated post of Baroni. Aside from being a decent golfer, Jimmy is a splendid instructor and his prowess has not gone without praise. Last season he combined the duties of head locker-room man with those of the caddie-master, and kept the machinery running smoothly.

The district will miss Baroni, unquestionably, and Stanton Heights members most assuredly will welcome Carroll.

Tee to Green

Col. Franklin Blackstone, of the Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, urges every compatriot in that organization to get his scores in to him or George L. Craig, Jr., before Friday of this week, so that they may be tabulated for grand total in this state's bid for the National S. A. R. team championship.

The Pennsylvania Society, S. A. R., has held the Blackstone-Forsyth Trophy for three consecutive years, or since the inception of the event, and unless a better representation is returned, Col. Blackstone believes one of the Western States, especially California, will take the bow this year.

Clubs throughout the district are making lavish preparation for Halloween parties Friday and Saturday of this week. Most clubs are advising their members to make early reservations—have you?

It would not be surprising if radical changes were noted in the professional personnel at several district clubs before next season rolls around.

Retired, Gallant Fox Is Sent to Paris, Ky.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP.)—Gallant Fox, William Woodward's 3-ear-old champion and the greatest money winner in the history of the American turf, has bidden farewell to the East, scene of most of his brilliant triumphs.

The big son of Sir Galahad, III, and Marguerite, left yesterday by train in his private horse car for Paris, Ky. He has been retired to stud and from competition for the rest of his life.

REIDER, PITT BACK, PIRATE PROSPECT

THE IRISH

Green was their raiment in Nature's glare,
Light were their hearts from a spiritual lure;
Sweetened, the breeze by October's sun—
Pleased, if you will, at the wholesome fun.
Clean was the speech of the Emerald Hosts;
Brilliant their play—yet devoid of boasts;
Fierce in their tackles, but never small—
"Win like a sportsman—or not at all."

Happy their visit, and small the pain—
So long, Rockne—but come again.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

He was only a first-year "sub" when Knute Rockne's wonder team rushed onto the Stadium, but when the fight ended this obscure Panther halfback had won much prestige with the Pitt coaches and the students were singing his praises.

Paul Reider

Paul Reider, one of the most versatile of the athletes of the University of Pittsburgh, was anxious to play against Notre Dame, even with the handicap of a bruised shoulder. The New Castle youth had visions of swinging into action at some part of the game, although he did not build too high with his yearnings.

RECOVERS KICKOFF

But when Reider was sent to his post he immediately assumed a stellar role. He was the fleet lad who sprinted down the field to recover a muffed kickoff and about two minutes later Paul skirted left end for one of the Panther touchdowns.

These two sensational plays on the part of Reider thrilled many Pitt partisans, but none registered a bigger kick than Jewel Ens, manager of the Pirates, who thinks that Paul might develop into a major league baseball star were he to follow up the sport at some later period.

Pitt having no baseball doesn't mean that the institution has no boys who are able to feature in the sport of the diamond. Reider has such a case on baseball he spent much of his spare time at Forbes Field. Given a uniform by Manager Ens, Paul made a quick impression and he loves the game. He moves around second base nicely and his speed adds to his diamond assets. The new Panther star weighs about 165 and he is very well built.

FOUR-SPORT ATHLETE

Reider, it develops, is a splendid four-sport performer. He is a fine basketball played and a dandy on the track stuff on account of his running.

It was reported that Paul, too, was a member of the Pitt debating team, but the report proved erroneous. It probably grew out of the fact that Reider won a couple of arguments from Caleb (Socko) McCarey, of the Pirates, a result which should qualify him for any college debating team.

Rockne Gives Irish Two Days Rest

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Knute Rockne rewarded his first and second Notre Dame teams with two days of rest for those 35 points against Pittsburgh last Saturday. Rockne, however, kept busy by working with the third, fourth, fifth and sixth elevens. Frank Leahy, veteran tackle, was definitely declared out of action for the remainder of the season, his injured leg having persistently refused to yield to treatment.

PRACTICE CUT SHORT

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—What started out to be a busy two hours of football practice for the battered University of Chicago squad yesterday, was halted at the end of an hour when the flood lights on STAGG Field went out.

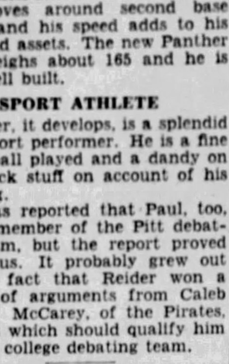
the country's leaders and his stable colors have been carried to victory in many a famous stake.

In 1913-20-24-26-27-29, Mr. Whitney was the leading winner on American tracks, the winnings of his horses in those six years totaling $1,664,302. The biggest year was 1926, when the earnings were $407,129. In two other seasons they exceeded $300,000. He and E. B. Bradley were the only owners whose horses ever won the Kentucky Derby twice, and he also was the owner of the only filly that ever won that classic, Regret in 1915.



Eddie Gerard

EDDIE GERARD, the new manager of the New York Americans in the National Hockey League, has been out of the ice game for a year, holding down a government job in Canada, but if he hasn't lost his old knack of developing exceptional players he may be expected gradually to build up a winning club. Two of the greatest players in the game stand as testimonials to the coaching and managerial skill of Gerard. In Montreal he picked up a hockey-playing bank clerk named Nelson Stewart and made him into the best forward and the most persistent scoring threat in the puck world. He took another amateur named Babe Seibert from the Montreal school and developed him into as good a combination of defense man and puck carrier as the game has known in the last 10 years. Gerard played on two Stanley Cup winners, the Ottawa Senators and the Toronto St. Patricks, and later managed the Montreal team when it captured that famous trophy in 1926.

FRANK BRUEN RESIGNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Frank J. Bruen voluntarily resigned yesterday as manager and vice president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, it was announced at the Garden. Bruen had filled the post formerly held by the late Tex Rickard, since June, 1929.

William F. Carey, president, said no effort has been made as yet to find a successor, but it is expected Carey himself will serve as manager of the Garden until one is chosen.

Bruen explained his reason for resigning was the difficulty of handling the job, together with his duties as general manager of the Miami Race Track. He said he had not had any time to himself in more than a year.

Carey, praising Bruen's work at the Garden, said he was sorry to have him leave. Although he never had had any connection with boxing, Bruen took over the reins which had been handled by Carey, immediately after the death of Rickard and had run the Garden to the corporation's satisfaction since. It was reported, however, as early as last winter, that the press of his racing interests would compel him to resign.

WON'T BUCK MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—The Miami Herald says that Frank J. Bruen resigned as manager and vice president of Madison Square Garden Corporation when William F. Carey, president of the Garden, decided definitely not to hold a major heavyweight fight program in Miami this winter.

The Garden in the spring of 1929 entered into an agreement with the city of Miami for a major boxing card of contenders for the heavyweight throne each winter for a five-year period. The first of these fights was held last February when Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott headlined the card.

Bruen, the Herald says, broke off with the Garden rather than be a party to breaking the agreement with Miami. Three weeks ago, Bruen was in Miami and announced the Garden again would have its winter fight program.

The Garden built an arena here seating 50,000 persons at a cost of $100,000 on property leased without cost from the city.

Trinity Courtmen Lift Lid Tomorrow

A gala event is slated for Trinity Cathedral basketball teams tomorrow evening, when the first gong in local basketball circles will be sounded. Beginning with a dinner at 5:45 p. m., to be attended by the 80 boys playing basketball at the Sixth avenue church, six teams will see action in three "intramural contests."

Secretary of Boys' Work T. Aubrey Davies has arranged for the Tritans to play the Trimmers in a midget-class game; the Tritans, in the 14-15-year-old class, play the Royals' Reserves, in the 15-16-year-old class, while the Royals, in the 16-17-year-old class, take on the Cathedral quint, a first-class five which may play in the International League this season, in the big event of the night.

The playing season with outside teams will begin shortly at Trinity, and information for games may be had by communicating with the aforesaid Davies at Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue.

Big Ten Refuses Shift of Venue

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Dr. W. J. Moenkhaus, of Indiana University, chairman of the Western Conference committee on Athletics, has announced the Big Ten has refused the request of Northwestern University to transfer its football game with Notre Dame November 22 from Dyche Stadium at Evanston, to Soldier Field, Chicago.

The proposal had been advanced, and agreed upon by the two schools, because of the increased seating capacity of Soldier Field, with the plan to make the game a charity benefit.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Capt. (Hard Luck) Hank Bruder, about 10 pounds lighter after his tussle with smallpox, but showing no other signs of having been ill, rejoined the Northwestern football squad yesterday.

MOVIES SHOW ARMY SCORE ILLEGAL

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Motion pictures of the 7-7 tie Army and Yale football teams played here Saturday convinced Yale officials yesterday that the touchdown scored for the Cadets by Tom Kilday was not made strictly in accordance with the rules of the game. The officials, however, said they would accept the official decision ruling it a touchdown.

The pictures, which were viewed by Head Coach Mal Stevens, Coach Adam Walsh, Tad Jones, Dean Clarence Mendell and Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic Association, also showed the details of the one and only play in which Albie Booth, star Eli quarterback, participated during the game before he was carried off the field on a stretcher and later to the university infirmary.

Violation of Rule 10, Section 1, Article 1 which sets forth what aid a player may and may not receive while running with the ball was disclosed by the pictures. With fourth down and one yard to go for a touchdown, Kilday was given the ball and hurled himself against the Blue line. The pictures show that he was thrown back before he reached the double stripe, but as he fell back Stecker charged in, hit him squarely in the back and lifted him over the goal line for the touchdown which put the Army on even terms with the Elis.

NO PUSHING ALLOWED

The rule in question provides that "no player of the team in possession of the ball may help the runner except by interfering for him, and there shall be no interlocked interference." A supplementary note reads that "pushing the runner or lifting runner from the ground by teammate is infraction of the rule." Infraction of the rule carries as a penalty loss of 15 yards.

The Yale Athletic Association issued the following statement concerning the touchdown:

"There will be no protest over the alleged illegal touchdown made by Army. The official decision is accepted."

ARMY SILENT

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Officials here refused last night to discuss the motion pictures shown at New Haven that indicated Army had scored an illegal touchdown to tie Yale in Saturday's pigskin conflict. Coaches and officials alike refused to be quoted.

Taylor Buys Release From N. Y. Rangers

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Ralph Taylor, veteran defenseman, has purchased his release from the New York Rangers, of the National Hockey League, and has signed with the Shamrocks, Chicago's American League representative.

Thomas J. Shaughnessey, president of the Shamrocks, said he did not know how much Taylor paid for his release, but said he believed it was more than the National League waiver price of $5,000.

Shaughnessey declared the deal was important, not only to his club, but to the American League, which has been called an outlaw group by President Frank Calder, of the National League.

"The fact that Taylor bought his release to play with us, shows that the American League has no intention of tampering with National League player contracts," Shaughnessey said.

Harvard Builds Stronger Attack

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Harvard has decided that a good defense doesn't win ball games and a few new offensive tricks are in the making on the banks of the Charles. Army and Dartmouth could score only a touchdown apiece against the Crimson, but Harvard's sum total of points in the pair of engagements was a lone safety, two points. Coach Horween is scrimmaging his men to do something about it.

SOUTH GIRLS COP SWIM

South High School's girl swimmers won top honors in the senior division of the city scholastic swim meet yesterday afternoon in the Fifth Avenue High School pool, when they registered an aggregate of 33½ points. Peabody's team was second, though a poor one, with only 14 points.

Philly to Support Two Hockey Clubs

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Herbert Gardiner, manager of the Philadelphia Club in the Canadian-American League, left last night for Canada to round up five players he has signed for his team.

"I hope to arrange for their entry into the United States right away," Gardiner said. "and get them here for a few days' practice before we open the season here November 13 with the Providence Reds."

Philadelphia will be a two-league hockey center this season, with Benny Leonard at the head of the National League Club, recently transferred from Pittsburgh. The Nationals, who will frequently play twice a week here, will be in action Tuesday and Saturday nights. The Canadian-Americans will play Thursday night.

ROSSEY HAS HIGH GUN

OIL CITY, Pa., Oct. 28.—With a score of 193 out of possible 200, Ben Rossey, of Oil City, topped all shooters in the small bore rifle match at Reno range. Thirty-eight contestants, representing best shots of Oil City, Franklin, Reno, Oleon, New Kensington, Tionesta and Clintonville, participated. Floodlights will be turned on for tonight's shoot. Ralph Flinchbough and J. R. Craig were second, tied at 192.

Fight Results

IDLE PROBLEMS OF NATION TWO-FOLD

Temporary Unemployment, Adjustment to Machine Should Not Be Confused

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Relief of temporary unemployment should not be confused with the larger problem of adjusting man to the machine.

Unemployment in modern industrial countries is two-fold. First, there is so-called cyclical unemployment, which results from a temporary slump and which is corrected by a return of prosperity. Then there is the so-called technological unemployment, which is a longer term problem, resulting from the new efficiency of industry and the increased use of labor saving machinery. Unless the new efficiency results in greater human happiness, it is probably not worth the candle. Samuel Butler, the prophetic novelist, told of an imaginary country, "Erewhon," where the use of machines was prohibited by law.

Mr. Rukeyser

President Hoover has disclosed that in co-operation with the American Federation of Labor he is studying the problem of technological unemployment, which may call for a redistribution of leisure

FAVORS SHORT WEEK

Henry Ford, heterodox business leader, purports to see a solution in the five-day week.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel Company, who can speak for orthodox big business, seems to lean toward Mr. Ford's viewpoint.

Mr. Taylor would not follow the example of the Rewhonians and destroy machines. In his address before the American Iron and Steel Institute, he said:

"Are we to take a backward step? No. What is our duty, we who are here recognized as leaders in industry? We have a duty. It is up to us to make that adjustment at once. The adjustment can be possibly helped along if the work were equally divided as nearly as possible among those best prepared to do it."

Coming from such a source, Mr. Taylor's utterance is of great importance. Intelligent business leaders are reaching the stage where they are ready to consider scrapping obsolete notions about what made a full working day or working week. Modern machinery and the new efficiency foreshadow vastly more leisure for the working classes, and one of the great problems of the modern world will be a satisfactory disposal of leisure time, presumably in cultural pursuits.

TEMPORARY HALT

The easiness of bonds since the first of the month appears to be only a temporary halt in a prolonged upward surge. Disturbed foreign countries, uncertainty whether certain railroads will remain in the "legal" class, and selling of bonds to protect margin accounts in stocks were among the factors which halted the advance in bonds, which after a lull seems destined to go considerably further.

With business some 20 per cent below computed normal, it has sunk further than in any of the major depressions of the last 40 years, except in 1921, when it declined about one-third further. Such data have led chart readers to assume that business has attained bottom.

The recent relative stability of commodity prices is a reassuring sign. When prices reach an equilibrium at any level, business can go forward more confidently. In recent months business has been retarded by the well-warranted fear of businessmen that the inventory value of goods on hand would steadily shrink, and tend to offset any merchandising profit. As soon as people have faith in existing commodity prices, confidence will begin slowly to return. A canvass among certain well-informed executives of large corporations, who have been doing substantial forward buying, indicates not only that commodities are deflated, but that many think that certain basic commodities will be higher next year than they now are.

1931 PICKUP SEEN

A statistician defined radicalism as the ratio between what people expect and what they get. The public has revised notions about quick recovery of business, and accordingly is in a better mood to accept the realities of the situation. The last episode of drastic deflation in the stock market put that barometer in a better technical condition to discount revival when it comes into sight.

Historical precedent and current statistical indicators clearly indicate that 1931 will be a better year than 1930. Some statisticians of large corporations predict normalcy by next autumn.

The large corporations in control of the copper industry have thus far blundered like the individualistic farmers in failing to attune production to demand. Leaders insist that curtailment is certain to take place, but meantime accumulated stocks are the largest since 1921, and prices are the lowest in 35 years

'Leveling Off' Process In Stocks Expected By Bankers.

Bankers who profess to believe that the worst has been left behind, so far as the stock market is concerned, are anticipating a period during which the speculative list will be subject to what is known as the "leveling off" process. That is, quite a number of stocks are still moving at high levels which might be regarded as considerably out of line with the general market, and similarly a sizeable number are moving at levels that might be regarded as too low when due consideration is given to all the factors involved. Belief held is that stocks which have been forced down excessively low under pressure of urgent liquidation and bear selling will be found working back to levels more in keeping with facts, while those issues which have not yet been sufficiently liquidated are likewise finding their proper positions. In other words, the market will prove more of a two-sided affair with its stability gradually increasing.

Baltimore and Ohio yielded sharply yesterday on only a few transactions, dipping close to the recent low levels, which incidentally marked the lowest prices for the stock since 1925 when it sold in the low 50s. The decline accompanied the publication of the road's operating statistics for last month. These showed gross of $18,697,181, a drop of about $4,500,000. Net operating income contracted by only about $800,000, due apparently to substantial whittling down of operating expenses. But still the net figure shown was well under that reported for the same month in any year back to 1927 for which statistics are immediately available. Gross for the nine months showed a drop of about $26,000,000 and net operating income a drop of about $8,000,000 or about 21 per cent, compared with the same period last year.

General Foods continues to do well, according to officials of the company. The low point of sales was reached in July, and since that time the sales curve has been upward. Interests that have been active in the stock on numerous occasions in the past are predicting that the improvement will carry through the coming months. Some divisions of the company are operating at the highest rate in their history.

The absence of artificial market support in many occasions when selling has developed is looked upon as a favorable development. The point is made that when the market is moved ahead by so-called "strong arm" methods, the foundation for the upward move is not a strong one. Allowing the market to work itself out of its position without artificial means eventually will build up a sound basis for the next good upward movement.

Important scale accumulation came into Vanadium 10 days or two weeks ago whenever the stock reacted. While set-backs have occurred since that buying took place it is known that those holdings have not been disturbed. The buying is believed to have been of the long range variety, based on anticipations of favorable results from the company's titanium activities. Beginning of those operations has been delayed, but construction work on the plant is coming along.

Selling of Case Threshing Machine was renewed yesterday on a fairly persistent scale, forcing the stock off some eight points to new low levels for the day. Around the bottom prices the stock showed a drop of some 255 points from the peak for the year of 362¾, and a decline of 360 points from the 1929 high of 467. Reports of nearby new financing were still current, but lacking in confirmation. Selling in the stock was ascribed in a large way to one of the bigger operators on the bear side who is credited with having touched off the decline on Saturday through the medium of a well-timed selling movement. Those who claim knowledge of operating results for the first half of the year claim that new financing, if undertaken, would indicate poor conditions in foreign fields.

Bank Loans Paid By Mack Trucks

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Mack Trucks, Inc., has paid off all bank loans which on March 31 amounted to $4,000,000, and in addition has purchased during the current year approximately $1,500,000 in marketable securities.

After elimination of bank loans, the company has net current assets of approximately $36,000,000, equal to over $46 a share on outstanding 771,819 shares of capital stock.

P. R. R. to Net $4.50 a Share for Year

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Estimates are that earnings of the Pennsylvania Railroad in the current year will be in the neighborhood of $4.50 a share. This would compare with $8.82 in 1929.

As the stock is selling to yield more than 6 per cent at present, there are reports of odd-lot investment buying of the stock for cash.

United Engineering To Report Gains

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

PRODUCTION OF THE UNITED Engineering and Foundry Company has continued at a rate close to capacity this year. The company started 1930 operations with a large volume of unfilled orders on its books. These have kept plants busy up to the present time. Orders on hand are sufficient to insure the continuation of a high rate of production for most of the remaining weeks of the year.

While bookings of new business have been light, steel companies, which are United Engineering's principal customers, have extensive improvement programs under consideration. Estimates have been supplied for a large number of mill construction jobs which are planned for next year. These projects indicate that the company may expect a fairly good volume of business in 1931 without an extended period between the completion of present orders and the placing of new contracts.

The high rate of operations this year insures the fact that net profit will be greater than in 1929 when $1,671,887 or $3.75 a share was earned on 416,118 shares of common stock after deducting dividends on $1,574,900 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock. This compared with earnings of $826,591 or $1.72 a share in 1928 and with $1,642,392 or $3.68 a share in 1927.

Pays Extra Dividends

REGULAR DIVIDENDS OF 40 cents quarterly are paid on the common stock. Extras of 35 cents a share were declared payable in February, May, August and November of this year, so that the stock may be considered on a $3 basis.

The company has plants at Pittsburgh, Vandergrift and Youngstown with a total area of about 800,000 square feet. Heavy rolling mill machinery used in steel mills constitutes the principal output. In addition to this the company has a replacement business in supplying steel rolls.

The rapid changes which have been taking place in steel mill practice have greatly stimulated United Engineering's sales. Production costs have become an even more important factor in the steel industry than in other lines. This has kept the demand for labor saving machinery at a high level.

Cash Position Strong

THE COMPANY HAS NO funded debt. It is in an excellent financial condition with current assets of $8,629,905 at the close of 1929 against current liabilities of only $1,893,591. Cash amounted to $1,469,707 and marketable securities to $1,014,876.

With only a small issue of preferred stock, the common is in an exceptionally favorable position. Preferred dividends were earned over 15 times last year.

Net working capital of $6,736,314 at the close of 1929 was equivalent to over $16 a share on the common stock. At current market prices the common yields about 8.5 per cent. It is selling on a basis of about nine times 1929 earnings and the company will earn more this year than last year.

RAILS ASK NEW RATE DEAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A reopening of Interstate Commerce Commission proceedings calling for a revision of western trunk line railroad rates was sought today by western carriers.

The carriers said while the commission had calculated to increase railroad earnings in the west by $12,000,000 per year by the revision, the recent decline in traffic and altered traffic conditions made this grant of more revenue unlikely.

For 1929 the western roads calculated their earnings represented $93,593,000 less than a fair return; and for the last nine years $125,000,000 per year less than a reasonable profit.

In view of this it was argued the commission should reconsider the whole subject particularly, since it was held that during the "first seven months of 1930 even more serious deficiency in western railroad earnings" had been experienced.

"We Travel 25 Salesmen"

So stated the president of one of Pittsburgh's largest manufacturing companies, and then followed with the question: "What advantages would there be in having them carry their expense money in Travelers Cheques? These salesmen are away from home from two to six weeks. They cover every kind of territory, from rural communities to large cities, traveling by automobile, train, and bus."

Our answer was simply this: Any sum of money can be carried in Mellon Travelers Cheques with perfect safety without fear of loss or theft. They are practically as convenient as cash and much more easily negotiated than personal or company checks. Since they are issued in denominations as low as $10, it is never necessary to carry a large sum of currency.

Today, every salesman traveling for that company carries his expense money in Mellon Travelers Cheques

MARKET GAINS IN CAUTIOUS TRADING

Stocks Show Recovery In Quiet Movement; Prices Head Up After Halting

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Recovery was again the order of the day in today's stock market, although trading remained light, and the movement was hesitant and cautious.

The uptrend was momentarily interrupted by selling of Westinghouse Electric and Bethlehem Steel, the latter losing as much as 2 points, but these shares soon rallied.

Gains were limited to a point or so in such stocks as U. S. Steel and American Can, but several rails, utilities and miscellaneous shares such as American Telephone, American Water Works, Johns Manville, American Power and Light, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Rock Island, Union Pacific, Macy and Loews sold up 2 to more than 3 and Atchison mounted 6.

AWAIT STEEL ACTION

Wall Street's attention converged upon the quarterly meeting of the U. S. Steel directors, after the close of the market. There has been considerable gossip in brokerage circles over the possibility of the declaration of an extra dividend of $1, as was ordered a year ago, but the financial community has not been very sanguine in its hopes of such a windfall. Nevertheless, shorts grew nervous over the possibility, and many hastened to cover their commitments.

The further reduction of $116,000,000 in loans on securities as shown in the consolidated condition statement of weekly reporting Federal Reserve member banks was regarded with considerable satisfaction, for it made a total drop in that item of $341,000,000 in three weeks, leading to the hope that loans with impaired collateral had been rather thoroughly weeded out. The recent high total of these loans had caused considerable uneasiness in some quarters.

Earnings statements again made up most of the corporate news. Studebaker reported third quarter net applicable to the common stock of only 20 cents a share, but declared the regular dividend of 75 cents. The report of International Business Machines for the first nine months, showing net of $8.58, against $7.70 in the like period a year ago, was a bright spot, and was reflected by strength in that stock and Underwood Elliott as well.

R-K-O GAINS

Radio Keith reported $1.28 per class "A" share for the first nine months, against 69 cents a year ago, although the third quarter taken alone was slightly below the like 1929 period. September net operating income reports of the railways continued to make a better showing than those of August, and helped the recovery in the carrier issues. The moderate improvement reflected reduced operating expenses.

Bethlehem was apparently influenced by unofficial Wall Street estimates of third quarter net, which will be reported on Thursday. The oils were sluggish, as the sag in both gasoline and crude oil prices still showed no signs of being checked.

Call money was again offered in the outside market at 1¼ per cent, although the official rate held at 2. Recent strength in the Canadian dollar caused moderate shipments of gold to Montreal.

U. S. Rubber in Deal With Samson Tire

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—A plan to merge the tire business of the United States Rubber Company in the Pacific western states with the Samson Tire and Rubber Corporation has been revealed in letters to Samson stockholders.

A new corporation will be formed under the laws of Delaware with 200,000 shares of authorized 6 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock of $10 par value, 2000,000 shares of authorized A common stock without par value and 200,000 shares of B common stock without a par.

Automotive Parts Shipments Higher

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Manufacturers of automotive parts, accessories and shop equipment reported increased shipments to wholesalers in September and the same level of activity has been maintained in October, the Motor and Equipment Association reports. Member wholesalers also reported better business in September and October, reflecting the more or less general reports of an active retail replacement and service trade, the association says.

Westinghouse Gets Hospital Order

Westinghouse X-Ray Company, a subsidiary of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, has obtained an order from Bronx Hospital, Fulton avenue and One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street, New York City, for equipment for the hospital's new X-Ray department. The X-ray department is divided into several rooms each equipped to take care of special work such as chest and stomach, fluoroscopic, systoscopic, deep therapy, general radiographic and physio-therpy rooms.

MORE OIL CUTS ANNOUNCED

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28.—Effective October 28 the Ohio Oil Company has reduced crude oils in central west fields 35 to 45 cents a barrel.

Illinois, Princeton, Plymouth and Wooster crudes are reduced 35 cents a barrel; Lima and Indiana crudes, 45 cents, and Western Kentucky crude, 40 cents.

DENVER, Oct. 28.—In Wyoming, Elk Basin, Grass Creek and Lance Creekoils have been cut 30 cents a barrel; Rock Creek crude, 34 cents, and Big Muddy, 38 cents.

In New Mexico, Arestia crude is down 30 cents a barrel, and in Montana Sunburst crude was cut 10 cents.

HOUSTON, Oct. 28.—Humble Oil and Refining Company has made an average reduction of 25 cents a barrel in Texas fields, except those where its reductions on October 16 were applied.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 28.—The Carter Oil Company announced it would post reduced prices for Midcontinent crude oils, effective today. The new schedule's top price will be $1.07 a barrel for oil of 44 gravity and above, or 12 cents under the top price posted Saturday by the Stanolind Crude Oil Purchasing Company. Carter's low price will be 65 cents a barrel for oil below 29 gravity, meeting the Stanolind figure.

REPUBLIC PLANS EXPANSION

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 28.—Plans are being perfected by the Republic Steel Corporation for the acquisition of companies, including the Inland Steel, Chicago; Gulf States Steel, Wheeling Steel, Colorado Fuel & Iron and a number of smaller interests.

These plans, halted by the death of Elmer T. McCleary, president of the company, are to be pushed in 1931.

The company likewise plans to elect a president to succeed McCleary. The title of president has temporarily been worn by T. L. Girdler, chairman of the board.

For third quarter, Truscon Steel Company reports net profits of $411,575 after dividends and all charges, despite adverse conditions in steel consuming lines.

The new profit figures compare with net profits of $601,280.19 earned in the second quarter of this year, and net profits of $1,079,793.82 in the third quarter of last year. The 1929 third quarter was the biggest in the company's history.

Oklahoma Crude Oil Production Lower

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 28.—Oklahoma's daily average crude oil production fell to the lowest point since October, 1926, as the country's daily average output declined 5,723 barrels in the week ended October 25 to reach 2,362,838, the Oil and Gas Journal estimates.

Oklahoma's production was placed at 536,845 barrels, a decline of 7,665 from the preceding week's figures. The present allowable production for the state is 550,000 barrels.

Ford Motor Reopens Plant at Memphis

DETROIT, Oct. 28.—The Ford Motor Company plant at Memphis has reopened after a month shutdown, placing 1,200 men on a three-day week basis.

Forbes

Which? Chaos or Industrial Co-Ordination?

— By B. C. FORBES —

LAST NOVEMBER the writer said here:

"America needs, as this column has repeatedly pointed out, an institute of industrial co-ordination, or some such organization.

"A permanent association, under proper direction, could do much to level out peaks and valleys of unemployment, to discourage cruel dropping of elderly workmen, to develop sensible old age pension or other plans for caring for employes no longer able to earn a livelihood, to foster co-operation beneficial to all, to discourage unjustifiable destructive competition, and to effect other purposes calculated to stabilize industry and employment.

Mr. Forbes

"Unless certain evils of our present industrial system are remedied or at least modified by industrialists themselves, the starkly plain handwriting on the wall is that politicians will by and by seek to win acclaim by bringing forward drastic legislation.

"The alternative confronting industry is not action or inaction, but action by them or by legislators."

THE UNITED STATES Chamber of Commerce committee, headed by Julius H. Barnes, appointed as a result of the Hoover conferences brought on by the panic, has proved a fizzle. All that the committee is doing, so far as the public knows, is to compile reports on conditions in different industries. What is needed was not more words, words, words. What was and is needed is action, co-operative action, concerted action, statesmanlike action.

Instead, the United States Chamber committee apparently has resolved merely into one more reporting agency, telling us how bad things are in this industry and the next, with a few words of hopefulness concerning conditions in other directions.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S second attempt promises to effect something tangible in the way of dealing with the many and widespread emergencies caused by unemployment. Col. Arthur Woods is an extremely able organizer of relief; Gov. Eugene Meyer, of the Federal Reserve Board, has had ripe experience in coping with acute depression; governors and mayors and brainy private citizens have at last been induced to face the stern realities.

Neither the Federal Government nor state governments should hesitate to take whatever measures may be deemed necessary to wage war successfully against the hardships of unemployment. We think nothing of spending billions for armies and for navies and for war. Why refuse to spend a few millions for this more humane form of war?

INDUSTRY HAS a responsibility extending far beyond the emergencies of this winter. But it has no machinery whatsoever for meeting that responsibility.

The events of the last 12 months have emphasized with terrible force the need for some such organization as the institute of industrial co-ordination which was advocated here long before the boom burst. It was easy to foresee that the wilder the inflation became, the more disastrous would be the reaction. Industry was implored to get together with a view to studying how best to deal with that inevitable reaction. "In time of peace prepare for war" was one exhortation.

But only a handful of business men had vision enough, concern enough, energy enough to grasp the realities, to recognize what loomed ahead. So little or nothing was done.

HOW LONG will America's foremost men of affairs shut their eyes to this inescapable fact: Either industry and business must accept responsibility for curing the defects of our economic system, or the politicians will tackle the problem, including the problem of caring for the unemployed, probably with disastrous consequences?

WHICH SHALL it be, co-ordination by industry, or chaos?

(Copyright, 1930, by B. C. Forbes.)

No Major Changes To Be Made in Ford Cars

DETROIT, Oct. 28.—Ford Motor Company plans to carry on indefinitely with the present model-A car without any major change, according to Edsel Ford, president. Mr. Ford said:

"We shall continue to improve quality in every way possible, but no major changes in the car or truck are contemplated. In fact we look forward to the day when the 30,000,000th model-A will come off the line.

"We have utmost confidence in the future of business, particularly of our own business and that of our dealers. We are in the midst of the greatest expansion program in our history, spending millions of dollars this year in building new plants throughout the world and planning to spend millions more next year. These plants are being tooled to produce model-A cars and AA trucks."

HERE IS A MAN YOU OUGHT TO KNOW BETTER

HE is the Stock Fire Insurance Company Agent. Available through him is a fund of information that you should have for the better protection of your family, your home, your business, your community.

More than a hundred years ago the Stock Fire Insurance companies established relations with property owners through local agents. In Memoriam 1-B

Elvina Freda Martin. In loving memory of our dear daughter, who departed this life 3 years ago today, Oct. 28, 1927.
Just when your life was brightest.
Just when your years were best.
You were called from this world of sorrow.
To a home of Eternal Rest.
Sadly missed by mother, father and brother.

FREE WANT ADS AID JOBLESS.

Seeking to relieve the present unemployment situation, the Sun-Telegraph has thrown open its want ad columns to the home-owners of Pittsburgh and other more fortunate individuals who will be given an opportunity to aid those out of work and at the same time see many odd tasks accomplished.

If Sun-Telegraph readers need their walks repaired, roofs, spoutings or porches fixed, plumbing renovated or repaired, coal put in or gardens and flower-beds made ready for the winter, wall paper cleaned, windows washed, or wish their car washed and polished at home, they can give aid to the unemployed by notifying this newspaper.

If you can offer work of any kind to any one, whether for a day, week or indefinitely, and the job pays a salary or wage, call Grant 5400 or stop at Want Ad Corner, Fifth Avenue and Market Street, and the Sun-Telegraph will run a "Help Wanted" ad free of charge.

Any job which you thought you might do for yourself, but for which you never found time, will give a less fortunate individual a chance of employment.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Unlucky Opal

Ranger Smith, in the kitchen of Spot Johnson's hide-out apartment, walked to the closet as soon as he had entered, and poured himself a drink.

Spots and his "Moll," Hoppy Turner and Dutch Hanlon watched him keenly, and in silence.

Ranger lifted the glass, grinned at the hard, unsmiling faces, and said, "Like stealing baby's lollypop."

"Aw, hell, Ranger—we know you ain't holdin' out."—Spot said.

Ranger sat down.

"Didn't glint a soul all the time he was inside," Dutch said.

Dutch had been the lookout while Ranger was doing his porch-climbing job over in West New York at one of the old-time granite mansions.

"Nothin' to it," Hoppy said.

They didn't call Turner "Hoppy" because he was a hop-head. He was too wise to ever monkey with the "snow." He had a habit of breaking into a jig for no reason at all, hence his name. Hoppy handled the car.

Excellent Loot

Ranger pushed aside some ash trays and glasses and emptied the black flannel bag on the stained tablecloth.

"Jees!" Spot said as he saw the glitter.

"What's that?"

Hoppy turned, reached out a finger and poked at the chain and pendant. The pendant was fully three inches long.

"Opal," Spot said.

"Corker—look-a th' thing glimmer!" Hoppy moved it with his finger.

He knew better than to pick anything up until the stuff was divided.

The pendant was a great fire opal, probably a good half-inch thick, with an old-fashioned yellow gold setting. It shot forth between its seeming liquid black spots, darts of jade green, carmine fire, orange lights and other flashing colors, that are to be found only in such opals.

"Jees," Hoppy said, fascinated, "swell—worth a bunch of coin, what?"

"Aw, nix," Spot's Moll said, "they ain't —er— ain't—very common, kind of rare."

Hoppy didn't notice the sudden change, nor the flinch of pain on her face. Spot had given her a rough kick in the shin when he guessed she was going to tell Hoppy opals weren't worth much.

Examined by Spot

"I'll say they're rare," Spot growled to his woman, "and don't think I can afford to let you have this."

The hot ice—as all stolen diamonds are known in underworld parlance—was surprisingly good.

He nodded.

This was sufficient. It meant that it was good stuff.

There was a quantity of other stuff, rings and brooches.

"Look here," Spot said, "remember how Hoppy stopped the old bus that time the Pinkley gang cornered us, almost, and picked Looey up after he'd been winged?"

"Aw, why not?" Hoppy protested.

"And remember," Spot went on, impressively, "how Hoppy lost three bulls' cars in 10 minutes, all within a dozen blocks?"

Hoppy beamed.

Ranger and Dutch were instantly wise, as was the Moll.

"My Gawd—all of it?" Moll said.

"Shut up," Spot growled.

"Jees, that's somethin'—that's worth more'n—"

And so they agreed.

Hoppy went out to the hall closet to bring in a fresh bottle of liquor.

"Jees, unlucky as hell, I wouldn't have th' damn thing on me," Dutch whispered.

Hoppy went out.

They all had a drink and a laugh.

"Tell him the guy who said it wasn't worth a lot was crazy," Dutch suggested.

"His new skirt is a waitress across at th' Purple Coffee Pot, she'll wear it and believe it's worth all he says it is; she's dumb," the Moll declared.

Pretty soon Mayme Snyder came out. Her work was done. Before she could cross the street to where Hoppy said he would be waiting, Spot, Ranger, Dutch and the Moll all came down together. They were going to a certain fence—together—to make sure it would be an even division.

Aided by Mayme

Four men from the rival Pinkley gang were waiting for Spot and his crowd.

Ranger Smith spotted them as they opened fire and turned to beat it when a bullet got him. He managed to get back up the three walk-up flights to Spot's apartment.

Hoppy fell at the first crack.

Spot and Dutch tried to shoot it out and went down.

The Pinkley quartet of dead shots "faded."

Promptly Hoppy got up. Mayme Snyder, cringing back, now rushed across to him.

"Up with me before the bulls come," he said, and they rushed back to the apartment.

Ranger Smith had got across the threshold and dropped. He was through. The black flannel bag containing the hot ice protruded from his inside coat pocket.

Hoppy fished in his inner vest pocket and began to curse.

"Th' pill hit my black opal and busted it to hell," he said, bringing out the pieces.

"Aw, opals is cheap and unlucky," Mayme told him, proving that she wasn't as green as they thought.

"Onna level?"

"Honest, Hoppy—why did you take it?"

He told her all about it.

"Double-crossing you, Hoppy, that's what—throw away them pieces—they're all th' bad luck there is."

"Yeah?"

He stooped over and took the black flannel bag with the fifty thousand or more dollars' worth of "hot ice" in it.

"Mayme," he said, "we'll hop to th' coast, we'll start now. I got a fortune in hot ice—and don't ever tell me opals is bad luck—didn't this one save my life and help me to grab off all this stuff?"

He showed her some of the diamonds.

"Hoppy dear, let's hop," said Mayme.

They hopped.

THE NEBBS — The Builder? — By Carlson

THE "DEPOT" AGENT IS KICKING BECAUSE HE HAD TO BUY A BICYCLE TO GET TO WORK
WELL, HALF PINT, WE'RE GOING TO HAVE SOME "DEPPO" HERE - THEY WOULDN'T LET NORTHVILLE GROW UP SO I JUST STARTED A TOWN OF MY OWN
SO IT'S GOING TO BE NEBBVILLE? IT AIN'T HARD TO FIND OUT WHO PICKED THAT NAME
WHO STARTED THIS MOVEMENT TO BREAK AWAY FROM NORTHVILLE? - WHO IS PAYING FOR THE DEPOT? - AND JUST WHY SHOULDN'T I NAME IT NEBBVILLE?
IF IT GROWS TO FIT YOUR EGOTISM, IT WILL MAKE LONDON LOOK LIKE A NAKED PRAIRIE
I WOULD HAVE CALLED IT 'NOXAGE' TO GET THE BENEFIT OF SOME FREE ADVERTISING FOR OUR GREAT ALL-CURATIVE WATER - WHY DON'T YOU GET A STATUE OF YOURSELF AND PLACE IT IN FRONT OF THE DEPOT AND MAKE THE JOKE COMPLETE?

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

(Copyright, 1930.)

Meeting in convention, the American Retail Jewelers' Association has decided that men must wear two watches—a wrist watch for convenience, and a pocket watch for accuracy.

They would have shown more of the patriotic spirit of the times by further suggesting that gents wear a third watch for prosperity.

And getting two more watches than usual from every victim, hold-up men would not have to work so hard and a tidy bit of crime would be eliminated at the source.

* * *

Calvin Coolidge, who has done so much paragraphing to break the buyers' strike, should permit himself to be photographed wearing watches on both wrists and both ankles.

RESIGNATION

(University Bulletin — Paper No. 12, Vol. I, Hilgardia has been accepted for publication. In this paper, Professor J. T. Rosa, of the Agricultural Experiment Station, discusses "Sex Expression in Spinach").

Womankind for years and years,
Has drenched this world with bitter tears
She wails against cruel nature's hex,
She moans beneath the yoke of sex,
And her complaint is doubtless right—
Sex is, for woman, dynamite;
However, on the other hand,
It's just as well to understand
That even spinach, as it grows,
Encounters endless female woes,
And bears the burden, you'll agree,
With poise and saintly dignity.

Not a Recommendation

Socialist Candidate for Governor Has Not Helped His Candidacy With Law-Abiding Citizens by Getting Arrested.

Supt. Peter P. Walsh, of the Bureau of Police, may have been unfair in refusing the Socialists a permit for a meeting on the City-County Building steps after having allowed the Republicans to stage a rally there.

Walsh says he refused the Socialist application, and will refuse all such applications hereafter, because meetings there interfere with traffic. Allen G. Harper, of the American Civil Liberties Union, answers that the Socialist application was refused before the Republican meeting was held.

James H. Maurer, the Socialist candidate for governor, undoubtedly had some ground for feeling he was being unjustly discriminated against. But that did not justify his defying the police without even trying to obtain redress in an orderly manner.

Maurer should have appealed to the courts from Walsh's decision. If the courts sustained the superintendent, Maurer should have abided by the decision, while continuing to seek relief from such discrimination through legislation. But he should not have taken the law into his own hands.

He did not help his candidacy with law-respecting citizens by getting arrested.

Thrilling Demonstration

Catholics Reflect Credit on Church and Country by Their Zeal for Election Honesty and General Decency.

It is thrilling just to read of the mighty demonstration for decency and honesty that 25,000 Catholics gave in Shibe Park, Philadelphia, on Sunday.

The demonstration was a hopeful thing for Philadelphia—for all Pennsylvania, for that matter—because it was marked by a vigorous protest against election cheating, and by the taking of a pledge to maintain the integrity of the ballot.

The Catholics had gathered, as their Pittsburgh co-religionists had done at Forbes Field in Pittsburgh several weeks before, under the auspices of the Holy Name Society.

The meeting would have been notable if only as an expression against profanity and obscenity on the stage and in literature. But it was made doubly significant by the demonstration, led by Michael J. Ryan, former city solicitor of Philadelphia, for honesty in civic affairs.

Who can doubt that the solemn pledge taken by those 25,000 citizens will be deeply influential?

Hope for Chestnuts

In 1904 chestnut trees in a park in Brooklyn, N. Y., were observed to be suffering from a bark disease. Within 10 years the blight had spread throughout the eastern part of the country. No cure for it has been found.

Ten years ago the chestnut was generally regarded as doomed. When Gifford Pinchot was Pennsylvania's commissioner of forestry he gave orders that chestnut trees in the state forests should be cut, since there was no hope of saving them from the blight, and the dead trees would present a fire hazard and, besides, be less valuable as lumber than the live trees.

Chestnut trees have now disappeared from many sections where they were once plentiful.

In view of these things, it is welcome news indeed that Arlington B. Moyer, a Pennsylvania deputy game protector, sends in a letter about conditions in his district. He says chestnut trees are coming back in the Poconos. Some have attained a height of 18 feet and have yielded a bountiful supply of nuts this autumn.

Chestnuts are not indispensable to our welfare, as in parts of Italy, where polenta, or chestnut meal, is a staple food; but the return of the beautiful trees will be a blessing.

This Wonderful Age

Marvels Are Becoming So Frequent That They Fail to Produce Much Excitement Any More.

Howard Heinz telephoned to his company's manager in Australia yesterday, inaugurating commercial telephone service between the two countries.

These astonishing achievements attracted less attention as topics of conversation than Saturday's football game, or the political campaign, or the weather.

Like persons who have long been fed on strongly spiced food, and whose sense of taste has been dulled in consequence, we have become so accustomed to the marvelous that it fails to excite us.

A Pestilence Passes

Pittsburgh's Conquest of Typhoid Fever Is One of the Outstanding Triumphs of Sanitation.

Pittsburgh has had only five deaths from typhoid fever this year.

Calling attention to this, Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, reminds us that in 1890, when the population was much smaller, we had 385 deaths from typhoid fever. Nor was 1890 an exceptional year for those times; every year typhoid took terrible toll of lives.

It is well to be reminded from time to time of our conquest of typhoid, to refresh our appreciation of sanitation.

Typhoid was relegated to a low place, among the diseases causing death, by filtering the city's supply of drinking water.

Perhaps some of our other disease menaces may be overcome by expedients no less simple.

SUN TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

1—A better, cleaner, more beautiful city.
2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Community Fund for charities.
6—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.
7—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
8—Development of river transportation.
10—Electrification of railroads.

China's 'Christian' President

Good Americans Will Be Impressed.

GENERAL CHIANG KAI-SHEK

Earnest, well meaning Americans who give their pennies to "foreign missions" to convert the heathen are delighted today with the news that President Chiang Kai-shek, of China, has embraced Christianity.

The youthful President was baptized last week at Shanghai into the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a son-in-law of the late Sun Yat-sen, who also was a Christian.

It is conceivable that Chiang Kai-shek sincerely believes in his new religion, and that his conversion is genuine.

It is also conceivable that Chiang's conversion is good politics. He is fighting Communists, who have been hunting down Christians in the Yangtsze Valley. Christians both at home and abroad will want to see him win now.

Americans especially will feel friendly toward him, and perhaps ask Mr. Hoover to send marines to help him, or something.

If Chiang's conversion is political, it will not be the first. Gen. Feng, China's so-called Christian soldier, admired by millions of devout Americans, used to change his religion every two or three years. For a while, he even worshiped at the shrine of Lenin. What he is now is a mystery to those who follow the shifts of Chinese politics. Perhaps it is something of a mystery to himself.

Christianity is a convenient garment to put on in China when you want support, especially American support. We Americans are impressed by labels, seldom looking at what is behind them.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

A Long, Long Trail

We must admire the concentrated hopefulness of the Milwaukee brewer who just installed a new beer-making outfit in his haunted castle.

He will be all set the minute 36 states start paddling backward in the amendment regatta.

Some of our best legal minds in the nation have become scrambled eggs thinking the situation loose from its ramifications.

Prof Unks, dean of the kindergarten of Yale Law School, states:

"The law is the law. An amendment is an amendment. Never the twain shall meet. The Milwaukee brewer may know more about it than I do.

"He is closer to the battlefront than I am.

"You cannot stop a Milwaukee brewer from hoping. If the wish is father to the thought, why should I be a maiden aunt?

"I remember the case of the man who stole so many watches he was betrayed by the ticking.

"That has nothing to do with the Milwaukee brewer. But neither has the law.

"The tail is heavier than the kite. When it comes to good old liquor I ain't a well digger.

"They talk about legalizing 2 per cent beer. They can make 2 per cent legal. But they cannot make it beer.

"Nothing less than 7 per cent will satisfy me. You don't fool me with 2 per cent. If you want foam and suds, why not get a clay pipe and a cake of soap?

"The Eighteenth Amendment is like the man who jumped out of the fifth story window during the gambling raid. It seemed like a good idea at the time.

"He would have been better off if he had waited for the pinch. Let's toss away that vulcanizing job and start out with a new set of tires.

"I am for law and order. But if that Milwaukee brewer waits until the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed he will get the news in the form of a postscript on his tombstone. That's my story but I hope it ain't a national hook-up."

THE DIRIGIBLE DISASTER

By Archibald Henderson

A feeling of dejection and despondency has obsessed the champions of airships since the horrible disaster of the R-101 near Beauvais, France. The number and importance of the passengers lost, the inadequacy of information regarding the causes of the disaster, the suspicious circumstances that smoking was permitted on board, the total destruction of such a gigantic airship in which so much money was invested; these and other considerations have exercised a depressing influence upon the advocates of an extensive world program for dirigible construction.

It must be remembered, however, that ghastly accidents, resulting in the destruction of dirigibles, have occurred before. These have happened in both England and America.

The loss of the French Dixmude was particularly disheartening, as it sailed away into the darkness and its fate has not yet been ascertained. It has been chalked up as one of the mysterious tragedies of airship history. The loss of the R-101 is particularly lamentable, as that leaves Great Britain only one dirigible, the sister ship, the R-100. It will certainly be necessary for Great Britain to build another airship, as it is impossible to learn much from the operations and flights of only one airship. Two are needed for purposes of comparison.

The result of the World War upon airship development was unfortunate. The dirigible had come to be regarded as primarily an engine of war, with few serviceable uses in times of peace. After the war, the British government ruthlessly banned all airship construction and development. A sudden change of policy resulted in the ordering of the construction of the R-100 and the R-101. The results of the flights of the Graf Zeppelin and the R-100 greatly encouraged the champions of airship development. The view began to prevail that these airships were safer than airplanes because of greater stability and general steadiness.

"The Imperial Air Conference's sub-committee was convinced that the airship has great possibilities, and that the reliability of that form of air transport has been seriously underestimated owing to the effects produced by a few disasters."

In face of the recent disaster, it can scarcely be doubted that, in the construction of new dirigibles, hazards of all sorts will be more carefully guarded against than ever before. It is becoming increasingly clear that helium gas should be employed in all airships, because it is non-inflammable. A cubic foot of helium weights about one-seventh the same amount of air, at zero Centigrade and 700 mm. pressure. It is, unfortunately, not so buoyant as pure hydrogen by about 7½ per cent. It is predicted that, in the near future, the difference in cost between helium and hydrogen will be reduced to an inappreciable minimum.

It is equally clear that, in the future, dirigibles should be equipped with oil-burning engines. It has been said that a helium-filled airship undergoes no more danger from fire than an airplane. The estimate has been made that the danger of fire from oil-burning engines is only about one-twentieth of the fire hazard from the use of gasoline engines.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

If you love dogs . . . and you can get right out of this column if you don't . . . read Mazo de la Roche's "Portrait of a Dog." It is, I believe, the most moving story of a small wagging creature that has ever been written. Very simply her mistress speaks about her—as all fine things should be spoken. But through the quiet words you hear little Argyle Bunty's delighted yelps—see her tiny, Scottie body hurling itself through a joyful world—catch, quite plainly, the thumping of her gallant little heart breasting adventure, until she went grinning down to the strangest and darkest adventure of all.

Here is the story of a dog—and, I suspect, something more. Is it the story of all feminine hearts? Of that sex which is supposed to be so soft and timid but is, in secret truth, both roistering and ruthless? For Argyle was feminine from the inquisitive tip of her ingratiating nose to the tantalizing tilt of her triumphant tail and—as is the wont of women!—she led poor Hamish, who by rights should have been her lord and master, the very Scotch de'il of a life. Listen—

"These differences of male and female! Looking back over that bright-eyed, quick-breathing procession, I believe that the bitch showed greater endurance, greater adaptability, and, I hate to say it—greater speed than the dog. A sense of self-preservation, preservation of her unborn young, is innate in her. The male is more wistful, more flighty, and he seldom has her soul-searching gaze that goes straight to one's heart. The bitch usually has an adventurous, devil-may-care spirit. She is very sure of herself and her place in one's affections. I would not say that one is more loyal than the other, but the only dog I ever knew which died of a broken heart was an Irish terrier male that we had to send away from us one winter . . . It needs the special charm of the female to make one forgive her some of the rascalities peculiar to her sex."

And again, this all-too-familiar domestic scene should cause divers henpecked gents to utter wild, wet woofs of sympathy.

"You still harried him (Hamish) when you were in the mood," declares Miss de la Roche, addressing the adored but designing Argyle. "There were times when you denied him the dignity of his own chair. You would rush at him without warning, uttering a sudden, complaining scream that made him leap over the arm of the chair in panic.

"He would retire to a corner, glowering, while you would hop into his place and set about licking your paws until every ebony toenail shone. In the meantime he would establish himself, trembling, on the farthest chair. And, after a bit, something approaching serenity would appear in his eyes. Out of your deep, dark ones you were watching him. You waited for that moment when his nerves relaxed, then, with another scream, you were after him. And so every chair he sought in turn."

Reading the book, you'll snicker. Then you'll wonder—casting, if you are a male, a cautious, speculating eye upon the Missus. Are females really like that? They are, brother—they are! And how we've gotten by for so long with our poor-dear-weak-little-woman act, baffles even me, who am—I admit—no mean slouch at it. For our stuff is so obvious. Or should be! No Dempsian fist ever concealed a fiercer wallop than Petite Polly's pretty pout. No vitriol was ever deadlier than Meek Minnie's trembling tear. And "for ways that are dark and for tricks that are vain" consult any average man. Yet we've not only managed to keep up the deception of being spineless saints, but we get enthusiastic male co-operation in doing so!

However, it may not be so much of a mystery, after all. Maybe the men are on to us, all the time. Perhaps they know perfectly well that we have 'em outsmarted and outlicked . . . BUT HOW DAST THEY ADMIT IT!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, October 28.—The brief flicker to fame these anxious days not only puzzles over-night celebrities but even astonish the public glancing at their clay feet. This transition does not apply solely to fortunates of stage, screen and radio but to all forms of "public-contact" endeavor.

Gertrude Ederle, swimming the English Channel and looming large in the headlines for days, passes along New York streets almost unnoticed to take her train to Rye, where she is a swimming instructor. The evanishment of air heroes is startling. Not even Lindbergh ties traffic in a knot any more.

The Guy Empeys, the Eddie Rickenbackers, the Michael Arlens and others as deservedly illustrious are befogged by a volcano of indifference. The warm hand becomes a cold shoulder. The celebrity is a "ten day wonder" and there he goes! Two ladies last night were unable to recall the exact exploits of Ruth Elder.

A celebrity today—with exceptions of course—wears out his welcome by a careless promiscuosity. If he is the hero of some extraordinary achievement he is immediately besieged by those who want to traffic in his sudden popularity, to capitalize an often hard-won halo.

He is asked to prattle over the radio, illuminate the news reels, indorse cigarets, shaving soap and such. He must pose for the tabloids and rotogravures. He is invited to be a guest of honor at "celebrity nights" as supper clubs. And is usually offered "a week at the Palace."

If he adopts the theory he must make hay while the sun shines, his finish is usually quick. The public yowl becomes a yarn. Nothing is so mentally cloying as an overdose of celebrities. Humanity being what it is admiration curdles into a fine derision over night.

The explanation requires no analytical acerbity. Celebrities fail to master the obvious lesson of attracting attention by the inverse process of shunning it—so conspicuously effective with J. M. Barrie, Julia Arthur and Maud Adams. Greta Garbo's big box office draw is her studied isolation.

But underneath this mushroom celebrity collapse is something deeper, something sadistic. Lately America has developed a fiendish flair for flushing mediocre people out of obscurity, placing them on a pedestal and toppling them over to the accompaniment of hooting huzzahs.

John Gilbert is an example of Fate's flippancy. Clara Bow another. The list is long. The celebrity complex swept the nation like a spark in dry grass and many who fell for its dubious charms have paid a tragic price. The truth is that such celebrities—again the exceptions—had little on the ball at the toss-up. They burst with egotism and deflated like suddenly pricked toy balloons.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Instead of being what you have led others to believe, haven't you cheated yourself into putting up a losing bluff?

And are you not the one who suffers most thereby?

What you pretend to be has no important bearing on the lives of others.

It has a strong effect upon yourself.

As long as you are satisfied with veneer you won't try to be genuine.

But your bluff does not fool discerning people.

You may mislead scatter brains and shallow, superficial people.

It may please you to have these lightweights admire you at the face value you are trying to put over, but it is not worth anything in the long run.

It would be far better for you if you tried to live up to ideals which you could express and that indicate what you are following.

There would be greater self satisfaction.

Even though you fail to be all that you want others to think that you are, it is worthwhile to be real and not a sham.

There is no sense in cheating yourself to please others.

There will then be a degree of satisfaction from which you will gain something which is of value to you.

Text For Today In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion. Deliver me in thy righteousness, and cause me to escape: incline thine ear unto me, and save me.—Psalms, lxxi:1, 2.
